SENATORS HECKLE BORAH ON TERMS OF ANTI-WAR PACT

He Holds His Ground Against Skirmish Line of Critics Who Delay Heavy Fire.

QUESTIONS IN VOLLEYS

Reed of Missouri and Robinson of Indiana Are Most Persistent of Opponents.

SLIGHT TILT WITH BRUCE

Idaho Senator Insists Treaty Does Not Affect Security, Monroe Doctrine or League Relations.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—For nearly four hours today the Senate debated the multilateral pact renouncing war, the discussion suggesting that consideration of the treaty will not be prolonged, although this should be qualified by knowledge of the tendency of Senators to speak frequently and at length. The only long speech was made by Senator Borah, but he is in charge of the treaty and on him rested the responsibility of explaining its terms, scope and character in detail.

When Senator Borah ended his explanatory remarks, he was subjected to a volley of questions designed to make meticulously clear every aspect of the document. It would not be exact to say that Mr. Borah was the centre of attack, for none of the questions suggested hostility to the treaty itself and only a few of those Senators who were persistent interrogators gave the impression that they desired to have it construed by some declaratory reservation or resolution.

Trend of the Questions.

The questions concerned, whether our rights under the Monroe Doctrine were preserved; whether anything in the terms would interfere with our right to use armed forces to protect American citizens and their property in foreign countries; whether interpretative notes of the British and other governments did not in effect amend the treaty; whether ratification would mean that the pacific settlement of international difficulties would compel the United States to have its disputes with foreign governments adjudicated by the World Court, and whether the pact was the entering wedge for American affiliation with the League of Nations.

To the spectators in the crowded galleries it was interesting to see Senator Borah in an attitude of defense. His forte is attack. In contests over many important proposals before the Senate since his service in that body was begun more than twenty years ago he has been the spirited antagonist. Especially did he attract world-wide attention in his persistent assault on the Covenant of the League of Nations. But today he was the champion of the treaty renouncing war.

He held his own against the skirmish line that was thrown out by those who were feeling their way with a view to determining whether they should openly attack the treaty or merely take pot shots at it.

Reed and Robinson Hostile.

So far as what happened in the Senate yesterday and today furnished illumination, the foremost opponents of the pact are Senator Reed of Missouri and Senator Robinson of Indiana, the first a Democrat who had shown bitter hostility to the League of Nations and the latter a Republican whose antagonism to American adherence to the World Court appeared to be reflected in what he had to say in this afternoon's debate.

Other Senators, such as Bruce of Maryland and Barkley of Kentucky, indicated a disposition to have the treaty interpreted by a Senate declaration, but on the whole the proceedings were not conducive to any clear indication of determined opposition, or any crystallized hostility. Nothing of a spirited nature occurred. There were no dramatic incidents. Most of the Senators spoke so low that it was difficult for those in the press gallery to follow the debate. Even Senator Borah, whose voice ordinarily rings out strong and clear, spoke in conversational tones that lacked his usual oratorical finish.

There were many colloquies but none of them was acrimonious. The nearest to personalities came during a passage between Senator Borah and Senator Bruce of Maryland, but it was conducted smilingly and did not sound as lively as cold type makes it appear. It had to do with the provision of the treaty binding the signatories to submit their differences to pacific settlement.

Twits Borah on World Court.

Senator Bruce wanted to know what sort of method to settle controversies by pacific means Senator Borah would have the United States resort to when he was "so violently opposed to the entry of the United States into the World Court."

When Senator Borah responded that he always was an advocate of an international judicial tribunal he

Coolidge Limits Speeches To Two in Rest of Term

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—With President Coolidge having fifty-eight and one-half days to serve before his term expires, announcement was made at the White House today that in this time he would make but two speeches. The first will be before the semi-annual business meeting of the government departments on Jan. 23.

The President will end his speech-making by dedicating the carrillon and bird sanctuary established by Edward W. Bok at Mountain Lakes, Fla., Feb. 1. He will return from Florida directly after making this last speech.

EUROPEAN BLOC CUT OUR MOVIE SALES

France in 1928 Bought 313 American Feature Films, Against 368 in 1927.

CONTINENTAL OUTPUT UP

Germany Disposed of 31 and Britain 15 More in Year—Full Effect Not Yet Felt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The first effects of the European motion picture bloc, organized last year to fight the domination of American films in European markets, is clearly shown in the figures, just disclosed, for the year 1928, recording a decrease in the number of Hollywood feature pictures sold to France to 313 from the previous year's total of 368. The total for 1926 was 444.

While the American industry has registered a considerable loss, Germany and Great Britain, the two nations which, with France, form the backbone of the European film combination, have made marked advances. The German companies disposed of 122 films abroad in 1928, as compared with 91 in 1927 and 33 in 1926. The British representation rose from 8 in 1927 to 23 last year. As the British film industry is only beginning its period of rebirth, the foregoing figures are regarded relatively as impressive as those of the more firmly established German interests. In 1926, for example, Britain sold only two films in France, her industry that year having descended to the lowest level in its existence.

Full Effect Next Year.

The figures for the current twelve-month will be much more unfavorable to the United States, according to every present indication, for the various intercountry and intercompany agreements made during 1928, and probably a dozen could be counted, will not begin to have their full effect until late this year and early in 1930.

To the American doubters who have kept saying that the projected European bloc against America could not be worked out, the Europeans reply that the combination actually exists. In it one may include France, Britain, Germany, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, in fact nearly all the film-producing States of Europe.

If no hard and fast "trust" agreement has been concluded, the film makers of these countries have at any rate entered into a friendly understanding to work in close cooperation wherever possible, always bearing in mind the American film industry. In addition to this the French, British, German and Italian companies have undertaken to distribute each other's films, thus insuring the widest possible sale in Europe. The consequences of this kind of cooperation cannot accurately be foreseen at the present time, but it is declared safe to predict that it will tend to cut down further the American total.

Selective Process At Work.

But all this does not mean that American films are doomed to disappear from Europe, observers say. Far from it. American pictures and

STEEL CORPORATION TO GET $26,000,000 IN 1917 TAX REFUND

Garner Leads Democrats in Vain Committee Fight Against Treasury Settlements.

$75,000,000 TOTAL VOTED

Republicans Put Rebate Item Into Deficiency Bill and Face Battle in House Today.

MELLON ASSAILED BY TEXAN

Garner Declares Millions More Are Yet to Be Paid Back and Brings Up Aluminum Company.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A payment of $26,000,000 will be made by the Treasury to the United States Steel Corporation on Monday in settlement of a claim of the corporation for taxes represented to have been erroneously collected from it in 1917.

Of this total, $15,000,000 represents principal and the balance interest that has accrued since the corporation applied for a refund in 1918.

This $26,000,000 item, it was revealed in the printed hearings on the first deficiency bill, reported to the House today, is only part of a large amount that is to be refunded to the corporation during the current fiscal year.

A charge that the power to pay refunds had been abused by the Treasury under Secretary Mellon, made before the Appropriations Committee yesterday by Representative John N. Garner, Democrat, of Texas, led to a bitter row in the committee today over a motion to incorporate in the deficiency bill an item of $75,000,000 for the payment of additional refunds in the fiscal year 1929.

For the first time in years the committee divided on a fiscal policy of the government. The Democrats voted against the $75,000,000 provision, but it was put into the bill by the votes of Republican members.

Garner Charges "Billion" in Refunds.

The nature of Mr. Garner's attack yesterday in secret session did not become known until late this afternoon. Mr. Garner criticized refunds paid and about to be paid to the Steel Corporation, charged that the refund of more than $6,000,000 paid to the Reynolds Tobacco Company was approved in the face of objections made by L. F. Parker, expert of the joint Congressional committee on Internal Revenue taxation, and insisted that there was still a billion dollars' worth of claims for refunds pending before the Treasury Department.

He declared that the power to pay refunds, as at present exercised, might break down the income tax law, and it was this argument that led the Democratic members of the committee to oppose the $75,000,000 provision.

He insisted that this appropriation, despite the fact that it was recommended by President Coolidge, should not be authorized until Congress had full opportunity to investigate "the whole refund situation" in the Treasury. He said that more than a million dollars in refunds had been paid to the Aluminum Company of America.

Charges Mixing Refunds and Credits.

Speaking of pending refunds, Mr. Garner said that out of twenty-five of the largest cases, which, he said, involved a total of about $31,000,000, the Treasury had authorized refunds of $1,626,000, credits of $24,562 and abatements of $5,496,000.

Mr. Garner indicated that it was from these figures that he drew the ratio of 30 to 1, as far as credits and abatements were set off against refunds. The public, he said, know nothing about these "credits" and charged that the Treasury mixed refunds with credits.

He cited cases in which, he charged, refunds not yet reported to the House, were to be made, as follows:

New Rockefeller Fund Provides $2,500,000 For Salvation Army and Four Other Charities

A new benefaction to be known as the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Fund has been established with an endowment of $2,500,000, which has been deposited with the Equitable Trust Company as trustee for the Community Trust, according to announcement yesterday. The foundation of the new fund was the last act of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial just prior to its consolidation with the Rockefeller Foundation Thursday.

The income from the new fund and after ten years a portion of its principal is to go to five charitable institutions: the Salvation Army, the Henry Street Settlement, the Charity Organization Society, the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor and the United Hospital Fund.

Under the preferential plan outlined in the trust agreement the income from the fund is to be divided into 110 parts periodically, of which ten each will go to the Association For Improving the Condition of the Poor and the Charity Organization Society, fifteen to the United Hospital Fund, twenty-five to the Henry Street Settlement and fifty to the Salvation Army.

The distribution of the income may be altered and beneficiaries changed by the distribution committee of the Community Trust, which contains members named by the senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and the presidents of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New York Academy of Medicine, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York and the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

In addition to power to alter the plan of distribution as may be necessary to keep the fund usefully employed, the distribution committee may after ten years pay out the principal of the trust at the rate of $125,000 a year to the beneficiaries.

The distribution committee includes John G. Agar, Mrs. August Belmont, Homer Folks, Ernest Iselin, Morgan J. O'Brien, James H. Post, Dr. George David Stewart, Felix M. Warburg and Thomas Williams.

PLANE UP 87 HOURS, STILL GOING STRONG

SEEKS TO BEAT ZEPPELIN

Crew Fought Desperately and Won Against a Night of Fogs, Clouds and Down-Drafts.

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Continuing its record-smashing flight the army monoplane Question Mark spent its fourth day in the air with no end to the epoch-making cruise in sight.

At 10:26:46 P. M. tonight (1:26:46 A. M. New York time) the plane had completed eighty-seven hours of continuous flight.

As the big plane, with its crew of five men, neared the 80th hour aloft this afternoon it was flying as jauntily as when it took off here at 7:26 A. M. New Year's day.

The three 225-horsepower Wright Whirlwind motors on their fourth day of ceaseless duty carried the ship along in what had developed into a real test of endurance between man and machine.

A heroic and at times desperate battle by the crew to keep their plane in the air during yesterday and last night was revealed late today in a log dropped from the tri-motored Fokker. This log disclosed that the crew had to fight fogs, clouds, nearly exhausted fuel supplies, down-drafts in the Imperial Valley and a motor going bad and throwing oil.

Undaunted by the fatigue of the longest flight any one ever took in a heavier-than-air craft, Major Carl Spatz, flight commander, and his mates gave no indication of being bested and signified their intention of landing only when the motors were out.

Aim for Still Another Record.

Having far eclipsed previous world's records for sustained flight in a heavier-than-air machine, the next goal was to beat the existing mark for lighter-than-air craft, established when the dirigible Graf Zeppelin made its notable journey last year from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., requiring 111 hours and 46 minutes.

Distance has been no object in the flight of the Question Mark, which circles around over Southern California, taking aboard fuel, food and supplies at intervals, but if it had started in a straight line eastward, army men estimated the plane would have been passing over Europe today.

The plane returned to Los Angeles this afternoon after having flown since yesterday over the Imperial Valley, close to the Mexican border, where it was driven by fog along the coast.

En route from the Imperial Valley airport, the refueling plane No. 1 poured 100 gallons of gasoline into the endurance ship's tanks.

A note was dropped by Major Spatz here ordering the delivery of food and more fuel at 4:30 P. M. He also asked for a refueling at midnight.

Improved weather conditions were proving an aid to the flight, army men said.

Captain R. G. Hoyt, pilot of refueling plane No. 1, made three contacts with the Question Mark before his return here. At 6:30 A. M. he delivered 150 gallons of gasoline and again shortly before 10 A. M. he took off from the new Imperial airport and transferred another 150 gallons.

"They're all happy up there," Captain Hoyt said. "Seem to be feeling good and everything running fine."

A pursuit plane dropped breakfast to the fliers, consisting of oranges, oatmeal and coffee, and supplied twenty-five gallons of oil through a contact hose.

Observer Flies Alongside.

From a point 3,000 feet above ground an expert engineer made the first official observation of the motors of the Question Mark today and landed with the information that they were "all right."

Accompanied by an Associated Press staff correspondent, W. E. Thomas, expert of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, which built the Question Mark's motors, made the inspection. His flight alongside the army ship lasted half an hour.

RICKARD VERY LOW AFTER SUDDEN TURN

Midnight Crisis Starts Fight for Promoter's Life at Miami Beach Hospital.

HE IS OPERATED UPON AGAIN

But Fails to Rally—Dr. William Mayo, Called, Replies That He Could Not Help.

By The Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Saturday, Jan. 5.—George L. ("Tex") Rickard, the head of Madison Square Garden, was believed to be near death at Allison Hospital, Miami Beach, this morning.

The promoter, who underwent an operation Tuesday evening for appendicitis, suddenly took a decided turn for the worse at midnight and physicians were working to save his life.

At 12:45 A. M. Mr. Rickard was gradually growing weaker, after a second operation had been performed late at night. The statement was made at the hospital by authority of Dr. H. E. Atkins, who is in charge of the case.

Dr. Atkins performed the first operation upon Rickard Tuesday night, removing the appendix. Rickard had been taken to the hospital Tuesday afternoon after he had complained that morning of suffering from a severe pain in his right side. He had believed at first that he had suffered an attack of indigestion.

Cable Sent to Dr. Mayo.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—Dr. William J. Mayo of Mayo Brothers' Hospital, Rochester, Minn., was summoned by cable to the bedside of George L. (Tex) Rickard at Allison Hospital here tonight by Dr. E. H. Atkins, attending physician, who operated on the sports promoter New Year's Day for appendicitis.

Richard had spent an uncomfortable day when the decision was reached to call the Minnesota physician from Cuba, where he is now on a vacation trip.

No one but Mrs. Rickard is permitted as a visitor, but Rickard was reported to have brightened considerably when she called at his room tonight.

Jack Dempsey, who arrived here this evening, expressed deep concern over Rickard's illness and a desire to see him, but was informed that this would be impossible. Jack said his thoughts for the present were centred in Tex's recovery.

Dr. Atkins, who has given practically all of his time to this case, formerly was on the Mayos's staff, practicing abdominal surgery.

He issued the following statement tonight:

"I have cabled Dr. Will Mayo, with whom I was associated for years, and who is now in Cuba, to come here for a few days for consultation. Mr. Rickard's condition, although serious, as it has been, is not alarming. Mrs. Rickard has just come from the hospital and he is much more cheerful tonight."

Many suggestions of the services of various noted specialists have been received from New York.

Dr. Mayo Refuses to Go.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 4 (AP).—El Mundo tonight quoted Dr. William Mayo as saying he would not go to the bedside of Tex Rickard.

In a telephone conversation with the newspaper the specialist, who is touring Oriente Province, declared, the newspaper said, that in his opinion Rickard's condition was such that his services would be of no benefit.

Death Rumors Spread Here.

As early as 10 o'clock last night the report was circulated on Broadway that Rickard had died, and from then on newspaper offices were besieged with calls asking if the report was true. There also were rumors to the effect that a second operation had been performed and that the promoter had been unconscious since late afternoon.

VAN SWERINGENS ACT TO FIGHT THE P. R. R. ON EASTERN MERGER

B. & O. to Join Them in Plea to I. C. C. for Leave to Buy Lines Vital to Trunk Plans.

MAY SPEED BIG PROJECTS

Open Break in Prospect With Road That Has Opposed Major Consolidations.

CENTRAL FACING PRESSURE

It Would Be Forced to Declare Stand on Proposal to Make Negotiations Public.

A slumbering dispute among executives who have sought to merge Eastern railroads worth from $5,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 into four trunk lines has culminated in an open break. Two of the parties at interest have decided to appeal in their own behalf to the Interstate Commerce Commission and through that body to the general public for definite action on railroad consolidation. If their plan succeeds, the solution of the Eastern situation may be advanced by years.

This was learned yesterday through the disclosure that the Van Sweringen interests and the Baltimore & Ohio planned to ask the commission for permission to acquire, though not to consolidate, certain railroads which they will argue should be aligned with the two systems. This will be a public declaration of hostilities against the Pennsylvania, which in its attitude toward consolidation has long provoked the ire of the Van Sweringens. It will, however, leave the way open for the New York Central to join forces with the two protestants.

The conflict between the aims of the Pennsylvania and of the Van Sweringens and Baltimore & Ohio interests has been apparent for some time. In this situation the New York Central has remained neutral. By demanding control of roads desirable to the New York Central, the other two interests hope to force that system to take a position on one side or the other.

Would Revive Eastern Project.

The plan of the brothers O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen and the Baltimore & Ohio is to revive the scheme for Eastern consolidation to which the Pennsylvania objected in 1923 and to ask the commission to approve this plan under Paragraph 2 of Section 5 of the Interstate Commerce act as amended by the Transportation act. Disregarding Paragraph 4, which directs the commission to devise a national railroad consolidation, the Van Sweringens and the Baltimore & Ohio will maintain that the commission can approve an Eastern alignment without awaiting development of a larger scheme.

The Van Sweringens and the B. & O. want the commission to pass upon the public interest at stake in a merger of Eastern roads on the lines they suggest. If the commission accedes, all moves in the consolidation would become public knowledge, instead of as they have been, deliberations behind closed doors.

In the proposed appeal to the commission the Van Sweringens would act through the Chesapeake & Ohio. Last year they asked the commission to approve merging the Pere Marquette and Erie with the C. & O. Previously, they attempted to merge these roads with the Nickel Plate. After rejecting the first Nickel Plate merger plan, the commission last year allowed merger of the C. & O. and Pere Marquette on designated terms, but disapproved inclusion of the Erie.

Seek to Acquire Many Roads.

Now the Van Sweringens would ask the commission to allow the C. & O. to acquire the Nickel Plate, Pere

Mexican Hunts Apache Band To Recover Kidnapped Son

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Jan. 4 (AP).—Francisco Pimores, a Mexican cattleman, today led a searching party into the mountains south of here in search of a band of Apache Indians which attacked the family, killed his wife and kidnapped his young son in October, 1926.

Governor Fausto Topete of Sonora authorized a searching party at Agua Prieta, across the border from here, to hunt down and wipe out the Indian band.

The Apaches are descendants of the Geronimo band which forty years ago terrorized Southern Arizona. The band was dispersed after many had been captured by United States soldiers. The few who escaped established a fortified camp deep in the Mexican mountains. Pimores believes that his boy is alive and is being raised by the Indians.

MERGER IS APPROVED BY R. C. A. AND VICTOR

Boards Accept Terms Uniting $626,540,000 Concerns to Advance Reproducing Art.

RADIO VOTES 5 TO 1 SPLIT

Phonograph Stockholders Get One Share of Common, One of $5 'B' Preferred and $5 Cash.

The directors of the Radio Corporation of America and of the Victor Talking Machine Company at separate meetings yesterday in New York and Camden, N. J., approved the terms of the merger between the two companies, the securities of which have an aggregate market value of $626,540,000 on the New York Stock Exchange. The directors of the Radio Corporation also approved a five-for-one split-up of their common stock and the issuance of a new series of $5 cumulative "B" no-par preferred stock.

Under the terms of the merger, one share of new Radio common stock, one share of new Radio $5 preferred stock and $5 in cash will be distributed in exchange for each share of Victor common stock. The Victor preferred stocks are to be retired under the plan.

In over-the-counter trading yesterday, following the close of the Stock Exchange, new Radio common stock sold from 83 to 85½ a share and the new preferred at 72 to 77 a share, indicating a market value of 160 to 167 a share for the Victor shares under the exchange basis, announced after the market close. The final quotation for Victor stock was 154 a share, up 6¼ points on the day, while Radio common closed at 395, down 2 points.

Victor Subsidiaries in Merger.

The unification of the Radio Corporation and of the Victor Talking Machine Company includes the holdings of the Victor company in subsidiary and associated companies throughout the world, including the Gramophone Company, Ltd., England, the Victor Talking Machine Company of Canada, Ltd., and the Victor Talking Machine Company of Japan, Ltd.

The trade marks "Victor," "Victrola" and "His Master's Voice" will be retained, and all contracts and licensing agreements of both companies prior to the merger will remain intact. It is expected that President Edward E. Shumaker will become an officer of the Radio corporation in charge of the Victor division and that his staff will be retained largely as now constituted.

Approval of the merger by stockholders will be obtained through the deposit of Victor stock in favor of the merger agreement, it is understood, and by the calling of a meeting of Radio stockholders to approve the terms. The directors of the Radio Corporation at yesterday's meeting voted the issuance of about 6,590,000

WHALEN LIQUOR WAR PRESSED AS TUTTLE PLEDGES FEDERAL AID

78 More Speakeasies Raided as Police Campaign Goes On to Show It Is Not 'Spasmodic.'

STRONG-ARM MEN AT WORK

Commissioner and Prosecutor in Compact to Fight Rum and Drugs and Ease Courts.

NOT TRYING TO DRY UP CITY

But Whalen Promises No Quarter for Places Selling Poison—Suits for Arrests in Round-Up Threatened.

Less than three weeks have passed since Grover A. Whalen became Commissioner of Police, and in that time, he revealed yesterday, the men of his department have raided 563 alleged speakeasies, establishing a record which has not been equaled since the Mullan-Gage act was repealed five years ago.

Still the commissioner was not satisfied. He urged his men to greater activity, lest their efforts be misinterpreted as "spasmodic," and announced, after receiving a pledge of support from the Federal authorities at a luncheon conference with United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, that the drive would be extended to include traffickers in drugs as well as liquor.

Jail sentences would be sought for all offenders of the nation's laws, Mr. Whalen said, adding that Mr. Tuttle had obtained the promise of three Federal judges to hold criminal terms at once to handle the increased volume of trials. Poison liquor cases will come first, it was said. Last night it began to look as if the reinforcements would be needed.

Raids on Resorts Continue.

Heeding the commissioner's warning that there must be no abatement in the war against the speakeasy which Mr. Whalen and Mr. Tuttle had agreed was a "breeding place of crime and a menace to the health and morals of the community," detectives last night continued their raids on resorts all around the town. Before midnight detectives attached to divisional headquarters had raided seventy-eight alleged speakeasies, seized three large stills in one place and nearly 300 barrels of beer in another. Many of the raids were executed in Harlem, but the police activities extended from the Battery to the Bronx and across the river into Brooklyn.

Mr. Whalen, Chief Inspector John O'Brien and Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney met Mr. Tuttle and three of the latter's assistants, John Blake, George T. Mintzer and Robert Watts, charged, respectively, with enforcing laws relating to narcotics, crimes against the government and prohibition, at the Lawyers' Club at 1:45 P. M. The pledge of cooperation and the broadening of the drive to include vendors of drugs were not the only fruits of the meeting.

The Police Commissioner and the Federal prosecutor, for one thing, agreed that whereas the sale of straight wood alcohol for beverage purposes was a State and not a Federal offense, the sale of intoxicating liquor containing the poison was a violation of the laws of the nation as well as the State and that the forces of both should be used to "destroy the places where the latter is sold and to imprison the sellers."

Leaving the question of whether liquor cases are to be prosecuted in the State or the Federal courts, it was decided that care should be taken lest one man's freedom be twice jeopardized and that the elaborate machinery of padlock suits be invoked only where evidence of illegal sale is strong and not for the easily-established "possession." Regarding the control of narcotics, it was decided that henceforth Federal agents and the police are to aid each other actively, exchanging photographs and Bertillon measurements of prisoners.

Says He Got Murder Evidence.

In addition, Mr. Whalen said "valuable evidence" in connection with two or three recent murders in which drugs played a part had been brought to his attention by Mr. Tuttle and probably would play an important part in bringing the slayers to justice. Also, as a result of the conference, he felt sure that past mistakes of the police in making arrests for the Federal authorities would not be repeated, but to make sure of that, the commissioner said, Mr. Tuttle had arranged to deliver a lecture upon the prohibition law and legal evidence to captains of the Police Department next Monday.

To relieve congestion in the Federal courts Mr. Whalen said, both he and Mr. Tuttle agreed that where it was possible to do so safely, advantage would be taken of Thursday's decision of the Court of Appeals, upholding the State nuisance statute as applying to speakeasies. In narcotic cases, the commissioner said, addicts would be turned over to city and State institutions for care, but vendors of drugs would be tried before United States judges because of the tendency of the Federal courts to mete out longer sentences.

Suits for Arrest Threatened.

But, while all these details of cooperation were being worked out be-

Liberals Ridicule Foes in Campaign Songs; Have Other American Devices for Election

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Liberal party has stolen a march on its labor and conservative opponents by preparing a book of campaign songs for use in the coming electoral struggle. Even though the elections are five months distant, the Liberals are busy inventing slogans, testing tunes, thinking up catchwords and devising new methods for capturing votes.

They have received many ideas from America, but just what these are the Liberals are not telling. It is recalled that the Liberals sent over official observers to watch the Hoover-Smith campaign in the hope of finding new election methods across the Atlantic. One observer drew up a long report for Lloyd George's personal use, and the contents of that report have been kept secret.

At least it is evident that the Liberals have remembered "East Side, West Side," and they are attaching importance to rousing popular songs. "Jix," or Sir William Joynson-Hicks, is among the politicians lampooned in the forthcoming Liberal libretto. Here is one about Stanley Baldwin in which the Premier is compared to Disraeli to his own disadvantage:

Does any one know why I took this job on?
No, nobody seems to know.
Where the good things that I promised have gone?
No, nobody seems to know.
Does any one know why I bungled the biz?
Or why, though I try, I'se so little like Dis?
Does any one know what my policy is?
No, nobody seems to know.

The Tory and the Red fare equally badly at the hands of Liberal verse writers. Whether or not composing new songs and writing parodies can win an election, the Liberals at least are determined to try out this method.

Gorham Co. and Black, Starr & Frost to Merge; 5th Av. Silver and Jewelry Shops Negotiating

Negotiations are under way for the merger of two of the most exclusive stores in the Fifth Avenue shopping district, the Gorham Company, Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, a retail store of the Gorham Manufacturing Company, silversmiths and goldsmiths, and its neighbor, Black, Starr & Frost, jewelers, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street, it was announced yesterday. It is understood that Aldred & Co., 40 Wall Street, are conducting the negotiations.

The proposed merger, which will combine the retail establishment of one of the most famous silversmiths in the country with one of the oldest jewelry firms in New York, will not take definite shape until the Gorham concern closes its fiscal year on Jan. 31, according to Doremus & Co., 44 Broad Street, through whom the announcement was made.

The firm of Black, Starr & Frost dates back to 1810, when New York's population was less than 100,000. In that year, Isaac Marquand and Erastus Barton opened an unpretentious little shop at 166 Broadway, from which grew the present establishment.

The Gorham Manufacturing Company, with general offices in Providence, R. I., was incorporated in May, 1863, having been in business since 1831. The company's products include sterling and silver-plated ware, statuary, architectural bronze and ecclesiastical ware. It owns the entire capital stock of the Gorham Company, its selling agents.

The report of the Gorham Manufacturing Company for the year ended Jan. 31, 1928, showed a net income of $813,706 after interest, depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, equivalent, after 7 per cent preferred dividend requirements on 36,153 shares of stock, to $8.49 a share earned on 89,475 shares of no par value common stock. This compared with a net income of $842,446, or $8.85 a share on 97,439 common shares, in the preceding year.

POPULAR MAT. TODAY, "SHOW BOAT." Ziegfeld production. Ziegfeld Theatre.—Advt.

tween Mr. Whalen and Mr. Tuttle, several developments of a less pleasant nature took place elsewhere. In Brooklyn a lawyer for six prisoners discharged by Magistrate Hirshfield for lack of evidence threatened to bring suit for "unlawful arrest" against whoever was responsible for issuing the round-up order of last week-end.

Samuel Liebowitz of 66 Court Street was the lawyer. He had been defending six men seized in the Kewpie Social Club, New Utrecht Avenue and Seventy-first Street, Brooklyn, and held on "suspicion of robbery."

"I am still investigating to see who ordered these raids all over the city and I am going to start suit on behalf of my clients as soon as I find out," he said.

"Why, Police Commissioner Whalen issued the order himself," remarked the Magistrate, who has issued three statements criticising the commissioner's "treat 'em rough" policy. "He announced it in all the newspapers."

Also in Brooklyn the police struck another snag in the office of United States Attorney William E. Groot, where two prisoners arrested by the police in a raid on the Tom-hoy Club, Lenox Road and Flatbush Avenue, were released because the police search was "illegal." The club was padlocked for six months last March by Federal Judge Moscowitz and the officers of Inspector Thomas P. Cummings's staff had brought along nine bottles of amber-colored liquid, alleged to have been ale, to support their contention that Federal laws were being flouted.

One other reverse was recorded during the day, when Justices Kernochan, McInery and Direnzo released, in $500 bail each, two men with long records, sentenced to spend 100 days in the workhouse as vagrants in the West Side Court on Wednesday. They were William Fine and Albert Fein.

Makes a Personal Tour.

Aside from these developments the day went smoothly for the new Commissioner. Continuing his policy of keeping an eye on things himself, he strolled down Fifth Avenue from Sixty-second Street to his home in Fifth Avenue at Eleventh Street a little after 1 A. M. yesterday morning. On his walk he passed twenty-four policemen, all alertly patrolling their beats, Mr. Whalen said, adding that not one was smoking, chatting or otherwise violating any of the regulations for their behavior.

Arriving at his office a little after 8 o'clock in the morning, the Commissioner attended the line-up, at which forty-eight prisoners were paraded before more than 100 detectives. There were suspected bandits and old criminals present, together with a young bank clerk accused of stealing $19,000 from the Colonial Bank, Broadway and Seventy-ninth Street.

Floyd Moran of 3,117 Broadway was the accused clerk, and questioning revealed that $16,000 had been recovered and a promise to restore the remainder had been made. Mr. Whalen expressed satisfaction with the work of his detectives, and then returned to his office.

There he announced the appointment of Dr. Ralph Colp of 164 West Seventy-ninth Street as a police surgeon, declared that he was satisfied with the work of his narcotic division and was contemplating no change in its personnel or organization.

The "gunmen's squads," or strong-arm gangs as they were called originally, he said, went forth to battle with gangsters and gunmen Thursday night, but found no knights of the underworld with whom to joust, and finally were turned loose against two speakeasies to keep them from going stale. They would be on the job again last night, Mr. Whalen said, just to make sure that the crooks stayed "on the run."

No Quarter for Speakeasies.

The Commissioner was asked if he expected to make the whole town dry, and he replied that he was embarking on no such quixotic career, but that he intended to show no quarter to speakeasies which menaced health with poison liquor and public safety by poisoned morals. The answer as he gave it at first was not for publication, but it found its way into print in the afternoon, whereupon Mr. Whalen made it official by repeating in substance what he had said before.

Apparently unaware of Mr. Whalen's attitude on the nuisance law, Inspector Cummings issued a formal statement in Brooklyn declaring that prosecution of speakeasy proprietors under the State law, was an unwieldly, uncertain procedure, while the Federal laws provided a surer, quicker way.

"Where we can grab the neck of a bottle with one hand and the neck of a seller or owner with the other," he said, "we will do it and proceed under the Federal law. Where we have to use the nuisance law to get rid of them, we'll use that."

Mr. Whalen had no comment to make upon his subordinate's remarks. Instead, he issued an order that inspectors leave discussion of policies to him. Later he learned that Frederick Kenny, the city chemist, was reporting the findings of his analysis of confiscated liquor to the Federal authorities and directed that henceforth the police be informed of the quality of liquor they seized.

78 RAIDS CLOSE SPEAKEASIES.

Whalen's Renewed Drive Covers Bronx, Manhattan and Brooklyn.

All along the liquor front from the Battery north to the Bronx and across the river in Brooklyn, the attacking army of Divisional Inspectors' detectives resumed the offensive last night and early this morning, consolidated their gains of the previous evening and made more captures of liquor and prisoners. By early evening seventy-eight more speakeasies had been raided and closed, three places where large stills were in operation had been seized and a store of beer and ale seized in another place. More than one hundred prisoners were taken into custody, most of them being charged with possession of liquor, while some were charged with both sale and possession.

The attacking forces redoubled their efforts along the Harlem sector, where men of Inspector Thomas Ryan's Sixth Division mopped up sixteen speakeasies. At the same time the plainclothes men in the lower part of the city were active, the squad of Chief Inspector John M. O'Brien joining forces with the men from Inspector Edward Quinn's and David J. McAuliffe's staffs in raiding the "smoke" houses and places where the price of liquor reaches the minimum.

In every case the detectives took sufficient liquor to produce as evidence at the court hearings and also to send samples to the city toxicologist for analysis.

That the repeated thrusts of Commissioner Whalen's forces have produced concrete results within the last forty-eight hours was evidenced last night, when a tour of one section of the city showed that scores of speakeasies had closed of their own volition sooner than have the experience of being visited by the none too gentle raiding parties.

Three potential sources of supply were seized in the Bronx, where Inspector George Liebler's men raided a house at 1,020 Aden Avenue and found a 300-gallon still, and Inspector Thompson's men found two stills, one of 500 gallons and the second of 500 gallons, in operation in houses at 1,953 and 1,955 Gildersleeve Avenue.

At the Aden Avenue place the man operating the still ran out as the detectives came in and several shots were fired at him. He escaped. At the Gildersleeve Avenue houses the four men operating the stills there were arrested. The detectives found they had cut in on the house gas connection to supply fuel for the stills and an engine company was called to shut off the supply.

In Brooklyn a large seizure of beer and ale was made by men of Deputy Chief Inspector Thomas P. Cummings's staff, who raided a garage in the rear of 279-281 Euclid Avenue. Five arrests were made and 267 half barrels of beer and 100 cases of Canadian ale were taken. The men were all booked at the Liberty Avenue police station.

Places raided in lower Manhattan by men of Inspectors O'Brien, McAuliffe and Quinn's staffs were: 197 William Street, 147 Park Row, 155 Park Row, 75 Baxter Street, 81 Baxter Street, 61 Pike Street, 118 First Avenue, 435 East Sixth Street, 164 West Tenth Street, 59 Grove Street, 95 West Houston Street.

Other places raided by Inspector McAuliffe's men were 31 Chambers Street, 271 Bowery, 272 Bowery, 17 Stanton Street, 32 Stanton Street, 251 Division Street, 100 Columbia Street and 55 East Fourth St.

In the midtown section Inspector Joseph P. Loonan's staff made seizures and arrests at 200 West Eighty-second Street, 504 Columbus Avenue, 722 Tenth Avenue, and 552 West Fifty-first Street.

Other places raided were 127 West Seventy-second Street, 105 West Seventieth Street, 128 West Seventy-fourth Street, 42 West Ninety-fourth Street and 219 West 104th Street.

In the midtown district, east of Fifth Avenue men from Inspector Patrick J. McCormick's Fourth Division raided 151 East Forty-first Street, 634 Third Avenue and 143 East Thirty-third Street.

In the early morning hours Inspector McCormick's men made arrests at 65 East Fifty-fourth Street, 214 East Fifty-ninth Street, 686 Third Avenue, 406 East Seventy-third Street, 225 East Ninety-ninth Street, 244 East Ninetieth Street, 78 East 115th Street, 1,887 First Avenue, 1,697 Lexington Avenue, 182 East 108th Street.

The Washington Heights section was covered by detectives of the staff of Inspector William H. Day of the Fifth Division and the speakeasies raided there included 159 West Ninety-ninth Street, 500 West 130th Street, 500 West 132d Street, 500 West 134th Street and 526 West 131st Street.

The full force of Inspector Thomas Ryan's Sixth Division was spread out over Harlem as soon as the sun set and thereafter throughout the evening and early morning prisoners and liquor poured into the police stations throughout the division. The places raided included 21 West 136th Street, 113 West 132d Street, 107 West 133d Street, 2,172 Fifth Avenue, 2,853 Eighth Avenue, 650 Lenox Avenue, 2,377 Eighth Avenue, 584 Lenox Avenue, 2,475 Eighth Avenue, 101 West 132d Street, 506 Lenox Avenue, 1 East 116th Street, 1,465 Fifth Avenue, 28 East 127th Street, 254 East 125th Street, and 2,183 Fifth Avenue.

In the Bronx men of Inspector Thompson's staff made several arrests and seized a considerable quantity of liquor. The places raided were 283 Morris Avenue, 253 East 133d Street, 2,581 Third Avenue, 381 East 137th Street, 325 Cypress Avenue. At the Third Avenue place an additional charge of violating the Sullivan law was made against the man arrested when the detectives found he had a large knife in his possession.

In Brooklyn the detectives of Inspector David Kane's division in the midtown section made raids at 65 St. Felix Street and 271 Carlton Avenue, while Inspector Thomas McDonald's men raided 252 Hamilton Avenue. Liquor and prisoners were taken at all three places.

In the same borough men under Inspector Vincent Sweeney of the Fourth Division made arrests and seized liquor at 1,460 Gates Avenue, 1,426 Gates Avenue and 237 Starr Street.

Other places in Harlem visited by the raiders were 2,224 Eighth Avenue, 161 Lenox Avenue and 106 West 128th Stret. At the last named place the detectives found a fifteen-gallon still and seventy-five gallons of locally manufactured whisky.

Other arrests made during the early morning hours were at 648 Ninth Avenue and 129 Greenwich Street.

20 RESORTS PADLOCKED.

34 Individuals, Six of Them Women, Named in Two Decrees.

Padlock decrees against twenty liquor-selling resorts, each of which is ordered closed for one year, were obtained yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney Aaron Shapiro. The decrees were delivered to United States Marshal William C. Hecht for execution today.

The thirty-four individuals named in the decrees include six women. The places to be padlocked include a drug store, a so-called "Elks' Restaurant" and an "Actors' Inn." The individual defendants and the resorts involved are:

Daniel O'Keefe and Joseph Kunts, 1,343 Second Avenue; Emil Kern, 2,106 La Fontaine Avenue, the Bronx; James Penna, 830 East 149th Street, the Bronx; John Murphy and Patrick Griffin, 317 East Forty-seventh Street; Shapiro's Pharmacy, Joseph Shapiro, Mrs. J. Shapiro and Aaron Necker, 820 Amsterdam Avenue; Theodore Miller, August Miller and Eddie Miller, 1,501 Third Avenue; Rose Baum, also known as Rosie Brown, and Tillie Bowers, 530 East 176th Street, the Bronx; Joseph Ockerman, 679 Courtlandt Avenue, the Bronx; Amelia Salvatore, 26 South Street; Frank Bertoncello and Alfredo Bertonello, 355 West Forty-sixth Street; Frank Duffin, 9 Bridge Street, New Rochelle; Riks Restaurant, Mack McKinney, 106 West 141st Street; Irving Friedman and Morris Shapiro, 781 Sheridan Avenue, the Bronx; Brender McGrath and John Tobin, 355 East 157th Street, the Bronx, and Abe Kobner, 2-4-6 Forsyth, or 61 Henry Street.

78 UP ON LIQUOR CHARGES.

Prisoners of the Police to Get a Federal Hearing on Jan. 25.

Seventy-eight defendants, taken to the Federal Building by policemen for alleged violations of the prohibition law, were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Cotter. All were released in $500 bail each except three men who were charged with selling liquor. Their bail was fixed at $1,000 each. All were told to appear for hearings on Jan. 25.

Charles Korn of 2,454 Grand Concourse, the Bronx; Otto Jensen of 2,622 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, and Joseph White of 434 West 204th Street were the defendants charged with selling liquor. Korn is alleged to have sold one drink of whisky to Patrolman John Lafferty of the Nineteenth Division and White and Jensen are charged with having sold beer to Patrolman John Sasek of the same division.

Patrolman William Schmittes of the Sixth Division brought in six men whom he had arrested on Thursday night. They are John King, 209 East 124th Street; Frank Hunt, 166 East 119th Street; Andrew Richardson, 28 West 133d Street; Thomas Kelly, 104 East 121st Street; William Forino, 2,264 First Avenue, and Joseph Malico, 2,321 Second Avenue.

INSISTS M'MANUS KILLED ROTHSTEIN

Banton Believes the Prisoner Fired Fatal Shot—Hears Biller Will Surrender.

DRUG RING DATA AWAITED

Sentence Deferred as Unger Is Reported About to Link the Slain Gambler to Narcotics.

"You can tell the whole world that I believe George A. McManus shot Arnold Rothstein," District Attorney Banton announced yesterday in confirming the statement of Police Commissioner Whalen the day before that the prosecutor knew that it was McManus who fired the shot. "I won't discuss it any further than that," the District Attorney added.

Mr. Banton has maintained silence on whom he believed to have fired the shot which killed Rothstein in the Park Central Hotel since the grand jury on Dec. 4 last, one month exactly after the shooting, returned the first degree murder indictment charging McManus, now in the Tombs, and the missing Hyman (Gillie) Biller and "John Doe" and "Richard Roe" with participation in the shooting.

He said yesterday that nothing had taken place in the preparation of the evidence for the trial of McManus which would warrant further statements by him.

The police were confident that Biller either would be arrested or would surrender within a few weeks. It was said that the police search had been close to him, and that he had been in touch with friends in this city within the last few days seeking advice on the best means for him to surrender so that, like McManus, he could be brought to the District Attorney's office, and not to Police Headquarters.

Biller was the "payoff man" for McManus at race tracks, and it is known that the police believe that he could reveal the motive for the shooting and who fired the shot.

There were indications yesterday that the Federal authorities might uncover proof of Rothstein's connection with an international ring of drug smugglers. These indications were contained in reports that Joseph Unger, one of Rothstein's former close friends and who pleaded guilty several weeks ago to placing $3,000,000 in drugs on a train at the Grand Central Terminal, was about to tell of his relations with Rothstein and others in the ring.

Unger was to be sentenced by Federal Judge Winslow yesterday, but his sentence was deferred until Monday forenoon, after conferences between his lawyers, Henry Stern of Buffalo and J. Arthur Adler, former Assistant Federal Prosecutor, with Assistant Federal Prosecutor Blake. Unger previously had been in conference with his lawyers.

Unger is liable to imprisonment of twelve years in a Federal penitentiary. He escaped a twenty-seven-year term as a second offender by entering the guilty plea and it was said yesterday that he is considering a full confession to Federal Prosecutor Tuttle with a view to cutting the sentence down a little more. It was believed that the sentence might not be imposed for several weeks.

NEW ROTHSTEIN HOTEL SUIT

Bostonians File Second Foreclosure Action Against the Fairfield.

A second foreclosure suit against the Fairfield Hotel in West Seventy-second Street, owned by the late Arnold Rothstein, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by J. Henry Neal and others of Boston on allegations that under an agreement in 1926 they advanced $200,000 on a second mortgage covering the property at 20 to 28 West Seventy-second Street, which was to be paid on Feb. 28 next.

The complaint alleges that the interest and payments of principal are unpaid, and that under the terms of the mortgage the plaintiffs have been compelled to make total payments of $42,750 to the New York Title and Mortgage Company, holder of the first mortgage, because the owner of the hotel had failed to make them. The plaintiff is suing for $242,750.

ARRESTS SUBWAY ROWDY.

Insurance Man Praised by Court for Taking a Drunk to Station.

David Dawson, insurance broker, of 116 West Ninety-sixth Street, was commended by Magistrate Flood in Yorkville court yesterday for forcibly removing an intoxicated man from an I. R. T. subway train, taking him to a police station for arrest and then appearing in court against him. Robert O'Brien, 40 years old, of 448 West Fifty-seventh Street, the subject of Dawson's attention, was sent to the workhouse for ten days in default of a $25 fine.

"It is time some of these subway drunks were given the right treatment and I'll make an example of this one," the Magistrate told Dawson. "If there were more citizens like you, the condition could be curbed quickly."

Dawson was sitting in a southbound east side local train shortly before noon yesterday when O'Brien, in the same car, became profane. Dawson rebuked him and returned to the perusal of his newspaper.

As the train drew into the Fifty-first Street Station, O'Brien staggered to his feet and attempted to assault an elderly man, Dawson said. The insurance broker grabbed the disturber by the collar and hurried him out of the train to the East Fifty-first Street police station, a half block away.

AIR MAIL FAILS TO PAY.

Loss Continues Despite Heavy Increase, Glover Reported.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Decrease of air mail postage rates from 10 to 5 cents an ounce has doubled the poundage carried but cut returns to the government in half, and postal officials see little hope of operating this business without a loss. This was the recent testimony, made public today, of W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, before a House subcommittee in urging a deficiency appropriation of $6,000,000 to take care of air mail transportation this fiscal year.

THE RECORD-BREAKING ARMY PLANE REFUELING IN MID-AIR.

mally and appeared as efficient as at the start of the flight," Mr. Thomas said on landing. "The log reports reveal a satisfactory performance which these engines should give for 400 or more hours under normal conditions."

It was observed that Major Spatz, the commander, appeared happy and cheerful, but that Captain Ealer, who was at the controls at the time, was haggard, but he was smiling.

All of the crew of refueling ship No. 1 were ordered to rest when they reached the Metropolitan Airport here after accompanying the Question Mark from Imperial Valley. They were relieved by refueling ship No. 2, piloted by Lieutenant Odas Moon.

Now Has Two World Records.

The five army officers manning the plane were flying over a course in Southern California that reached from here to the Mexican border, and another day of it will bring them up to the records set by the two famous dirigibles Dixmude and the Graf Zeppelin. If those records are beaten it will mean that for the first time in history a heavier-than-air machine has remained in sustained flight longer than a lighter-than-air craft, something once believed impossible.

The two world records now held by the Question Mark are the longest refueling flight and the endurance flight record for heavier than air machines. The refueling record was broken at 9:33 o'clock last night when the army plane exceeded by one hour the record of 60 hours and 7 minutes made in Belgium.

The sustained flight record of 65 hours and 25 minutes, held in Germany, was beaten by an hour at 12:52 A. M. today, at which time the Question Mark had been in the air 66 hours and 25 minutes. The old records must be broken by an hour to stand.

Continuance of the flight for a total of 500 hours was declared a possibility by army observers here, with the probable duration around 200 hours.

Army Congratulates Fliers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Messages were sent today by Secretary of War Davis, F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation and Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Chief of Staff, congratulating Major Carl Spatz, commander of the endurance plane Question Mark, on his record-breaking, refueling flight.

The message from Secretary Davis read:

"The smoothness of accomplishment of every phase of your remarkable and record flight has been a deserved reward for excellent plans, careful preparation and expert execution. To you, to your crew and to the Air Corps I extend personal and official congratulations."

Assistant Secretary Davis's message was as follows:

"Heartiest congratulations to you and your crew on breaking the world's endurance record. You are doing a magnificent piece of work of real value to military and commercial aviation, and reports here indicate that your flight is just beginning. More power to you."

General Summerall telegraphed as follows:

"To you and the crew of the record-breaking, record-making Question Mark, I extend hearty congratulations and best wishes. The skill demonstrated in the frequent refueling of your ship brings great credit to the participants and to the personnel, training and equipment of the entire Air Corps."

Records of the Dirigibles.

The present world record for duration of time in the air stands at a little under 112 hours, made by the Graf Zeppelin in its flight from Germany to this country two months ago.

This time was three and one-half hours longer than the record made by the British R-34, which, in July, 1919, flew from East Fortune, Scotland, to Mineola, L. I., a distance of 3,130 miles, in 108 hours.

The German built ZR-3, turned over to this country by the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, and now known as the Los Angeles, remained in the air eighty-one hours when it flew from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, a distance of 5,060 miles, in October, 1924. She was commanded on the flight by Dr. Hugo Eckener, who also commanded the flight of the Graf Zeppelin between these same points.

Lady Heath Flies to Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP).—Lady Mary Heath, British flier, en route to the Miami air meet, landed her De Haviland Moth plane here at 2:20 P. M. today. She flew from Savannah, where she was forced down by fuel exhaustion after reaching there from Fayetteville, N. C., via Charleston, S. C., this morning. Lady Heath will remain here overnight.

HONDURAN PRESIDENT LAUDS AMERICA'S AID

Retiring Executive Says Washington's Moral Support Helped to Overcome Revolution.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 4.—President Paz Barahona read before Congress today his last annual message, his term of office expiring on Jan. 31, President-elect Majia-Colindres takes office the next day. The document was considered here the most important in recent domestic history.

Referring to the civil war and the external troubles prevailing in Honduras four years ago the President paid high tribute to the United States.

"The government faced tenacious, terrible and sanguinary fighting for four months against Hondurans obsessed by partisan passion and feeding their ambitions through foreign forces who undoubtedly desired our exhaustion and ruin. The situation became so aggrevated that it was believed our republic was to go up in anarchy.

"Even Nature herself seemed to have conspired against us, for great swarms of locusts appeared to unite in hunger against the ruins caused by savage men."

"Our situation was indeed so difficult that no other nation on the planet had even a word of compassion or sympathy for poor Honduras, when the United States extended its friendly hand, giving moral support and contributing in saving us from a dangerous crisis and assuring us of the stability of our institutions.

"It is therefore only fair to state in most clear terms that if our country managed to come hale out of the disaster that threatened her it was in a large part due to the generous moral cooperation of the American Government, cooperation that at times was judged erroneously by misunderstanding, stultification or malice.

"It is also fair to state that the friendly action governing America's moral aid was due to the great efforts of George Summerlin, the American Minister to Honduras, who did not omit any means to show his affection for Honduras, which prompts me, as President and patriot, to give public thanks in the name of the Honduran people and the government over which I preside."

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 4.—The Honduran Minister in Washington communicated to his government today that the American government would recognize Dr. Majia-Colindres.

WILL TESTIFY ON ITALIA.

Swedish Flier Who Rescued Nobile Goes to Rome for Inquiry.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 4 (AP).—Captain Einar Lundborg, who in the Summer rescued General Nobile from the Arctic ice, left for Rome today on the invitation of the Italian Government to testify in the forthcoming investigation of the Italia disaster. With him went a Norwegian expert in Arctic meteorology, M. Hoel.

In his book about the Italia tragedy, which was published at Upsala, Sweden, just before Christmas, Captain Lundborg reiterated that he assumed entire responsibility for taking General Nobile from the ice ahead of his men.

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP).—Word from Stockholm that Captain Lundborg had departed for Rome called attention to the fact that the official inquiry was still under way. Official quarters, however, could not say how far the special commissioners have proceeded in their investigation.

It is understood that Captain Mariano and Captain Zappi, two members of the expedition, were heard by the investigators when they visited Rome recently.

TO INCREASE AIR CORPS.

War Department Will Put 330 More Fliers on Active Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—About 330 Air Corps Reserve officers and experienced civilian fliers will be placed on active duty for the fiscal year 1930 under plans announced by the War Department today. Ordinarily reserve officers receive fifteen days' active training, but under the five-year Air Corps program extended service of one and two years is permitted.

The officers will be recruited from graduates of the advanced flying school, the Air Corps Reserve and qualified civilian transport pilots who are not members of the Air Corps Reserve. No reserve officer above the grade of second lieutenant will be detailed to the active training, and all selected must have had extended experience with service types of planes.

HANGING IN DOUBT; JUDGES DISAGREE

Louisiana Chief Justice Grants a Stay for Mrs. Leboeuf and Dr. Dreher.

4 OTHERS ORDER EXECUTION

Sheriff, After Getting Conflicting Messages, Says He Will Await Instructions Today.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (AP).—Whether the hanging of Mrs. Ada Bonner Leboeuf and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher will take place as scheduled tomorrow at Franklin became cloaked in legal uncertainty tonight when Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill of the Louisiana Supreme Court granted a stay of execution and four Justices of the Supreme Court ruled that the hanging should be carried out.

The four justices, constituting a majority of the court, ordered the clerk of the court to inform Sheriff Pecot of St. Mary Parish to proceed with the hanging. The chief justice, however, held that the State Constitution empowered him to grant a stay of execution.

Chief Justice O'Neill declared he had power to issue the writ over the majority, while the four dissenting members—Justices Overton, Brunot, Rogers and Land—held that as a majority their decision was final.

Judge James D. Simon, the trial judge, who refused to stay at a hearing at Franklin to appoint a lunacy commission to determine the present sanity of the slayers, was ordered to appear before the Supreme Court to show cause why he should not appoint the commission.

Sheriff Pecot said tonight he would not definitely decide what his position would be until he received written orders from the Supreme Court tomorrow.

"I will make my decision tomorrow morning after the different writs are received," he said.

Judge Brunot tonight telephoned Sheriff Pecot that the Supreme Court had refused to hold up the hanging and ordered the sheriff to proceed with the executions.

"Let me talk to the sheriff," interrupted the chief justice.

"Don't execute those people tomorrow," he shouted into the mouthpiece. "One judge has the right to issue the writ and as chief justice of this court I order that the execution be stayed."

Last-minute efforts to save the condemned pair were carried to the Supreme Court in the form of writs, seeking to have the double hanging postponed until the court could decide whether Judge James D. Simon was correct earlier in the day in ruling the condemned pair sane.

The defense received its second rebuff of the week when Judge Simon before whom the original case was tried, denied an application for the appointment of a lunacy commission to determine the present sanity of the couple and thereby postponed their execution. He held the couple were now sane.

Meantime Sheriff Pecot began final preparations for the double hanging. He sent here for an executioner to spring the trap. He does not wish to officiate since he has become well acquainted with Dr. Dreher and Mrs. Leboeuf in their eighteen months' stay in the St. Mary Parish jail.

While the attorneys were acting, other efforts were being made to persuade Governor Long to reconsider his action in refusing commutation of the death sentence. Mrs. Dreher and two of her daughters drove to Baton Rouge to seek an audience with the Governor to make a personal plea, but after waiting two hours they returned to their Morgan City home.

Both Dr. Dreher and Mrs. Leboeuf were brought into the court room at Franklin, the doctor walking between the Sheriff and a guard, while a guard and four men brought Mrs. Leboeuf in on a cot.

The couple were convicted and sentenced for slaying the woman's husband, James J. Leboeuf, eighteen months ago.

British Score Wuhan's Seizures.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4 (AP).—The British Chamber of Commerce at Hankow unanimously adopted a resolution today condemning the recent action of the authorities of the Wuhan cities of Hankow, Wuchow and Hanyang in seizing the former Russian and German concessions. The resolution said that the result can only be the rapid depreciation of property and investment values. It described the action as arbitrary and illegal.

BLIZZARD IN FRANCE BRINGS DEATH TO 11

Marseilles Has Heavy Snowfall, the First in Many Years—Comunications Suffer.

TIBER FLOODS LOWER ROME

It Drives 800 From Their Homes in City and Invades Cellars of New Academy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The deaths precipitated by the present cold wave in France have increased to eleven, with five fatalities today. Though the temperature has not been extremely low, the atmospheric conditions, with a strong, penetrating wind, have caused many cases of congestion of the lungs and scores have been taken to hospitals in the past few days.

The region most seriously suffering is that of the Rhone Valley, which was swept by another blizzard today. Train service has been interrupted in many localities, through trains are greatly delayed and telephonic and telegraphic communications have been suspended, owing to the snapping of the wires and, in many instances, the collapse of the poles.

In the Mediterranean the storm is still serious in the region of Toulon and Hyères, and steamer service to the Hyères Islands is interrupted.

There was a light snowfall in Paris and a heavier one in the suburbs.

For the first time the crowds have witnessed the gendarmes directing traffic at the Place de L'Opera from a traffic tower, warming himself with an open-air electric stove provided by the municipality.

Six-Inch Snow in Marseilles.

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP).—Abundant falls of snow were reported from various sections of France today, Marseilles having a six-inch fall for the first time within the memory of its oldest inhabitants. At Marseilles, Toulon and in all that region snow has been falling steadily for forty-eight hours.

Even Biarritz saw snow, which is extremely rare, although rain is by no means unknown.

Dispatches from places along the Riviera said that the sea, stirred by a gale, had done a certain amount of damage. At Cannes the seafront was strewn with wreckage.

The snowfall in the Avignon region caused a delay in railroad communications between Paris and the southeast. Indications were that the cold wave would continue for several days.

Rome-Ostia Road Flooded.

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP).—Flood conditions in Italy have increased with recent heavy rains and the River Tiber has overflooded its banks in some quarters of the city.

During the day it was necessary at one place to transport a coffin by rowboat from a marooned house to a near-by church for the funeral service.

The automobile route between Rome and Ostia, known as "The Way of the Sea" has been transformed into a lagoon.

At least 800 persons have been driven from their homes in Rome and are being accommodated in "hotels for the unemployed" operated by the municipality. Military engineers are doing everything possible to bring aid to the inhabitants of stricken wards.

"Father Tiber" has even invaded the cellars of the Farnesina Palace which is being refurbished as the seat of the new Italian Academy.

PAPER SEES CHAOS IN INDIA.

London New Statesman Calls Recent Events There Very Significant.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The New Statesman, in an article entitled "Chaos in India," declares the events of the past week in India were more politically significant than at any time since the high tide of the non-cooperation movement of seven years ago.

The journal attacks Mahatma Gandhi's "palpably inane" resolution adopted by the national congress of the All Parties' Conference at Calcutta, calling for self-government for India within a year and otherwise threatening non-cooperation.

His promise of self-government within the year is precisely what he said repeatedly when preaching non-cooperation seven years ago, The New Statesman continues, and adds:

"It was ludicrous then; it is criminal now, for Gandhi has had overwhelming proof of the wildness of his idea. He has seen his Hindu-Moslem entente break up and had witnessed time and time again the misery that results whenever the Swarajists attempt to take him at his word.

"It is not the first time in its history the congress has been saved from a definite split by the personal influence of Gandhi. But a split is inevitable."

London Press Raps Postmaster.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Sir William Mitchell-Thompson, Postmaster General, has aroused a hornets' nest by his refusal to receive a deputation of newspaper interests who wish to protest against the action of the British Broadcasting Company in commencing publication of its second journal, issued weekly. The daily press is taking up the cudgels strongly for its weekly brethren. The newspapers object to the special privileges the broadcasting corporation has, such as free wireless advertising, freedom from income tax regulations, while the government collects its revenue from licenses.

GERMANY CONFIDENT OF FULL DEBT STUDY

Little Likelihood of Reich Not Attending Experts' Parley, Despite Press Campaign.

CALMER ON GILBERT REPORT

Berlin's Spokesman Links Agent General's Views to Rumors He Intends to Leave Post.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—The voice of the Wilhelmstrasse was heard today concerning S. Parker Gilbert's New Year's thesis upon the subject of German prosperity.

The voice of the German Reich, so far as foreign policy is concerned, may not be reported within quotation marks. But, as a result of listening to this voice for more than an hour, it is now possible to give some idea of the workings of the Wilhelmstrasse mind upon the subject of the forthcoming gathering of financial experts for the purpose of, perhaps, revising the total of the German reparations.

First and foremost, it is now possible to assert that, despite press fulminations of the past two days—and today—there is little or no likelihood of the German Government declining to send its own band of experts to sit at the council table, and that the spirit that has abided with the German delegation at Geneva ever since Germany joined the League of Nations still prevails.

Say Gilbert Is Leaving Post.

The experts' meeting at Paris is too great an opportunity to be overlooked, despite the report of the Agent General for Reparations Payments, or anything, and the voice of the Wilhelmstrasse explained, with considerable dry humor, that while its countenance was not exactly beaming, it was not weeping, either.

Next, admitting that the eyes of the Wilhelmstrasse had not yet studied the entire document carefully, it opined that it did not think that either the German or the allied press had given the Agent General's report a sufficiently attentive reading. In other words, the press of all nations had exaggerated Mr. Gilbert's findings to such an extent that not only were government circles disappointed, but in the local headquarters of the Dawes Plan organization itself there was a distinct feeling of worry.

The German governmental view, as now expressed, is that the Agent General for Reparations showed merely a natural desire to say as many flattering things as possible, inasmuch as he would soon definitely give up his position. But the suggestion that Mr. Gilbert has expressed such roseate views in order to prepare the American market for the placing of German bonds was scorned on the grounds that such procedure would only make his own position more difficult when he takes up, as is expected here, a high post with the Federal Reserve Bank.

Reich Expects Full Study.

It is strongly suggested, but as a private rather than as a governmental view, that the Dawes organization itself now considers the Reich able to continue the present payments, as outlined by the plan for perhaps only one more year, after which the plan is unworkable. Similarly, it is suggested that it was for this very reason that Mr. Gilbert made the original suggestion to call a new meeting of experts, such as that agreed upon at the last assembly of the League of Nations.

It is admitted that, naturally, if experts fail to reach a new agreement then they must fall back upon the Dawes Plan. However, the Wilhelmstrasse is now certain that the experts will investigate the entire situation much more thoroughly even than was done in Mr. Gilbert's exhaustive report.

Attempts to obtain a statement from the German Finance Minister are unavailing, due to the fact that that official intends to go into conference with Mr. Gilbert as soon as the latter returns, and he does not intend to say anything now to influence the situation.

Also, it is stated that the German Government has constantly pointed out that the financial experts should not be hampered from now on by expressions of the views of officials either on one side or the other. It is added that therefore the Reich has no intention of thus contradicting its own contention.

The definite appointment of the German experts will be published only next week, after the Chancellor's return.

Schacht Likely to Head Germans.

BERLIN, Jan. 4 (AP).—Political circles begin now to view more calmly the analysis of Germany's situation by S. Parker Gilbert, although it is still believed that he took an optimistic viewpoint.

The French conclusion that Germany can continue to pay the maximum reparations of 2,500,000,000 marks annually for a long time to come, is regarded as unwarranted by either the text of the report or by the personal attitude of Mr. Gilbert.

It was stated that Mr. Gilbert in talks with officials showed himself apparently convinced that Germany could not long continue to pay such a huge sum, as she would then be so drained economically as to provoke a crisis with grave danger to the stability of Germany and Europe.

It is regarded as certain that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht will head the German delegation to the expert's committee when it convenes on Feb. 5.

One Reserve Bank Post Filled.

In banking circles here yesterday it was said that mention of Mr. Gilbert's name in connection with a high post with the Federal Reserve Bank might refer to the vacancy in the governorship of the bank occasioned by the death in October of Benjamin Strong. His post was filled about six weeks ago by the election of George L. Harrison.

Mr. Gilbert has been mentioned at various times for a high post in the United States Treasury Department.

When asked, on his arrival in New York Thursday, about the reports of his intending to resign, Mr. Gilbert said that he did "not know of that."

MANHATTAN—

STRATEGY PLANNED BY SALVATIONISTS

General Booth May Appear at Council to Prove Fitness, It Is Reported.

RESIGNATION HELD UNLIKELY

Growth of Anti-American Feeling Is Denied—Melbourne Head Suspended for Criticism.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—There were rumors today that when the High Council of the Salvation Army meets on Tuesday to consider the fitness of General Bramwell Booth to retain his powerful position as head of the Army a dramatic manoeuvre will be executed. It is stated that the General, having been informed that the High Council has been summoned, is planning to prove his competence to carry on the administration of the Army by appearing before it, or at least by being present in the same building at Sunbury, where the council is to meet.

As the General is not a member of the High Council, he cannot attend it unless he is summoned. It is believed by many, however, that should he express a wish to appear before the council no objection could be raised and that were he able to address the assembly his remarks would have a determining influence on the decisions. It is felt by these persons, at any rate, that his presence in the same house would alone be sufficient to sway the balance in his favor.

The question, however, is whether the general, in his still enfeebled state of health could bear the strain of the four hours' journey by car from Southwold, where he is lying ill abed, to Sunbury. Medical opinion is against his taking such a risk, but one of the General's supporters declares that if it were a physical possibility the General would not hesitate to risk his personal well-being if he thought he could thereby benefit the Army.

Leaders of the party desiring a change in the constitution who heard that the General might make such a dramatic move were said to be frankly dismayed by its astuteness and to be making preparations to counteract it.

To Get Medical Report.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Both camps of the Salvation Army were busy today making advance plans for what is already being called the "Battle of Sunbury," which is to begin when the high council meets there next Tuesday.

London newspapers have said that the followers of General Bramwell Booth have prepared a bombshell to be hurled into the ranks of those advocating a change, who are led by Commander Evangeline Booth of the United States. Some have interpreted this to mean that the general would resign when the council convened, thus forestalling a vote declaring him physically unfit to continue in office. But this was not confirmed at international headquarters.

One prominent official there said: "If the general has made any such decision, we have heard nothing about it."

Against the resignation report an official of Miss Booth's party pointed out that this course would veto the general's right to choose his successor, to which the family has clung as an inalienable prerogative of the commander-in-chief.

It was understood that the council would receive a doctor's certificate on Tuesday describing the nature of the commander's illness. There was a feeling in those quarters advocating a change that if this certificate proved unsatisfactory to them, a medical opinion should be obtained from some other source.

Should Bramwell Booth be adjudicated fit to continue in office, he would have several methods for checkmating further attempts to change the constitutional way of choosing a leader. By resigning immediately he would place his nominee at the head of the Army, or he could wait until the councilors had returned to their posts and then resign.

Miss Booth Has Quiet Day.

Evangeline Booth passed a quiet day at her hotel headquarters after a week of long conferences. Some of these have lasted far into the night, being resumed early the next morning.

Miss Booth declined to comment on the statement which her brother made yesterday when he was first informed that the high council had been summoned. A member of her party reiterated that she and the entire American organization stood for the Army's international solidarity.

"There is no truth in the rumor that an anti-American feeling is spreading in army circles over here," this official said with emphasis.

The last four American delegates arrived tonight and were met by Commissioner Gifford. All delegates from distant parts of the world are now in London. Councilors from Continental Europe will arrive over the week-end. The visitors are staying with friends or at hotels in London, but all will be housed at Sunbury Court while the council is in session.

Evangeline Booth is not likely to be the next general of the Salvation Army, in the opinion of David C. Lamb, international social secretary, and one of the seven commissioners who requested the calling of the high council.

"If Commander Evangeline were elected general," he declared, "we might have to move international headquarters to the United States and that is not likely to happen. Commander Evangeline is needed and wanted in America. She is a splendid American herself, but above all, she is a fine internationalist and will carry far the torch of international cooperation."

Melbourne Head Suspended.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 4 (AP).—Brigadier Edward Slattery, divisional commander of the Melbourne central division of the Salvation Army, has been suspended from duty because of alleged criticism of members of the high council.

BERLIN COURT FREES 'EVER LOYAL' THUGS

It Releases 18, Regarding Fatal Attack on Carpenters as Prank Only.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Berlin's underworld considers it won a victory over the Police Department today when twenty members of the "Ever Loyal" association, which is said to be composed only of professional lawbreakers, were released.

The judges examined only a few of the number arrested and then ordered all except two to be set free on the ground that their affray with the Hamburg journeymen carpenters a few nights ago, in which one man was killed and several were severely injured, could not be considered either a disturbance of the peace or an attempt to inflict bodily injury, but was rather a willful prank.

The president of the "Ever Loyals," whose emblem of membership is a tuxedo, was held for further examination, along with another member wanted on other charges.

After the gangsters, wearing tuxedos and top hats, had made their attack on the Hamburgers in Berlin's east side, the police were scored for not being on the job. Now that the judges have freed these men the police are inclined to feel their efforts in rounding up dangerous gangs are useless. There are ugly rumors afloat that the gangs have sufficient strength to defy both the police and the courts and that the various organizations may unite and make war on the officials.

The "Ever Loyals" is only one of a score of similar organizations which are strong in membership and control large sums of money for the protection of their members.

Police Headquarters are receiving dozens of letters daily containing threats against the entire force detailed for duty in the east side.

LONDON THIEF STEALS INFLUENZA 'GERMS'

Bacteriologist Says Millions of Bacilli in Case Might Start Grave Epidemic.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—A thief has placed London in danger of an influenza epidemic. Dr. W. M. Crofton, bacteriologist, left tubes containing millions of influenza "germs" in a case in his motor car when he entered his club today and a thief took them.

If the tubes are broken, the doctor said, there is undoubtedly danger of an epidemic, that is, if they are broken in a sheltered place. In the open air the cold would probably kill the germs.

This is the culmination of a series of raids on doctors' motorcars in London in a few months. The suggestion has been made that narcotic drugs are sought by the thieves, but it is more probable some gang has special means for disposing of medical equipment.

ZEPPELIN FUEL ARRANGED.

American Company Solves Knotty Problem of Round-the-World Trip.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Fuel gas for the Zeppelin on her round the world trip contemplated for midsummer of this year will be supplied for the most part by the Standard Oil Company, according to a representative of the Zeppelin Company.

This arrangement, just concluded, solves one of the knottiest problems in the entire undertaking, since the transport of sufficient containers of this gas to Japan, where the first landing will be made, would have taxed to the utmost the shipping facilities from Hamburg to the Orient.

Fifty-thousand tubes are required for one filling of the fuel cells of the giant airship, and since ships are not allowed under international marine laws to carry that type of cargo in their holds, only 5,000 tubes could be carried on each ship as deck cargo.

The Standard Oil Company will send the fuel gas from one of its Pacific Coast plants to Japan on its own tankers.

The date of the departure on the 25,000-mile flight depends on the weather conditions in Russia and Siberia, and the Ural and Caucasus mountains are usually buried in heavy fogs until middle June, though it is most likely that the start will be made even later.

In the early Spring a trip to Africa with a visit to Cairo is planned. During the Winter only a few trips of two or three hours each will be undertaken for the purpose of making tests.

BRITISH RAILROADS PLAN BUS MERGER

Leaders Seek Agreement With Big Cities' Services—Would Buy Interurban Lines.

SHEFFIELD ACCEPTS OFFER

Unification of Transport Facilities Would Give Impetus to Railroads, It Is Predicted.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The British railroads, harassed by bus competition and worried by dwindling revenues, have now decided on the ambitious policy of buying all the bus lines of the municipalities along their routes.

The aim is to bring all land transport in Great Britain into a great railroad enterprise. This is the answer to the vigorous competition of the small independent bus companies and motor traction concerns, which have reached out to all the corners of England at the railroads' expense.

Now the biggest railroad systems in England—the London Midland Scottish and the London and North Eastern Companies—were revealed today to be working on a scheme of this character. Through joint committees they are approaching the city governments of such industrial centres as Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Huddersfield, Derby, Leicester and many others, and proposing a working agreement. At the head of these railroads are Sir Josiah Stamp and Sir Ralph Wedgewood, respectively, and any financial enterprise backed by these men is regarded as something to be reckoned with in present-day England.

The plan divides the municipal bus services into three classes: First, those within city limits; second, those serving small areas outside the boundaries, and third, the long interurban routes. The railroads are willing that some of the services in the first category should remain the property of the municipalities. Those in the second category would be owned and jointly operated by the cities and the railroads. Those in the third class the railroads are anxious to buy outright, for it is from these interurban buses that the most serious competition has come. The City of Sheffield has already agreed to such plans, and other cities are expected by the railroads to follow suit.

The Great Western Railway Company, which serves the mining districts of South Wales and the agricultural country in the southwest of England, announced last week that it had effected a $5,000,000 combination with one of its most powerful bus competitors in Devonshire. The directors are understood to be aiming at extensive mergers with other bus companies in the west of England.

If these bus deals go through there the business of railroading in England, it is predicted, will begin to look up after years of steadily increasing adversity.

RUMANIA REPORTED READY TO APPLY PACT

Would Make Anti-War Treaty With Russia—Moscow Denies Overtures to Bucharest.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 4.—Foreign Minister Mironescu communicated to certain foreign legations today Poland's request to be informed of Rumania's attitude to Soviet Russian approval of Rumania's attending the Polish-Russian negotiations over the Kellogg pact. After a conversation with Premier Maniu, M. Mironescu received an hour's special audience with the Regency. It is stated here that as a result of that audience Rumania has decided to reply that she is prepared herself to apply the terms of the Kellogg pact to Russia and that the legations previously seen were notified of this decision.

It was further stated that Rumania is prepared to begin direct negotiations with Russia with a view to the resumption of diplomatic relations, the personnel of any Russian delegation admitted being, however, limited in order to prevent propaganda. It is also planned to strengthen the laws against communism.

Rumania would welcome improving the security of its Bessarabian frontier by agreement with Russia. On no account, however, is it willing to permit a plebiscite to settle wether that province is Russian or Rumanian.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4. (AP).—The Tass News Agency was officially informed tonight that no Polish proposal for the entry of Rumania into the Soviet-Polish negotiations for immediate application of the Kellogg pact had been presented to the Russian Foreign Office. It was said, in fact, that no negotiations had passed between the Soviet Government and Poland since the original Soviet proposal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The text of the proposal of the Russian Government to Poland and Lithuania, in identic notes announced in Moscow early this week, to make the Kellogg anti-war pact immediately effective as between them was received today by Boris E. Skvirsky, director of the Soviet Union Information Bureau here.

The offer, which has been received sympathetically both by Poland and Lithuania, is designed to provide a substitute for the non-aggression agreements for the Eastern European region, negotiations concerning which have long been in progress, but are yet to be completed.

It was specified, however, that negotiations should continue for adoption of the latter agreements.

Plane Found, but Not Spanish Fliers

MADRID, Jan. 4 (AP).The wreckage of a Spanish plane, which has been missing since Monday, has been found on the beach near Oran. No trace was found of its three occupants, Commander Francisco Rodiquez Caula, Captain Pedro Tauler and Juan Martinez Morillo, mechanic. The plane left Cartagena Monday for Melilla. The Spanish cruiser Extremadura, aided by a military hydroairplane, is continuing a search for the airmen. Officials believe that the occupants of the plane may have reached some of the islands of the region, or have been picked up by a boat.

Bank Cashier Indicted in $174,000 Thefts; He Is Said to Have Embezzled for 35 Years

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Jan. 4.—The Burlington County Grand Jury returned today 63 indictments against Edward B. Reeve, former cashier of the Burlington County National Bank who is charged with embezzling $174,000 of the bank's funds during the past 35 years.

Sixty-one of the true bills charge him with forgery of notes during 1927 and 1928. He had said he had done nothing wrong at the bank in the past ten years. Two more indictments charge him with embezzlement. Investigators declare many other charges will not be pressed because they are outlawed by the statute of limitation.

Reeve, who is 67 years old, was first arrested on Sept. 18 after he had confessed irregularities to the directors of the bank. He was held under $5,000 bail by Judge Slaughter and furnished it. His arrest was brought about by Pemberton B. Griscom, a director.

Federal Bank examiners caused him to be arrested a second time a few days later and held in $15,000 bail. He was arrested a third time on Nov. 28 for embezzling Liberty bonds posted as security for a loan by J. C. Emmons of Shamong Township. He was again held in $5,000 bail by Judge Slaughter, which he furnished. He is now living at the home of his son Maurice, at Haddonfield.

According to a statement issued by William D. Cowperthwait, vice president of the bank, Reeve misappropriated $174,000 of the banks assets of $311,000.

According to the directors and investigators, Reeve forged the names of clients of the bank to notes and cashed them for himself. He is said to have managed to cover up the juggling of funds by paying interest on the various notes as they came due. It was during an attack of illness that the shortage was discovered in September.

SWISS URGE TUTTLE TO SEND DRUG DATA

Geneva Newspaper Says Bern Could Then Suppress Illegal Traffic to New York.

ORIGIN TRACED TO GERMANY

Journal de Geneve Believes Alleged Ring Has Large Chinese and Canadian Trade.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 4.—Federal Attorney Charles H. Tuttle's charge that the international narcotics traffic has its roots in Switzerland has now been taken up by the Journal De Geneve, which asks that Mr. Tuttle place all the facts before the Swiss Government.

With such details before it, says the Journal, the government can take the necessary measures to stop the scandal.

It has been learned, the paper says, that the narcotics seized on the Rochambeau in New York Harbor were manufactured in German factories and then forwarded via Basle and France to America.

The belief here is that Germany has a large illicit narcotics trade with the United States, Canada and China. Recently a large number of German talking machines on the way to China through Switzerland were seized and found to be full of cocaine and heroin.

Federal narcotic agents seized a shipment of narcotics which Federal Attorney Tuttle estimated to have a retail value of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 on Pier 2 at Jersey City on Dec. 18. This, as well as a previous shipment valued at $2,000,000 seized in a hotel near the Grand Central Terminal, Mr. Tuttle said were shipped by an international ring of drug smugglers.

"We know that the shipment involves an international drug ring which has headquarters in France and Switzerland," he said at the time.

The shipment seized at Jersey City was in five packing cases which had been shipped on the Rochambeau billed as "brushes."

GEM FIELD CRISIS NEARS.

African Diamond Diggers Await State Reply on Monday.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Jan. 4 (AP).—The situation in the diamond fields of Namaqualand was approaching a crisis today. An army of unemployed diggers announced that on Monday they would meet to receive the Government's reply to their demands for removal of restrictions in favor of the State monopoly or for work in the diggings at £1 a day for all unemployed.

Official announcements said that all was tranquil, but other sources agreed that the atmosphere was full of possibilities of trouble.

The diggers have said that if the government does not grant their demands they will rush the diggings. General J. B. M. Herzog, Premier of the Union of South Africa, has denounced the demands as exorbitant and has expressed the government's purpose to maintain law and order. Diggers have been assembling from all parts of the Transvaal.

As a State preserve, the diamond fields have already yielded about $30,000,000 worth of precious stones. Ill-feeling among the poorer classes is widespread over their inability to get a direct share in these riches.

REPORTED QUITTING MEXICO

But Transcontinental Oil Says It Is Only Moving Old Machinery.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4 (AP).—The newspaper Excelsior said today that the Transcontinental Petroleum Company was preparing to abandon its business in Mexico and ship its machinery to Venezuela and the United States.

The newspaper added that two other large petroleum companies were making similar preparations. It said that the Transcontinental management had already asked the government for permission to quit Mexico.

W. E. McMahon, Mexican representative of the Transcontinental, denied the Excelsior report. He said that the company had no intention of abandoning Mexico, and had only requested the government for permission to dismantle some old and useless machinery.

Pirate Gold Had Lured 'Dead' Men.

HAVANA, Jan. 4 (AP).—The lure of pirate gold was the explanation offered by Victor Rodrigues and Fermin Valdes, fishermen who appeared in Cardenas, Matanzas Province, yesterday after being given up for dead since October. The two left their Havana homes in search of treasure, supposed to be near Cape San Antonio, in Pinar del Rio Province.

CAMPBELL DENIES DISOBEYING COURT

Holds Refusal to Grant Alcohol Withdrawal Permit Was Not in Contempt.

ASSURED OF HIS FREEDOM

Judge Says Offense, If Any, Was Civil, Not Criminal—Reserves His Decision.

Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell, who appeared yesterday in Federal court to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt, heard Judge Frank J. Coleman announce that he had "no intention of sending the administrator to jail." Although he reserved decision, Judge Coleman said the contempt, if any, had been of a civil and not a criminal nature.

Major Campbell was cited because of his alleged disobedience of a court decree, signed by Federal Judge Hutcheson, ordering him to restore to W. H. Long & Co., Inc., a denaturing plant at Port Chester, N. Y., alcohol permits which the administrator had revoked on Feb. 10, 1928. This concern formerly withdrew pure grain alcohol at the rate of 100,000 gallons a month.

Defines His Action.

Major Campbell, who was represented yesterday by John E. O'Neill, legal adviser to the Prohibition Department, New York district and Assistant United States Attorney Ulysses S. Grant, contended that he had obeyed Judge Hutcheson's decree by restoring to W. H. Long & Co. their "basic permit," which allows the use of alcohol for denaturing purposes. He refused, however, to grant their application for a withdrawal permit, without which the basic permit, according to Lewis Landes, attorney for Long & Co., is valueless.

"The Prohibition Administrator has deliberately and maliciously violated a decree of this court," said Mr. Landes. "The basic permit authorizes the operation of the plant and the purchase and receipt of alcohol. We have put up a $100,000 surety bond and complied with all other requirements. The administrator has promulgated some sort of an order requiring an application for each monthly withdrawal. In other words, he has said to us, in effect, 'You have your basic permit; now let's see you operate under it.'"

Doubts Dry Head's Power.

Mr. Grant pointed out that withdrawal permits were not issued until applicants had shown the proper qualifications and had furnished satisfactory evidence that the alcohol withdrawn was to be used for legal purposes. Mr. Landes, however, contended that, having granted a basic permit, the administrator had no right to exercise his discretion in the issuance of the necessary withdrawal permits.

Judge Coleman said he would give a decision on that question as well as on the contempt charge, and asked attorneys for both sides to file briefs. His decision is expected within a week or ten days.

Major Campbell revoked the W. H. Long & Co. permits on the ground that the stock of the denaturing plant was owned and controlled by the Waterloo Distilling Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., whose permits had been revoked previously for direct violations of the prohibition law.

DIVIDENDS INCREASED BY FIVE CORPORATIONS

Extra and Initial Payments Are Announced by Several Other Concerns.

The Columbian Carbon Company ordered yesterday an extra dividend of 25 cents in cash in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1 on its capital stock.

The Miami Copper Company joined the long list of corporations in that industry that have increased their dividend rates by declaring a regular quarterly payment of 50 cents a share, placing the stock on a $2 annual basis, against $1.50 previously paid.

The Hartford Electric Light Company declared a quarterly dividend of 68¾ cents, making the annual rate $2.75 against the previous rate of $2.50. A 62½ cent quarterly payment was declared by Atlas Stores of Chicago, placing the stock on a $2.50 annual basis, against $1.75 previously paid.

WOMEN DEMAND END OF WAR GAS

Conference at Frankfurt Hears Its Use Denounced as Cowardly Weapon.

AUDIENCE MOVED TO TEARS

Stirred by Descriptions of Possible Sufferings—Control of Chemical Plants Urged.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Warring against war, the International Women's League for Peace and Freedom opened its convention at Frankfurt-am-Main this morning to continue the program outlined at its Washington session of 1924. Although forty-two countries are represented in the league, only about a dozen sent delegates to the congress, the other countries merely sending essays on the necessity of abolishing war, or, if armed conflicts cannot be avoided, of forcing the combatants to protect civilian populations.

The program of the present meeting centred around the abolition of the use of gas and bacteria in warfare, on the grounds that such weapons do not give the antagonist a fair chance. In discussing this subject, the problem is how to control airplanes so they cannot be used to drench areas outside of war zones with deadly poisons, slaughtering unprotected non-compatants. The League also plans a campaign against the construction of chemical plants which can be easily converted into gas factories.

Another proposal concerns the conversion of all munitions plants to the production of peacetime products.

Washington Program Reiterated.

Today's session was devoted to reiterating the program laid down at Washington and hearing reports of committees to find ways of accomplishing the aims of the League. Most of the speakers were men, however, many of them authorities on chemical warfare.

Regarding the use of gas as a defensive measure, Dr. Gertrude Woker of Switzerland said that ethical points must be considered and that only cowards would resort to weapons of this kind.

Captain Brunskog of Sweden painted a pessimistic picture of the future should nations fail to prevent the outbreaks of wars. The days of large armies and navies had passed, he said, and attacking forces will use gas as a weapon, against which no city will be able to protect itself. Airplanes, flying at night, guided by radio orientation systems, will be able to locate their objectives in the darkness and defense will be impossible, he declared.

"If Europe is unable to abolish war within a few years, it is doomed to destruction," he concluded.

Several days will be devoted to discussions, after which a ways and means committee will be appointed. The league was organized at The Hague in 1925.

International Control Demanded.

FRANKFORT-AM-MAIN, Jan. 4 (AP).—William MacCortney of England demanded international control of chemical industries manufacturing poison gases, in a speech this evening before the Women's League for Peace. He said that, in contrast to ammunition plants, chemical industries are able to prepare poisonous war gases secretly.

Dr. Woker made a bitter attack on unnamed American "experts" who have described gas as a humane war weapon and as a great asset for the security of America. She quoted Marshal Foch as writing "the optimistic and colored statements these knights of war gas have turned into absurd subterfuges."

Dr. Nalma Sahlbom of Stockholm opened the conference with an address on the urgency of the meeting in view of the fact that thus far very few nations had ratified the League of Nations poison gas convention. She declared that the next war, by limitless attack against all, would inevitably end in the annihilation of all civilization.

Many women were so moved by a description of the sufferings caused by poison gas as related by Professor L. Lewin of Germany that they burst into tears. Professor Lewin said that hitherto poison was the weapon of dastardly murderers, that even the ancients abhorred poison and that the possibilities were that clouds of poison gas would be launched on defenseless people. There was no reliable antidote, he said, that could be used under ordinary circumstances against poison gases, twenty-five of which are already known, with the likelihood of their reaching 100.

A felonious assault charge against Patrolman Joseph Kolb of the Arsenal Station was dismissed yesterday by Magistrate McAndrews in West Side Court when Mrs. Margaret Foley of 517 West Fifty-second Street, who was slightly wounded in her apartment a week ago by a bullet from Kolb's service revolver, testified she had been examining the revolver and that it had been accidentally discharged. She refused to press a complaint.

RULES HOW TO FILE CONSOLIDATED TAX

Mellon Promulgates Regulations on Income Returns by Affiliated Corporations.

LESS UNCERTAINTY IS AIM

Secretary Praises Accomplishments of Committee He Appointed to Frame Workable Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Treasury regulations on conditions under which affiliated corporations may make consolidated income tax returns were made public today by the Internal Revenue Bureau as directed by Congress in Section 141 of the revenue act of 1928.

Secretary Mellon made a statement analyzing the new rules and called attention to the careful consideration given by a special committee which he had appointed to hear the arguments of representatives of the business interests and other experts.

The question has been the cause of sharp controversy between the Internal Revenue Bureau and various corporate interests affected by the new regulations, which first become applicable to the taxable year 1929. The committee selected by Mr. Mellon was named in an effort to reconcile the differences and agree on a definite and final program.

Secretary Mellon stressed the point that the committee had sought to make the regulations conform to the intent of Congress, and so frame them that they would safeguard against evasion or avoidance of tax liabilities.

Committee's Findings Now Binding.

The committee, as nearly as was possible, when all of the difficulties confronting them were considered, had accomplished these objects, Mr. Mellon felt, and he gave the regulations his formal approval. Any corporations filing consolidated returns must, therefore, abide by the regulations as promulgated. Returns which are suspected of seeking in any way to avoid the letter of the new regulations will be summarily rejected by the government.

The Secretary stated that when early last Summer he appointed the committee he chose Henry Herrick Bond, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue; Clarence M. Charest, general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and Elsworth C. Alvord, special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, with instructions to take the evidence of various organizations of taxpayers and the public generally.

"Many basic or fundamental theories were advanced," said Mr. Mellon, "including the so-called economic unity and legal principles.

"It was obvious, however, that the regulations must conform as closely as possible to the policies already adopted by the Congress and applicable to the determination of tax liabilities of separate corporations and of corporate stockholders, preserving the sound purposes for which the privilege of filing consolidated returns is properly granted and safeguarding against improper advantages and the evasion or avoidance of tax liabilities.

"Next in importance to the above seemed the necessity for certainty in the rules to be applied to the more important or more common transactions.

Tax Liability Made Clearer.

"It is hoped that under the regulations, taxpayers will be in a much better position to determine in advance the tax liabilities to result from a contemplated transaction, a very desirable substitute for the situation under prior laws, in which tax liabilities of affiliated corporations would ordinarily not be determinable until long after the transactions involved took place.

"Those who have been devoting their time to the preparation of the regulations undoubtedly recognize, far more than others, the real difficulties of the undertaking. Although it is to be expected that there will be differences of opinion as to some of the particular rules adopted, the Treasury believes that the regulations will be much more satisfactory than the uncertainties of the past and will prove by experiences over a period of years to be acceptable and sound.

"The more important provisions of the regulations may be summarized briefly as follows:

(1) Future Application Only.

The regulations apply only to the taxable year 1929 and subsequent taxable years. They are not to be applied retroactively, although some of the provisions naturally are based upon the position taken under prior laws.

(2) Administrative Provisions.

The parent corporation is the agent of each corporation in the group and the Treasury will deal only with the parent, with the necessary provisions to apply in case the parent is dissolved or a subsidiary leaves the group.

The privilege to file a consolidated return must be exercised at the time the parent files its return, and every member of the group must be included in the return. Generally speaking, a group which elects to file a consolidated return for any years must continue on the same basis for subsequent years.

(3) Liability for Tax.

The parent corporation and each subsidiary remain severally liable for the tax shown on the original return and for any deficiency, with a provision that if a subsidiary ceases to be a member of the group by reason of a sale of stock prior to the assessment of the deficiency, its liability continues only for its share of the deficiency, computed on the basis of its share of the consolidated net income.

(4) Consolidated Net Income.

The net income of the affiliated group is, in effect, the algebraic sum of the net incomes of the separate corporations in the group, with necessary eliminations to prevent recognition of gain or loss upon purely intercompany transactions.

(5) Sale of Stock of Subsidiary.

Gain or loss is recognized upon the sale of stock of a subsidiary, whether or not the affiliation is broken. Inasmuch as under a consolidated return net losses of one member of the group may be offset against the gains of other members, it was necessary to prevent a second allowance [that is, also upon the sale of the stock] of the losses which have been availed of in the consolidated return, but which could not have been availed of if separate returns had been filed. There is much to be said for making an adjustment also for the gains of the subsidiary which were taxed to its when earned.

However, inasmuch as gains can be cared for by the declaration of dividends prior to the sale of the stock [thus preventing the so-called double taxation for the relief of which the adjustment was proposed], it was not believed the advantages of an increased basis, which would result if a consolidated return were filed, but which would be denied to a separate corporation, was justified.

Again, if adjustments for gains were to be made corresponding adjustments for dividends would be required. The admittedly complicated provisions applicable to the adjustments for losses would appear simple indeed as compared to the provisions which would be necessary to provide properly for adjustments for gains and dividends.

It was rather singular that no one advocated the rule, which has been adopted as to the past in decisions of the lower courts and of the Board of Tax Appeals, that gain or loss should ont be recognized upon the sale of stock of a subsidiary. Such a rule would, obviously, have the effect of removing the present tax upon a realization of appreciation in value of capital assets.

The regulations also protect against "paper" losses resulting from purely artificial or fictitious transactions.

(6) Dissolution of Subsidiary.

Neither gain nor loss is recognized upon the dissolution of a subsidiary. Dissolutions may, in theory, be classified into three general types:

(a). A "purchasing" dissolution, where, in order to obtain the assets, the stock is purchased and the corporation then dissolved;

(b). A "reorganization" dissolution, where a subsidiary is dissolved in order to effect a purely internal rearrangement or reorganization; and

(c). A "winding-up" dissolution, where it is decided to abandon the business and close out the affairs of the subsidiary.

Obviously, no gain or loss should be recognized, for none is actually realized, in the case of dissolutions of the first two types, while any gain should be taxed and any loss allowed as a deduction in the case of a dissolution of the third type.

Generally speaking, however, dissolutions as a practical matter cannot be readily classified. Transactions falling into more than one of the three types are very frequently involved, and the purposes of a dissolution do not always remain constant and are not always apparent or ascertainable.

Inasmuch as it would be impossible to prescribe a rule which would distinguish the types and which would be susceptible of sound administration, and in view of the fact that the benefit of losses which are properly allowable are not denied if the loss is realized before the dissolution, or if the subsidiary is not a member of the group at the time of the dissolution, it was concluded that the rule adopted in the regulations, treating all dissolutions as intercompany transactions, was the safest and best and would prove most satisfactory. Very substantial benefits both to taxpayers and the government will result in the certainty as to the rule which is to be applied.

(7) Basis of Property.

The basis of property owned by a corporation is not affected by intercompany transactions or by the purchase or sale of its stock.

(8) Net Losses.

Consolidated net losses for 1929 an dsubsequent years can be carried forward by the same affiliated group. If the groun is broken up, the net loss follows the parent, and in this case is to be allowed to the subsidiary.

A corporation coming into a group carries its net loss with it, subject only to the protective provision that it cannot exceed the amount paid by the group for its stock if the affiliation is formed after Jan. 1 of this year.

Provision is also made for the carrying forward, subject to certain limitations, of net losses sustained for one or both of the taxable years prior to 1929 if a consolidation return is filed under the new regulations.

(9) Credit for Foreign Taxes.

The credit for foreign taxes is to be computed as if the affiliated group were the taxpayer.

TREASURY BATTLES STATES IN TAX CASE

Argues at House Committee Hearing on Measure for $200,000,000 Refund.

LIMITATIONS STATUTE CITED

Mellon Says Huge Sum Would Be Needed to Pay All Claims Dating Back to 1866.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Counsel for thirty-five States today appeared before the Ways and Means Committee to urge action on a joint resolution to permit the States concerned to sue the Federal Government for recovery of more than $200,000,000 in direct taxes levied during the years 1866, 1867 and 1868.

The hearing was marked by frequent clashes between State counsel and Treasury officials, who are opposing passage of the proposed legislation which would ultimately throw this controverted tax case into the Supreme Court for decision.

Favorable action on the bill was urged by Burton Smith of New York, special counsel for the States. The joint resolution introduced by Senator Stephens, Democrat, of Mississippi, already has passed the Senate.

Mr. Smith said that the various Federal taxes levied during the years in question were direct taxes and were unconstitutional in that they were not apportioned among the States. He contended that the taxes, which were assessed on various manufactured articles, were ad valorem property taxes rather than per capita taxes properly apportioned and maintained that Congress had no right to levy them.

Officials estimate roughly that the State of New York might receive about $60,000,000 through adjudication as proposed by the Stephens resolution.

Henry Herrick Bond, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, appeared in opposition to the resolution. Discussing how the $200,000,000 would be paid if the legislation is approved, Mr. Bond said:

"The government has only one way to get this money. We no longer tax States; it would come from individual taxes, possibly those on income. Some of the States which are advocating passage of this resolution would find that they would pay more under higher income tax rates than they would get in refunds."

In a letter to the House committee some weeks ago Secretary Mellon said that if the resolution is passed it might possibly open up the statutes of limitation in other tax claims for tax refunds involving hundreds of millions in excess of the amounts covered by the pending resolution.

TORONTO, Ont., Saturday, Jan. 5.—A dispatch to The Globe from Ottawa says:

The dispatch states that it is for this reason that American officials are on their way to Ottawa to confer with Canadian officials concerning revision of the treaty.

The dispatch gives this table of exports of alcoholic beverages in recent fiscal years:

Year.	Total.	To U. S.
1924	$14,954,113	$3,714,709

"To these figures must be added re-exports from Canada of Scotch whisky, French wines, &c. In the last fiscal year these totaled to the United States $7,439,741.

"The United States delegation will arrive her on Monday."

KILLED BY 10-STORY FALL.

Death of H. L. Williamson, Rubber Company Official, Called Accidental.

Harris L. Williamson, said to be an official of the United States Rubber Company, Broadway and Fifty-eighth Street, and at one time a Colonel on the staff of a Governor of Kentucky, died last night after falling from a window in his tenth floor apartment at 161 West Fifty-fourth Street, to a rear courtyard. Death was called accidental by the police.

Mr. Williamson returned alone to his apartment at about 11:30, after a dinner party. He was a widower and lived alone. At about midnight John Nugent, apartment house superintendent, heard the body strike the ground.

He is survived by a nephew, Charles Wilson, of Lancaster.

ECUADOREAN INDIANS RISE.

Throw Stones at Soldiers—Thought Map Makers Tax Collectors.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 4.—Five thousand Indians threw stones at soldiers sent to subdue them recently, but quickly desisted from further attacks when the military forces began to reply with rifles, according to official reports received here.

The Indians had mutinied because they had mistaken military topographical commissions making surveys of their country for a new map of Ecuador for tax collectors.

Dispatches from Rio Bamba indicate that the mutiny was a recurrence of the uprising of several months ago, when the Indians attacked the commissions, who fled, leaving their instruments behind. Their instruments were captured by the Indians and treasured as trophies.

A platoon of soldiers was dispatched, but they were met with stones hurled from the hills by the Indians. Two soldiers were wounded.

Rio Bamba, which was threatened with attack, is no longer in danger and agents have been sent into the Indian country to explain the work of the topographers and to obtain the seized instruments.

REPRESENTATIVES GET BOA.

Four, Fishing at Panama, Lasso 18-Foot Constrictor.

PANAMA, Jan. 4 (AP).—Representatives William R. O'Brien of West Virginia, S. Harrison White of Colorado, William Williamson of South Dakota and Charles E. Winter of Wyoming, after a luckless day fishing in Panama today, caught a fifteen-foot boa constrictor swimming in the Panama Canal.

The snake was lassoed and put into a sack.

Schools for Indian Children.

Indian boys and girls in Canada to the number of 14,782 are enrolled in the 344 Indian schools maintained by the Department of Indian Affairs. Of these, 224 are day schools, with an enrolment of 8,242, and 74 are residential schools, with an enrolment of 6,327 pupils. The 16 "combined" schools, located in sections too sparsely settled to support seperate schools for white and Indians, are attended by 213 white and Indian children, says the United State Bureau of Education. The residential schools are under church management with close supervision by the department. In these schools State funds are supplemented, whenever necessary, by contributions from the churches.

STEEL CORPORATION GETS $26,000,000

City, abatement, none; credit, $234,982; refund, $2,373,297; total credited and refunded, $2,608,284; interest, $1,580,075.

Louis J. Kolb, Philadelphia, credit $1,580.

New York Life Insurance Company, New York City, refund $2,394,615, interest $240,084.

Prudential Insurance Company of America, New York, refund $1,503,219, interest $130,402.

Standard Oil of Louisville, refund $1,842,055, interest $772,497.

Mr. Garner charged that the joint committee created when the publicity feature of the revenue law was repealed had failed to recommend any action on the $26,000,000 refund to the Steel Corporation.

Mr. Garner added that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania of the joint committee had declared that he would not take the responsibility of voting to recommend such a payment. Mr. Garner also asserted that in spite of the non-action of the joint committee, L. F. Parker, its expert, recommended against the payment, and that in face of this the Treasury authorized the refund.

In a statement tonight Mr. Garner said:

"Unless the power of the treasury is curbed, in view of the manner in which it is being used, the entire structure of the income and corporation tax law will break down.

"While the treasury has rebated approximately a billion dollars in taxes collected, this does not tell the story. The proportion of rebates and abatements, as compared with refunds, of which the public has no information, is 30 to 1.

"This immense power is exercised at the will of a department head. It was accorded to that head because he said the system would break down unless it was accorded him and this is the way it is used."

Last of Payments on 1917 Steel Tax.

For the year 1917 the Steel Corporation filed tax returns calling for a payment of $199,000,000. The Treasury decided, upon review, that the correct tax was $173,000,000. Payments were made in settlement until $15,000,000, plus $11,000,000 interest, was still due to the corporation.

The refund was approved by the Treasury on Dec. 5, but under the law, payment had to be suspended for thirty days pending possible objection by the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

In the absence of such objections, Under Secretary Ogden Mills said today that a check for $26,000,000 would be turned over to the Steel Corporation on Monday. Mr. Mills said he had no reason to believe that any such objection would be made.

Additional millions in refunds probably will be paid to the Steel Corporation for taxes that it alleges were illegally or erroneously collected in the years since 1917.

This was made known to the House Appropriations Committee on Dec. 20 by Henry H. Bond, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of fiscal offices, and was disclosed when the printed hearings on the first deficiency bill were reported to the House today.

Mr. Bond, after narrating the history of the refund to the steel corporation of excess taxes paid in 1917, made this statement:

"We also expect to go forward with the later years for the Steel Corporation, and it is probable that refunds will be made on them during the fiscal year."

The refund for 1917 was based chiefly upon questions having to do with invested capital, and also because the Treasury upon review found that taxes were reported for 1917 which had been covered in the corporation's return for the preceding year.

Question As to Mellon's Function.

Representative James P. Buchanan of Texas, Democratic member of the committee, asked Mr. Bond whether Mr. Mellon, as Secretary of the Treasury, had anything to do with approval of tax refunds. He replied that refunds were passed upon by the Internal Revenue Commissioner and that there was nothing in the law calling for approval by the Secretary.

Mr. Buchanan wanted to know if the Secretary could influence the commissioner in the making of refunds, and, if the commissioner refused to abide by the Secretary's wishes, what would be likely to happen.

"I cannot say offhand," replied Mr. Bond. "The situation has never arisen. The statute has given the commissioner authority to administer this law, and only in certain places do you find the Secretary referred to. He may do certain things only with the approval of the Secretary, but in general the carrying out of this law has been entrusted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue."

Asked by Mr. Buchanan whether Mr. Mellon had any stock in the Steel Corporation, Mr. Bond said he did not know.

"I do not know either," returned Mr. Buchanan, "but that is the common report."

Bond Defends Mellon's Integrity.

Mr. Buchanan suggested that judges are barred from sitting in cases involving their interests, and that the question arose in his mind whether the Treasury should pass on a big tax refund claim when the Secretary had financial interest in the corporation concerned.

"I suggest this as a matter of public policy, and not intimating at all that any wrongdoing is being done," he added.

"I do not believe that the intelligent public have the slightest suspicion," said Mr. Bond.

"What proportion of the public do you put in that class?" asked Mr. Buchanan.

"I do not believe they have the slightest suspicion of the ingterity of the Secretary of the Treasury in connection with this or any other case," Mr. Bond responded.

"Has the Secretary of the Treasury ever, either directly or indirectly, made any suggestion with reference to the tax returns or the refunds of any concern in which he was interested, to the supervising officer?" Mr. Buchanan asked.

"Not to my knowledge; and I do not think he ever would," Mr. Bond replied.

House Fight on Refund Looms.

A bitter fight is in prospect on the refund provision for the deficiency bill when it is called up for consideration tomorrow. The Democrats, led by Mr. Garner, will demand that it be stricken from the bill and that instead of appropriating more money for refunds Congress shall investigate the whole refund situation.

Under-Secretary Mills pointed out today that the payment of the $26,000,000 to the Steel Corporation was not depednent upon the item in the deficiency bill. Of the appropriation of $130,000,000 allowed for refund purposes in the Treasury bill passed at the last session, the Treasury has a balance of a little in excess of $46,000,000. The Steel Corporation refund will come out of this.

It was disclosed by the report on the deficiency bill that of the $206,000,000 estimated to be needed for refunds in the fiscal year 1929, $43,000,000 will be on account of interest.

Under the law refund claims bear interest at 6 per cent from the date of the payment by the taxpayer to the government of erroneous tax until a date within thirty days of the date of the payment of the refund.

The report emphasized that the total of "additional taxes collected is equivalent to about $4 of tax as against $1 of refund," and that only about 2.5 per cent of the $33,715,707,322 collected since 1917 by the Internal Revenue Bureau had been refunded.

The report also pointed out that many refunds have been due to court decisions.

It stated that the Revenue Bureau had roughly estimated that court decisions over a comparatively recent period of years have accounted for more than $250,000,000 of the refunds. The report embodied a table showing that the amount of refunds since 1917 totaled $675,012,256, while in the same period $4,061,769,209 had been collected as additional or back taxes.

Garner Hits Aluminum Refund.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—An attempt by Representative Garner to launch an investigation of tax refund settlements by the Treasury failed today when the House Appropriations Committee approved a $75,000,000 item carried for that purpose in the first deficiency bill.

Garner's testimony before the committee yesterday, made public tonight, constituted an appeal to disapprove that appropriation and force an investigation by the joint tax committee of the proposed $15,000,000 United States Steel Corporation refund settlement.

The Texan also sharply criticized the Treasury for its settlements of tax refunds claimed by the Aluminum Company of America, declaring that in 1917 it had received a refund of $621,000 and a credit of $465,000, or a total credit of more than $1,236,000 for that one year.

"I do not know who owns the Aluminum Company of America," he declared, "but if the Secretary of the Treasury did own it and his own company made a report in 1917 that it owed that much taxes and he comes along in 1923 under the general provisions of law that you can settle as you please regardless of the law and gives them back $1,236,000, somebody ought to look into it."

"Refuse to appropriate this money," he said, referring to the $75,000,000, "and let the Treasury understand that your organization understands that we are going to investigate the Treasury Department and the question of the justice and merits of these claims."

Chairman Anthony declared that the Treasury had been settling cases at the rate of 15,000 a month and there had not been the faintest suggestion of fraud connected with the settlement of any of them.

Mr. Garner then asserted that under the Democratic administration the taxes levied against the steel concern had continued to go up and that they were paid voluntarily by the organization.

"A Republican administration comes in and they begin to go down," he added. "The Democratic Secretaries were in sympathy with the law and the present one is not."

The first deficiency bill itself provides for $64,126,310 to meet emergency expenses for the current fiscal year, including $75,000,000 for tax refunds.

Of the total, which is $86,705 less than that recommended by the budget, $5,000,000 would be used for carrying on the government's contract air mail service; $1,060,000 for construction of new barracks at the Pacific branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Santa Monica, Cal.; $25,000 for the inauguration of President-elect Hoover, and $50,000 for aiding Indian influenza victims of the Southwest.

PAN-AMERICANS ADOPT TWO PACTS

General Treaties on Conciliation and Arbitration Will Be Signed Today.

COOLIDGE IS PLEASED

He Regards the Bolivia-Paraguay Settlement as an Evidence of New Peace Spirit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Unanimous adoption of the general treaties on conciliation and arbitration and the formal discharge, with high praise, of the special committee which brought Bolivia and Paraguay to accept conciliation in their recent conflict, marked the plenary session of the Pan-American conference on conciliation and arbitration this morning.

President Coolidge is greatly pleased with the outcome of the conference. He regards it as especially fortunate that while the conference was in session the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay arose and was so satisfactorily settled.

In his opinion several important problems were considered and disposed of in a fine spirit by the delegates, who reflected the spirit of their governments and people.

After the adjournment of today's session the delegations, in accordance with instructions issued by Secretary Kellogg as chairman of the conference, registered with the Secretariat General the reservations which they have been instructed by their governments to enter in the general treaty on inter-American arbitration, which, with the convention on conciliation, will be signed at the closing session tomorrow.

Seven Seek No Reservations.

All that remained to be done this afternoon was to enter these reservations and affix the seals of the twenty republics in readiness for the signatures of the plenipotentiary delegates. The treaties and the open protocol of the arbitration compact will be drawn up in four separate texts, Spanish, English, French and Portuguese, each text to be signed by the twenty delegations.

Only seven nations are signing the arbitration treaty without reservations. These are the United States, Panama, Cuba, Brazil, Peru, Haiti and Nicaragua.

The Dominican Republic is entering what is described as an interpretation rather than an actual reservation, being of the opinion that the Buenos Aires convention of 1910, providing that pecuniary claims shall not be submitted to obligatory arbitration until it has been proved that there was a denial of justice in the local courts, was agreed to by virtually all of the thirteen nations which will not sign the treaty without restrictions.

Several of these nations are signatories of the Buenos Aires convention, such as Costa Rica, Ecuador, Uruguay and Honduras. Those making this same reservation which are not parties to the Buenos Aires convention are Chile, Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Salvador.

Reservation Expected to Stand.

This type of reservation is expected to be a more or less permanent one, but many of the other reservations, especially those providing that questions arising from facts which occurred before the signing of the present treaty shall not be submitted to compulsory arbitration, are expected to be withdrawn as soon as the particular situation which caused them has been overcome. As one delegate put it:

"Those countries that have an axe to grind want to preserve the axe."

The reservations of this category are being entered by nations which have pending boundary disputes or similar territorial questions. They include Bolivia, Paraguay, Chile, Guatemala, Honduras, Ecuador, Venezuela, Salvador and Colombia.

Although Peru has a settlement pending with Chile, and Panama a pending question with Costa Rica, both of these countries are signing the treaty unreservedly, thereby signifying their willingness to submit their international differences of a juridical nature to compulsory arbitration.

Several countries have reserved from arbitration questions covered by existing treaties. These are Ecuador, Guatemala and Costa Rica. Salvador also excepts controversies or differences on points or questions which, according to the Salvadorean Constitution, should not be submitted to arbitration.

Of the countries entering reservations on territorial or boundary questions, several specify that such questions shall not be arbitrated without the specific authorization of the Parliament.

Commends Bolivia and Paraguay.

The text of the protocol signed yesterday between Bolivia and Paraguay was read to the conference this morning by Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Ambassador, who in the absence of Dr. Victor M. Maurtua, now ill with pneumonia, acted as chairman of the special committee which has been dealing with this matter.

After presenting his report of the work of the committee and the text of the protocol, Dr. Ferrara made the following statement:

"In adopting this form of worthy and noble harmony for the solution of the incident which arose, the republics of Paraguay and Bolivia have once again given evidence of the traditional spirit of concord and good friendship which presides over the international relations of our continent.

"Their attitude is worthy of general applause, an applause which we are the first to accord, not only to the two nations but to their governments and their representatives in this assembly and to their representatives accredited before the United States of America, because all have been inspired with a fervent desire of conciliation and friendship.

"At this time in which we bring our mandate to a close, after having fully performed the task, allow us to express the satisfaction that we feel upon observing, that assembled in this capital in order to fix the principles and the practices of conciliation and arbitration we have seen them applied with a measure of success which is today commented upon throughout the whole world, even before they became the law of the American nations.

"The compromise having been signed by the representatives of Bolivia and Paraguay, this special committee expresses its confidence that the efforts of conciliation be initiated as soon as possible with the support of the neutral nations of the commission on conciliation established in the protocol in order that very shortly this incident may remain in diplomatic annals only as evidence that occasional differences and conflicting interests can always find a harmonious solution when the parties are animated by sentiments as noble as those which on this occasion have inspired our sister republics, Paraguay and Bolivia."

Conference Thanks Committee.

By unanimous vote the conference then adopted a resolution thanking the committee whose good offices had led to the signing of the protocol, sending warm greetings to the sister nations of Paraguay and Bolivia and congratulations to the two governments, and expressing the hope that the commission of investigation and conciliation created by the protocol may begin its work with the least possible delay. Upon adoption of this resolution Secretary Kellogg recognized the delegate from Panama, Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, who made the following statement:

"What at first might have seemed an irony of fate for a conflict to arise between two sister nations at the very time that we were meeting to discuss the ways of peace has made evident that the American conscience is so firmly in favor of peaceful settlement of international conflicts that, despite the gravity of the conflict and of the lamentable conditions in which it began, there was so much moral suasion, such an irresistible pressure in favor of the ways of peace that today we contemplate with satisfaction the signing of this protocol."

The delegate from Bolivia, Señor Diez de Medina, and the delegate from Paraguay, Señor Eligio Ayala, thanked the conference and the special committee for their work and interest, and reiterated the desire of their respective countries to follow the ideals of peace.

Brazil Explains Position.

The State Department tonight made public the text of the note from Brazil setting forth the reasons why that country was unable to accept a place on the commission of investigation which is to deal with the Bolivia-Paraguay controversy.

This note was sent to the American Ambassador at Rio de Janeiro by the Brazilian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

After reviewing the conditions under which the commission of investigation is to be constituted, the note says:

"Were there not, Mr. Ambassador, as regards Brazil, the entirely special conditions which I hereafter mention, the Brazilian Government which has not spared, nor will it spare, efforts toward the maintenance of peace, would accept immediately the honor which it is intended to confer upon it.

"Being bounded, however, as it is bounded, by the very territory where the incident took place, having just negotiated in the most perfect cordiality both with Paraguay and Bolivia boundary treaties which are at the present time going through constitutional procedure, and as either one or the other might have a reaction upon the territory in question, Brazil does not conceal the scruples which render it impossible for her to accept any function as a judge of the case in which it might be argued, however unjustly, that she had any interest, direct or indirect, immediate or remote.

"Other States which in this respect are free as Brazil would like to be, can bring to a successful conclusion the undoubtedly beneficient task which it is planned to realize. They can, through their delegates, count not only upon the sincere wishes but also upon the full collaboration that Brazil may be able to contribute in the circumstances explained for the success of the high mission which they are called upon to discharge."

KABUL PACIFIES SHINWARIS.

Secret Treaty With Rebel Tribe at Jalalabad Is Reported.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 4 (AP).—Advices from Kabul, Afghanistan, today said that peace had been restored in Jalalabad with the rebellious Shinwaris. The negotiations were carried on by Ali Ahmed Jan, former Governor of Kabul. The terms of the treaty were not divulged.

There were indications that another battle might be expected soon between rebels under Bachai Sakao and Afghan troops.

The telegraph line between Quetta and Kandahar has been cut. Communications between India and Kabul were being handled today by wireless.

TELLS OF FINDING STRADIVARI SECRET

Antique Dealer Discovers Letter Said to Describe Varnish and Wood Treatment of Violins.

HIDDEN IN DESK 200 YEARS

Cremona Master Told His Methods to Abbot—Italian Authorities Take Charge of Papers.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 4.—In 1728, almost exactly two centuries ago, there died in Cremona Antonio Stradivari, whose name was immortalized by his famous violins. With him he carried to the grave the secret of the treatment of his priceless instruments, which in purity and beauty of tone have never been equaled since.

At least so it was thought till the other day, when it was reported that an antique dealer in Bergamo had discovered the secret which made Stradivari celebrated throughout the world.

Some time ago the dealer received an antique desk to restore. While working on it he discovered a hidden drawer containing numerous sheets of paper, obviously very old and covered with writing. On inspection it appeared that they had been written by Stradivari himself and included a description of his method of varnishing and treatment of the wood.

Apparently when Stradivari died in Cremona he turned over his secret as a gift to his best friend, an old abbot. The abbot later moved to Bergamo and the Stradivari manuscript was found in a drawer of his desk.

The antique dealer who has just found the papers after 200 years attempted to sell them to a maker of violins in Milan, but the government authorities intervened and took charge of the manuscripts.

Women Employes in Denver.

Some interesting figures on the increasing numbers of married women seeking employment outside their homes comes from Denver, according to the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. The Y. W. C. A. there reports that it had 1,308 applications for employment from January to May of last year, and that not quite half of them were from married women. Of these married women applicants, half were more than 40 years old, and twenty-five were more than 60. Half of them had children; 147, one child each under 18 years old; 152, two or more; four of the mothers had six children each, and two others, seven.

SLOVAK LEADER ARRESTED.

Professor Tuka Is Accused of High Treason at Pressburg.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—Professor Tuka, leader of the extreme anti-Czech wing of the Slovak People's party, who was arrested yesterday in Czechoslovakia, was lodged in the Pressburg jail tonight. A preliminary examination was begun on charges of high treason.

Professor Tuka before the war held the Chair of History at the Hungarian University at Pressburg. On account of alleged Magyarophile tendencies he was dismissed upon the formation of the Czechoslovak Republic. Since then he has been a stubborn opponent of Czech hegemony in Slovakia.

Formerly chief lieutenant of Father Hlinka, the Slovak patriot leader, Professor Tuka, when his chief made peace with the Czechs a year ago on the granting of a majority of the Slovak demands, formed his own intransigeant group.

Although admitting his hostility toward alleged Czech exploitation of Slovakia, both economic and political, Professor Tuka always insisted that he was not a Magyarophile.

The present charges include that of being party to the organization of an armed force of Slovak Fascists holding treasonable communications with foreign countries.

Professor Tuka's immunity as a member of Parliament was raised a week ago at the request of members of his own party. He refused to heed suggestions to take flight, saying he was eager to bring the whole matter before a court.

Professor Tuka lost considerable popularity in Slovakia by his failure to follow Father Hlinka's pacific course, but his arrest, nevertheless, has provoked great indignation.

HECKLE BORAH ON ANTI-WAR PACT

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

was interrupted by Senator Bruce. In the colloquy that followed Senator Borah said:

"Knowing the Senator's philosophy that nothing counts in international affairs except sheer brutal force, I naturally have a suspicion of anything he advocates."

"I ask the Senator not to say 'sheer brutal force,'" said Senator Bruce.

"Nothing counts for anything except that adequate police force which Mr. Taft had in contemplation when he became president of the League to Enforce Peace, and such as Theodore Roosevelt had in contemplation when he said that international justice must be backed by international police," Senator Borah corrected. "It is the kind of force I have in mind."

There were references by Senator Bruce to Senator Borah's appearance on the stump in Baltimore in the recent campaign and a disclaimer by Senator Borah that he had introduced Senator-elect Goldsborough, who defeated Mr. Bruce for re-election, as "the next Senator from Maryland." The exchange ended with mutual expressions of personal friendship.

Borah Speaks for Three Hours.

Mr. Borah occupied nearly three hours in completing the speech which he began yesterday. In ending, he said:

"I will say in conclusion that some sixty nations have now either signed or adhered to the treaty. These nations represent practically the entire world. They have signed it upon the theory that it is an important step in the cause of peace. No one will contend, I presume, that it is anything more than an important step.

"I think it is a very important one, but certainly it is not all that we shall have to do as the years go by in backing up the principle which is incorporated in the treaty.

"At the present time we have all these nations adhering to or signing the treaty accepting it as it is, and accepting it upon the theory that it will assist them in settling their controversies in a peaceful way. That cannot be other than a very important move, in my judgment, in the great cause in which we are all interested.

"We have different views as to how to accomplish peace, as to how to advance it, but I take it that all of us are in favor of the ultimate objective, and as all the nations have practically endorsed this treaty I trust the Senate of the United States, without any unnecessary delay, will advise the world that it is satisfactory to the people of this country."

Volley of Questions Fired.

When Senator Borah sat down Senator Bingham of Connecticut began to press him as to whether there was anything in the treaty that would forbid the United States to employ force to protect the lives and property of its citizens in foreign countries.

"The Senator [Borah] said yesterday that the treaty forbids force under any circumstances," began Senator Bingham.

"Of course I was using 'force' in that connection in the sense of war," explained Senator Borah. "In my opinion the treaty does forbid war under any circumstance, except, of course, in case of self-defense. Except in that case, we all can see the treaty does not recognize the employment of war under any circumstances whatever.

"If a government were defending its citizens or protecting the property of its citizens, in my judgment such action would come under the principle of self-defense."

"I am anxious to know from the Senator," persisted Senator Bingham, "whether he thinks if this treaty were ratified it would be possible for us to send an expedition into Mexico under General Pershing, for instance, as we did?"

"I would not say as to any particular transaction," replied Senator Borah, "but let me say this:

Could Protect Our Citizens.

"I will state what I conceive to be the principle of the treaty—that we would have a perfect right to send an expedition anywhere, whether into Mexico or China, if it were necessary in order to protect the lives and property of our citizens against actual threatened attack.

"I would prefer to confine myself to what I conceive to be the general principles which will be applied to the facts and circumstances as they arise from time to time. In other words, when a question arises as to whether we are applying the principles of self-defense, the Senate of the United States will be the one to pass on it and we will be perfectly safe."

Many questions were asked Senator Borah as to whether interpretative notes written by various governments in adhering to the treaty modified its provisions and required the United States to take the same course. Senator Reed of Missouri read extracts from such notes of Afghanistan, Egypt, Hungary, Persia and Rumania accepting the pact, but expressing their understanding of its terms.

It was brought out that the Soviet Government of Russia had refused to accept the British interpertation that the pact did not restrict that government's right to take measures of self-defense in "certain regions of the world" where it had vital interests, and this was countered by references to the announcement of the Soviet Government this week that it had asked Poland and Lithuania to join it in accepting the anti-war treaty as a means of adjusting their mutual differences.

Stress was laid by Senator Reed on some diplomatic notes, stating that adherence to the treaty was given in the understanding that it would not modify obligations to the League of Nations.

Not Affected by Foreign Notes.

Senator Borah insisted that these notes made no change in the treaty. Its terms stood as they were written, he held.

"The great value of this treaty," he said, "is the willingness of all governments to carry out its purposes."

There followed a series of colloquies based on an editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES of today in which it was said that it was felt in Europe that the treaty "will lead us, or should lead us, straight into the World Court," which was described as one of the great "pacific means" to which the United States and other nations had pledged themselves to resort.

"And behind the World Court as its fostering parent," said THE TIMES's editorial, "stands the League of Nations, which already exists as an organization able to make practically effective the pious aspirations of peace breathed in the Kellogg treaty."

There had been a previous mention of THE NEW YORK TIMES editorial. Senator Robinson of Indiana brought it forward again when he said:

"Since the question has been raised today about possible interpretation of the treaty by some tribunal, and since an editorial of THE NEW YORK TIMES has been referred to that relates thereto, I would like to ask the Senator from Idaho [Mr. Borah] if he places the same construction on the activities in connection with the proposed ratification of this treaty that is evidently placed upon the same activities by the New York newspaper's editorial writer."

Mr. Robinson then read the editorial and went on:

"I am asking the Senator [Borah] if his idea coincides with that expressed in the editorial that ultimately there will be required a tribunal of some sort to 'implement' the treaty and if this does lead us directly into the World Court and then immediately after that into the League of Nations."

Discuss Times Editorial.

Senator Borah replied:

"Of course, THE TIMES has been a very consistent and a very able advocate of the League and the Court, and has always thought that any step toward peace would be an inadequate and practically futile step unless it led ultimately to the Court and to the League. As I understand it, that is what it says in the editorial from which the Senator has read. I understand it says further, however, that it will be necessary in order that we get nearer the Court and nearer the League, to enter this treaty with some other distinctive action.

"In that respect, I agree with THE TIMES. I do not think the treaty brings us any nearer to the Court or any nearer to the League. If we get any nearer we will have to do something distinctive in the future to get nearer."

"Does the Senator mean to say that in his opinion some tribunal ultimately will be necessarily set up, either the World Court or some other tribunal, to interpret the treaty," persisted the Indiana Senator.

Senator Borah replied:

"Oh, no, I did not say that. I said that THE TIMES was of the opinion that any effort toward peace was inadequate and futile unless it led ultimately to the court and to the League. That is the view of THE TIMES and it has been all the time."

Again Senator Robinson put his question. "I do not understand that that is the intent of the editorial," he said. "The chief point I have in mind in interrogating the Senator is whether or not he has the same view as that advanced by THE NEW YORK TIMES to the effect that the ratification of this treaty by the Senate will necessarily practically lead us directly into the World Court?"

"No," replied Senator Borah, "If THE NEW YORK TIMES advocates that view, with all due respect I disagree with it."

Here Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, entered the discussion.

"If a controversy arises between two of the signatories to the treaty as to the meaning of the treaty, since the treaty repudiates and renounces all means of force in the settlement disputes, it necessarily implies that some tribunal will have to make the interpretation, does it not," he asked.

"That is the point I am getting at," said the Indiana Senator.

"Or leave the matter entirely unsettled for all time to come," commented his Arkansas colleague.

"I am asking the Senator from Idaho, who is in charge of the treaty here," said the Indiana Senator, "if in his opinion a tribunal of some sort is ultimately necessary to interpret the treaty."

Question of World Court.

Senator Borah was then asked whether, if the World Court should decide under the treaty a question in which the United States was vitally interested and the decision was to our disadvantage and against our best interests, "would not the United States, in that event, be placed in the position, so far as world opinion was concerned, of opposing pacific means and all of those, so far as the moral effect is concerned, who were leagued in opinion against the United States?"

"The World Court might at this time decide a controversy in which the United States had very great interest," answered Senator Borah.

"Excepting at this time, we would not have been bound by any treaty that would force us to be bound to seek peaceful means," remarked Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

"We have our arbitration treaties, our conciliation treaties, the Hague Tribunal and other peaceful means which we could choose, if we desired, with the same verdict now as after the treaty," said Senator Borah.

Senator Johnson of California said that unless a question of self-defense arose it was left to the countries involved in a difference to determine what pacific means should be employed to adjust it. This led Senator Robinson of Arkansas to remark that when nations lost their disposition to settle their differences in an amicable way, they resorted to force. "We move in a circle," he said. "We keep an engagement not to fight when we're in good humor and forget the engagement when we're not."

To this, however, Senator Robinson added that what the treaty did was to create a new desire for peace. Senator Johnson responded by saying that the idea had been suggested that the Senate was to bring about the millennium by ratifying the treaty, but he thought it was going to do just what Senator Robinson said it would do.

To Senator Barkley Senator Borah said that a reservation to the treaty simply would be an exception to some feature of it, but it was not a construction of the treaty. Senator Robinson of Arkansas took exception to this. He contended that the British note was a construction of the treaty and would be so interpreted by any tribunal.

Refer to British "Reservation."

Senator Reed held that it could not be assumed that the notes of Russia, Egypt, Persia, Rumania and Hungary did not restrict or enlarge the treaty. "I don't agree that Chamberlain uttered a mass of meaningless words," he said.

Senator Borah insisted that Sir Austen Chamberlain's note was merely his interpretation and was no different from the interpretation of the United States as to the right of self-defense which it retained under the treaty.

"It can't mean one thing to one nation and another thing to another nation," retorted Senator Barkley.

"It is the same," countered Senator Borah. "Each nation has the right to express its interpretation. Great Britain has the right to assert the right of self-defense. We take exactly the same position. The terms of the treaty are the same for all nations—the right of self-defense among them. The principle is the same for all nations although we might not agree as to the application."

Senator Glass of Virginia wanted to know what the attitude of the United States would be toward a declaration by the League of Nations, if it ever made one, that it had a right to interfere in a coercive way in the Western Hemisphere.

Senator Borah replied that if a foreign government should interfere in the interest of bringing about peace, he could not see how the Monroe Doctrine would be challenged. He did not understand that the Monroe Doctrine would interfere with foreign governments undertaking to settle difficulties between two South american countries. Force had been used by foreign governments in South America several times, and the United States had never objected.

No Danger to Monroe Doctrine.

Turning to a prior statement that he believed the Monroe Doctrine had been "wrenched from its moorings" several times, Senator Borah remarked:

"Everything we are doing in South America we are claiming to do under the Monroe Doctrine.

"Whatever the United States might continue to do in South America," he added, "we are just as free as ever, after the ratification of the pending treaty." He told Senator Johnson that if he did not believe the Monroe Doctrine was protected under the treaty he would favor a reservation.

Senator Johnson asked if Senator Borah did not think the British note expressing that government's understanding of the application of the treaty was a reservation.

"I consider the British note, as Mr. Kellogg said, 'a construction,'" replied Senator Borah, adding that the note did not change the treaty in any respect, that it would be what it is, whether the note were written or not. He declared there was no difference in the British note and the note of Secretary Kellogg on the proposition of self-defense.

Senator Glass suggested to Senator Johnson that the British note was "the British Monroe Doctrine."

The British statement of her position of self-defense of her colonies, Senator Borah countered, was not extending the privilege of self-defense any more than the United States would be in defending Patagonia against some foreign power.

Holds Kellogg Stated Our Stand.

"Is it the Senator's position," inquired Senator Johnson, "that the United States stated her position in the Kellogg note?"

"Yes," Senator Borah answered.

"This treaty," interrupted Senator George, "neither restricts nor enlarges the right of self-defense."

"Quite right," Senator Borah commented.

Senator Walsh of Montana suggested that under the treaty, if Great Britain held her conduct was "self-defense," the other nations would have to accept her statement.

"Because Great Britain claims something is self-defense," responded Senator Borah, "it does not mean the United States will have to explain it."

He said also that there was nothing in the treaty, but what this government had advocated "since its natal day—settlement of all controversies by peaceful methods."

SAYS HOUSE HAS RIGHT TO APPROVE TREATY

Fish Supports Commendation of Kellogg Pact by Churchmen Before Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The right of the House to voice its approval of the Kellogg anti-war pact was asserted today by Representative Fish of New York at a meeting of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which was attended by a delegation representing the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America which appeared to urge favorable action on the Fish resolution proposing that the House endorse the Kellogg pact.

The delegation expressed "the earnest hope that the multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy, now before the Senate, may be promptly ratified."

The delegation consisted of the Rev. Harvey Baker Smith, president of the Washington Federation of Churches; the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church in Washington, which President and Mrs. Coolidge attend; the Rev. W. L. Darby, secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, and the Rev. Sidney L. Gulick, secretary of the Federal Council's commission on international justice and good-will.

On behalf of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, former president of the Federal Council, who was unable to attend, Dr. Smith presented to Chairman Porter of the house committee a letter in which Dr. Cadman said:

"The ratification of the general pact of Paris by sixty sovereign powers will exercise a powerful deterrent influence on incipient thoughts of resort to war.

"It pledges not only not to resort to war, but positively never to seek the solution of any dispute, whatever its nature or origin may be, except by pacific means, and has a constructive note of enormous significance, not yet generally appreciated. I hope the Senate will ratify this pact at the earliest possible date and with a very large majority."

Dr. Pierce presented the action of the Congregational Church's Commission on International Relations, expressing "earnest hope that the pact may be ratified as it now stands, majestic in its simplicity and in its all-inclusiveness."

A letter from Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, presented on behalf of its 4,000,000 members a plea for prompt ratification of the pact, as "the long stride toward world peace since the armistice."

"The House of Representatives," said Mr. Fish, "has the undeniable right, and I believe a duty, to express its views on important international policies. It has, since the inception of the government upheld this right and has on numerous occasions adopted resolutions regarding our foreign policies."

"The Kellogg pact, as stated by President Coolidge, is a simple and straightforward covenant and 'promises more for the peace of the world than any other agreement ever negotiated among the nations.'

"The wild talk about pacifist propaganda requires no answer. The American Legion, General Pershing, Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, Major Gen. O'Ryan and many other distinguished war veterans are enthusiastically in favor of the Briand-Kellogg pact to outlaw war. Such men do their own thinking and are not deceived by pacifists. They believe the proposal to place war outside the law, except in self-defense, is a step in the right direction.

"The proposal is in accordance with American ideals and stands on its own basis without any entangling alliances or reference to the League of Nations. It is keeping faith with those who paid the supreme sacrifice and amounts to the greatest bloodless victory for peace since the beginning of history."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Representative Maas of Minnesota, author of a resolution proposing an inquiry into activities of organizations opposing national defense legislation, sent a letter today to the Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill of New York, president of the World Alliance for International Friendship, who has circularized Congress protesting against the passage of the fifteen-cruiser bill.

Mr. Maas calls the circular the "most mischievous piece of interference" with legislation he had seen in a long time, and adds:

"Your attempt to influence legislation against national defense, adopted by the people, is vicious, particularly as it misrepresents the situation under the cloak of being for international good-will and peace."

Program of Rural Socialization Advocated by Trotsky and Other Exiled Leaders Was Adopted.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 1.—Events which led up to the exile of Leon Trotsky and other Opposition leaders by the Communist Party Congress at the beginning of last year and the final adoption of his policy, though he is still an outcast, may be explained as follows:

Trotsky had seen before the Communists of the majority group that socialism and capitalism could not really amalgamate inside one State whose avowed purpose was not only Russian but world socialism. It must not be forgotten that the essence of Marxism, which replaced the Greek Church as the orthodox religion of official Russia, is class warfare. Class warfare means a fight to destroy properties and employing individualists and a fight to replace them by employment and ownership of the State.

The outside world, doubtless, thought individual property and ownership were destroyed by the Bolshevist revolution. In point of fact this never was true, but in any case both now were definitely restored—on a small scale, but liable to grow. Urban "Nepmen" (New Economic Policy adherents) did, indeed, grow to such an extent that it became necessary to take "extra-legal" measures to repress them; that is, the deliberate stretching of taxation and labor laws to put them out of business.

Trotsky Demanded Action.

This occurred in the years 1924 and 1925. During that period Trotsky was demanding similar measures against the same Nepman class in the villages. From the Communist viewpoint he was probably right, though premature. His controversy with Joseph Stalin, secretary general of the Communist party, and the Communist party majority so occupied the energies of Russia's rulers until the end of 1927 that no review of the internal situation or sweeping decisions could be possible. Once the Opposition was disposed of, however, the victorious majority had leisure to look around and see what was happening in the country they ruled.

They found a situation that not only, to their sorrow, bore out what the Trotskyists had been saying but that would have staggered any political leaders less accustomed to crises than the Bolsheviki. State collections of grain from the peasants, which meant mobilization in the hands of the State of the principal source of the national wealth, had fallen during October, November and December, despite the excellent harvest, to a dangerous degree. Far from having an expected surplus for export the Soviet State found itself with barely enough grain to feed the army and urban centres.

The last fortnight of January was a strange and anxious period in Moscow, with rumor carrying wild stories of surrender to peasant influences by importation through urban Nepmen of manufactured goods for which the State could not afford to pay, but which might be exchanged for needed grain.

Shaken by the fratricidal strife with Trotskyists, the majority group seemed on the verge of abdication of its most sacred principles. But Stalin was not unworthy of the name he bears—the "man of steel," as Lenin called him. He called the Communist party to action. A grain collection quota was given to district chiefs throughout the country with orders that it must be filled, and the whole mechanism of the Communist party—the army Ogpu (secret police), Communist Youth League and other government organizations—was employed in the struggle for grain.

Natural Market Closed.

Peasants were barred by armed troops from their natural markets and forced to sell their grain in the villages to State collectors at State prices. Private competition in grain buying was suppressed and the grain "bazaars" in the towns were closed by order of the authorities. At the same time efforts were made to rush manufactured goods needed by the peasants to the villages.

The result was that the State grain collections, although failing to provide a surplus for export—which led to a $100,000,000 deficit in the national trade balance—nevertheless were sufficient for the paramount needs of the urban centres and the army, though at that it was found necessary to import more than 150,000 tons of foreign grain, despite the strain on the State exchequer.

The measures used to achieve this result—"extraordinary measures," as they were rightly called—which in reality corresponded closely to the "extra-legal" measures above mentioned against the urban Nepmen in the preceding years, roused widespread discontent among the wealthier elements in the villages. Individual peasant enterprise had received such a comparatively free hand since the introduction of the "Nep" in 1921 as not only to become really powerful but it had begun to realize its power.

In May and June such a chorus of peasant protest reached the Kremlin that the Communist leaders faltered. A "plenary session" of their highest executives in July decided that extraordinary measures of grain collection should be abolished and never repeated. Mr. Stalin himself and Premier Rykoff reiterated this pledge in speeches broadcast throughout the country, and it seemed to foreign observers in Moscow that, after all, the peasant individualists had not emerged from the struggle defeated.

Period of Indecision.

There followed, in fact, a curious period of indecision during August and September, when the Kremlin leaders appeared to shrink from tackling the problem of grain collections. As in the previous year, they had no manufactured goods with which to meet the peasant needs, but now they could no longer resort to "extraordinary measures" for getting grain.

Collections in July, August and September were actually below the previous year, but October showed a figure that was a record in the whole history of Soviet Russia, and by the end of the month the total was ahead of the same period of 1927.

To the Kremlin this seemed proof that the energy of the Communist party and its allied organizations had after all a real chance of overcoming the stubborn individualism of the peasants. There were, of course, pessimists who declared that the success of the October grain collections simply meant that the peasants then were paying the chief proportion of their annual taxes and that November and December would show less satisfactory results.

They were partly justified, although collections to the end of the year are well above those of 1927. In any case, the October success encouraged the Kremlin to begin serious organization of a fight against the rural Nepmen.

The plenary session of Communist executives in November decided to attempt a program of rural socialization comparable to that successfully carried out in the urban centres. That this was precisely what Trotsky and his brilliant colleagues, now sitting desolate in Siberian exile, had advocated was of no concern to Stalin, who had realized, like them, that within the limits of Russia—and the far narrower limits of Communist mentality—no abiding compromise between the opposing forces of socialism and individualism was possible—one or the other must be supreme.

It is characteristic of Russia that the dispute came to a head on the agrarian question, which transcends in importance the other internal issues.

11 MEXICAN REBELS SHOT.

Band Accused of Railway Outrages Was Court-Martialed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—Natalio Espinosa, a rebel chief of the State of Aguascallientes, and ten of his followers, all reported to have participated in railway outrages in that State, were summarily courtmartialed and shot at daybreak this morning after a surprise capture by Federals under command of Brig. Gen. Juan Izaguirre, chief of military operations in the State.

According to information received by the Ministry of War, Espinosa and his companions were taken after a night march by Federals who were advised of the rebels' presence a few miles from the city of Aguascallientes. After an exchange of shots the rebels surrendered.

A considerable number of railway outrages are charged to their account. The bodies of those shot now hang from telegraph poles.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4 (AP).—A Guadalajara dispatch to The Universal said that insurgents who attacked the village of Coquimatlan, kidnapped Ruben Mora, manager of the railroad station there. Four insurgents were killed when their band was repulsed from an attack upon Ayotitlan.

Advices to The Prensa from Guadalajara say that a passenger bus was ambushed between the towns of La Barca and Chapala. The timely arrival of troops saved the passengers from robbery or other harm.

KING LESS RESTLESS; LOCAL GAIN IS NOTED

Ruler Has a Quieter Night and a Good Day—General Condition Stationary.

DIETETICS NURSE CALLED IN

Dukes of York and Gloucester Plan Week at Sandringham if Father's Progress Continues.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—King George's general condition remained unaltered today, but the local condition was slightly better. He had a better night and a restful day, which, as far as they went, were considered a good sign.

Lord Dawson, Sir Stanley Hewett and Sir Hugh M. Rigby were in consultation this morning, and Lord Dawson returned for his customary examination in the afternoon.

Drs. Hewett and Woods again applied the ray treatment this evening. Although the ray therapy has been found beneficial, the doctors are able to apply it only every other day.

If the King's condition continues to give no cause for additional anxiety the Dukes of York and Gloucester will go on Monday to Sandringham, where the royal family spends most of the Summer months, to join a small party for the week, and the Prince of Wales will probably go to Sandringham the following week.

Tonight's bulletin said:

"The King had a quiet day. There is no change to report in his Majesty's condition."

This morning's report said:

"The King had a quieter night; the local condition shows a slight improvement, while the general condition remains stationary."

Dr. Downey, Archbishop of Liverpool, who has just returned from a visit to Rome, declared tonight that Pope Pius had told him that he had been praying for the King daily, and added:

"The King is not going to die."

The Pope also remarked on what a wonderful constitutional monarch George V had been and how he had spent himself in the service of his people.

King is Sleeping Better.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Today, for the first time since Dec. 12, when Sir Hugh Rigby performed an operation for drainage of the infected area of the chest, the surgeon's name did not appear on the evening bulletin.

Its absence bore out a statement in the official communication to the medical journals last night that the wound of the operation no longer requires surgical attention.

The King has been sleeping better of late and, as nothing was said to the contrary in official bulletins, it was supposed that he has been taking nourishment in sufficient quantity to maintain, if not actually increase, his strength.

The restlessness that has prevented him from getting adequate repose on two previous nights seemed to have left him in a large degree and he passed the night more quietly. This, it was assumed, would prove helpful, adding to the powers of recuperation he needs to lift him out of this sadly debilitated state.

The task of slowly increasing the amount of nourishment has become a factor of first importance. This duty had been placed in the hands of a special nurse, Sister Rose Simmonds.

The Daily Mail will say tomorrow that Sister Simmonds had a year of special training in the most modern principles of dietetics at the Rockefeller Institute in the United States, where she went three years ago. She is now head of the dietetic department of the London Hospitals, one of the largest of the metropolitan institutions.

Sir Stanley Hewett for the present will continue to sleep at Buckingham Palace, it was made known tonight. The Prince of Wales dined tonight with his mother.

BRIAND SAID TO BACK LEAGUE AIR FORCE PLAN

Harmon's Proposal to Enlist Aviators of World to Avert War Stirs French Interest.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Outlining a plan which is said to have been encouraged and fostered by Foreign Minister Briand, the Paris newspaper Matin published an interview yesterday with Clifford B. Harmon, American president of the International League of Aviators, describing a new force of aviators from all nations which could be formed to aid the League of Nations in preserving and enforcing peace.

"I have had the honor to discuss the suggestion with both M. Briand and the War Minister, M. Painlevé," says Mr. Harmon. "It is, briefly, that each nation interested in maintaining peace should eventually place at the disposition of the League of Nations a certain proportion of its best pilots, both military and commercial, who, in an emergency, would serve to carry messages of peace, and if necessary play the rôle of air police wherever a threat of war should develop.

"Their primary duty would be to keep populations informed in an aggressor country regarding their danger, and if need be they could be used to carry a threat, which would be sufficient to preserve peace.

"I know that the question of an international army was discussed at the Peace Conference and met with insurmountable opposition, and that the same idea has been brought up in the League of Nations, both in secret sessions and in the disarmament discussions. But it appears that what is unrealizable for all forms of arms might be effectively accomplished in aviation alone, which is the most mobile branch of warfare.

"I do not underestimate the difficulties, but I believe that with the support of public opinion, the proposal should receive serious attention by the peoples and their governments."

Mr. Harmon proposes that the pilots should have special uniform insignia, and he suggests the name "Silver Wings of Peace" for their service.

POINT FOR GILDA GRAY.

Husband Drops Counter-Charges and Her Lawyers Expect Divorce.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 4 (AP).—Legal advisers of Gilda Gray, screen star and dancer, said today that she probably would obtain a divorce by default from her husband, Gil Boag of New York, following an announcement that Boag had withdrawn counter-charges to the dancer's suit in the Circuit Court at Port Washington, Wis.

The counter-charges were ordered quashed in a telegram received by Albert W. Grady of Port Washington, Boag's attorney, and the order permitting the withdrawal was signed by Court Commissioner Walter A. Corrigan.

Boag, by withdrawing his charges and making no answer, clears the way for the dancer to obtain a decree by default on her charges of cruel and inhuman treatment, lawyers said.

Miss Gray is at the home of her parents at Cudahy, a Milwaukee suburb.

OPEN PHILLIPS BANK BOXES.

But Authorities Decline to Tell What They Contain.

Two more of the safety deposit boxes suspected by authorities of having been used to conceal the assets of the late John M. Phillips, Queens sewer pipe dealer, were inspected under a court order yesterday. The two were in the Bowery and East River National Bank, Broadway and Forty-first Street. Warren G. Price, Collector of Internal Revenue, a representative of whom opened the boxes, declined to disclose the contents.

Bank officals likewise refused to discuss the matter. The boxes, it was said, were under the name of Dr. Thomas M. Cassidy, veterinary, close friend of Phillips and brother of Joseph Cassidy, a former Borough President of Queens. Boxes already opened, so far as has been learned, have contained a total of only about $75,000, although Phillips is alleged to have defrauded the government of $1,376,000 in unreported taxes.

AIR RATES REDUCED ON EUROPEAN LINES

Delegates From 11 Countries at Berlin Adopt 10 Per Cent Round Trip Cut.

VIENNA FARE BELOW TRAIN'S

Non-Stop Trips to Scandinavian Cities Planned—Tempelhof Field to Be Augmented.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Representatives of commercial flying enterprises in eleven European countries decided at a conference which opened here today that the results of last year's business warranted a reduction of 10 per cent on the price of passage for return trip tickets. This will reduce the cost of travel by airplane below that for first class in the international express trains and is expected materially to increase the use of the service.

The delegates were all convinced that the greatest usefulness in air service lies in long flights. For this reason the plan tried last year of making a non-stop flight from Berlin to Paris and Vienna will be continued and other "express" services will be begun, especially between Central Europe and the Scandinavian countries, where flying is becoming immensely popular.

Next Summer's schedule calls for a flight time between Berlin and Vienna of three and one-half hours, whereas it takes twelve by train. On the long non-stop lines more planes will be used and instead of one service daily several lines will increase theirs to three. Until the new giant machines now in course of construction have proved their worth as carriers of passengers none of them will be used on the Lufthansa lines, but it is hoped that machines of greater capacity can soon be put into service as a means of reducing operation costs.

One of the features at the opening session of the convention was the friendly spirit of the representatives. Conclusions were reached without the slightest sign of discord.

Berlin has found her Tempelhof Flying Field too small for the growing business, and has acquired 80,000 square meters (about twenty acres) of additional space adjoining the present site. Another new hangar will be constructed to accommodate visiting sport planes. For wet weather a long concrete runway is being constructed. The Tempelhof field will also be equipped with new radio stations for use in finding locations for planes. The field's triangulation system of orientation will be the most modern in the world, Lufthansa officials declare.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio today said that the death toll of gales and tidal waves in the Niigata area had reached 150.

GLOUCESTER IS THROWN INTO ICY BROOK IN HUNT

Duke Is Drenched, Chilled and Mud-Spattered but Unhurt—His Horse Stumbled.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Duke of Gloucester was thrown from his horse into a brook while hunting with the Quorn hounds near Melton Mowbray today. He was drenched in icy water, but was not hurt.

The Duke was shivering cold as he scrambled out of the water and a hurry call was sent back to his grooms, who were some distance away. They brought the horse back to Melton Mowbray, while the Duke went off by automobile to get dry clothing.

His brother, the Prince of Wales, also hunted with the Quorn hounds, but did not have a mishap all afternoon.

The Duke of York spent the day hunting with the Pytchley hounds in Northamptonshire.

MELTON MOWBRAY, Jan. 4 (AP).—It was the stumbling of his horse that threw the Duke of Gloucester into a muddy brook today. The Duke landed expertly on his feet and escaped injury, but the mud had to be scraped off his face and clothing.

The Duke has often been spoken of as the best rider in the royal family. He has figured in far fewer mishaps like that of today than his eldest brother.

SEEK WEST DEBATE IN OPEN

Opponents Will Ask Public Session of Senate on His Confirmation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Senate will be asked to debate the nomination of Roy O. West to be Secretary of the Interior in open session instead of behind closed doors, Senator Nye, chairman of the Public Lands Committee, said today. He does not intend to make the motion himself.

Consideration of the nomination will be delayed several days under an agreement between Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Deneen of Illinois. Mr. Borah did not want it to interfere with debate on the anti-war treaty.

Senators Norris, Walsh of Montana and Nye are against the confirmation of Mr. West because he also is a member of the Federal Power Commission, before which Insull companies have applications pending for power projects in several States, and at one time he owned stock in the Insull companies.

To Test Sanity of Northcott.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 4 (AP).—Judge George R. Freeman today appointed Dr. Edson Steele and Dr. M. G. Carter of Los Angeles and Dr. G. M. Webster of Patton, Cal., to examine into the sanity of Gordon Stewart Northcott, who is on trial here charged with the murder of three boys on his chicken ranch. The judge said that he believed Northcott was sane and that he named the commission as a precautionary measure.

CROAT CHIEFS VISIT KING AT BELGRADE

Matchek and Pribitchevitch Press Demand for Autonomy of New Provinces.

LARGE CROWDS CHEER THEM

Alexander Is Expected to Ask Koroshetz or Davidovitch Today to Form New Cabinet.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Jan. 4.—The arrival today of the Croat Peasant Democrat leaders, Dr. Matchek and Svetozar Pribitchevitch, for their first visit to Belgrade since a solemn oath was taken, at the time of the assassination of the Croat leader, Stefan Raditch, never to return to Belgrade until Croat freedom was assured, caused a sensation. Croat students met the leaders at the station, where speeches were made. Large crowds of Croat residents of Belgrade gathered outside the station and loudly cheered.

Dr. Matchek was received for half an hour in audience by King Alexander. He later said he had laid before the monarch a manifesto prepared by the Croat democratic coalition demanding freedom and full autonomy for all the new provinces of Yugoslavia, involving a revision of the Constitution.

In the afternoon M. Pribitchevitch was received for a forty-minute audience. On leaving the palace, he said he had made it plain to the King that the Croats adhered to the demands of Aug. 1 for full autonomy. The first necessity, he said, was for a neutral government to supervise the legal elections, failing which the very existence of Yugoslavia was threatened.

The financial situation of the country was very bad, declared M. Pribitchevitch.

"If any attempt is made to form a new coalition government such as has just resigned, the Croats will reply with deeds not words," he added.

This is not to be taken to mean that the Croats intend a revolution, it was asserted. Presumably it suggests a Croat refusal to pay taxes.

Later the King received Premier Koroshetz, then the leader of the Moslems, and Davidovitch, leader of the Serbian Democrats, who himself caused the fall of the Koroshetz Cabinet.

Despite King Alexander's personal success in inducing the Croat leaders to come to Belgrade, Serbian opinion in the capital is that the endeavors of the King to bring about a reconciliation are on the road to failure. Dr. Matchek, who leaves tonight for Zagreb is reproached by Serbian opinion for his insistence on the Croat demands in the sharpest possible form. M. Pribitchevitch is remaining for several days at Belgrade.

The King is expected to issue an invitation either to Father Koroshetz or to M. Davidovitch tomorrow to form a new government without attempting to include the Croats. Zagreb is feeling equally pessimistic.

27 MISSING IN A WRECK OFF THE SPANISH COAST

Believed to Have Been Lost When French Steamer Sank After Hitting Rocks in Storm.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PORT OF MAHON, Minorca, Spain, Jan. 4.—Only six of the crew of thirty-three were rescued when the French freight steamer Malakoff hit the rocks and foundered off Cape Artruix, Minorca, in the Balearic Isles, during a storm yesterday. The vessel went down six minutes after sending a signal of distress.

Those who were rescued declared that most of the members of the crew were asleep below when the ship began to fill with water and that there was no time to warn them.

The survivors are being cared for at the village of Ciudadela, where it is said that no hope exists that the others were saved.

The Malakoff was a 2,819-ton ship, registered at the Port of Havre. The vessel was bound from Dunkirk for Madagascar, via Algiers.

MEXICANS PREDICT PARLEY.

Papers Expect Bankers From New York on Debt Mission.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—Although no official statement has been issued from the Ministry of Finance, this afternoon's papers insist that another group of representatives of the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico at New York will journey south soon to confer with Luis Montes de Oca, Minister of Finance, before the final closing of the expected new international financial agreement.

Reports here are that Ambassador Morrow insists that further conferences will be necessary before definite rehabilitation of Mexican finances can become an accomplished fact.

BROWNE BELITTLES DRAWINGS IN BOOK

Author of "Graphic Bible" Says "Monkey-Doodles" on Maps Are Not Important.

TELLS OF RIFT WITH ARTIST

Illustrator, Who Seeks $20,000 and Part of Royalties, Threatened Him, Writer Testifies.

Lewis Browne, former rabbi and author of "The Graphic Bible," characterized parts of the illustrations in the volume as "monkey-doodles and jiggles" in testimony yesterday afternoon before Referee Herman Joseph at 115 Broadway.

Mr. Browne, who is author of "This Believing World," "Stranger Than Fiction," and other books, is being sued for $20,000 and a share of royalties by Marcus Rothkowitz, an artist, of 10 East Fifteenth Street. The artist contends it was the drawings in "The Graphic Bible" which made it truly graphic.

Mr. Rothkowitz, in asking for "proper recognition" of his work, seeks to restrain the Macmillan Company, publishers, from further distribution of "The Graphic Bible" until his name is placed on the maps he allegedly drew and until he receives a share of the royalties.

Cross-examined by Milton C. Weisman, counsel for the plaintiff, Mr. Browne said he had engaged Mr. Rothkowitz to letter and draw borders for about 250 maps, to illustrate "The Graphic Bible." The volume was to tell the story from "Genesis to Revelations, in animated maps and charts."

The witness said he had agreed to pay the artist $500 for the work, this being at the rate of $2.50 an hour. He declared a test had indicated that Mr. Rothkowitz could finish a map in an hour.

It was later found, according to Mr. Browne, that 250 charts and maps were too large a number for the book and as a result he ordered ninety-four maps and charts. Although there were to be fewer illustrations, Mr. Browne said, he agreed to give the artist $500, Mr. Rothkowitz agreeing to do additional work on the reduced number of illustrations.

Asked to explain what the work was to consist of, Mr. Browne said: "Mr. Rothkowitz was to draw the borders around the maps. He was also to put in the necessary monkey-doodles and jiggles." The "monkey-doodles and jiggles," according to the author, were the animals, birds and ocean waves drawn in designated spots on the maps and charts.

Differences of opinion between author and artist developed shortly after the dummy volume arrived from the publishers, it was testified. At one time, after the book was on the market, Mr. Rothkowitz threatened the author, Mr. Browne testified.

"What is the most important part of the maps?" asked Mr. Weisman.

"Not the jiggles," answered Mr. Browne.

In his complaint Mr. Rothkowitz describes his work on the maps as "different from the ordinary maps in that they contain many decorative features such as small drawings of fish, dolphins and ships, and were designed to be and actually were animated because of the plaintiff's style and technique in drawing and decorating."

Mr. Browne in his answer says he not only gave Mr. Rothkowitz the $500 agreed upon but added $100 as a present.

The action against Mr. Browne and the Macmillan Company was brought in the Supreme Court Nov. 20. Justice Isidor Wasservogel referred the suit to Referee Joseph for judgment.

LAYS JERGE MURDER TO GANG OF FORGERS

O'Farrell Says He Has Information Victim 'Double-Crossed' Associates in $48,000 Deal.

Val O'Farrell, a private detective, said yesterday that the motive for the murder of Edwin C. Jerge last June was not bootlegging or drugs, but was the double-crossing of a gang of check forgers. Jerge was shot in an automobile at Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street at 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon. This was one of the unsolved murders, culminating in the Rothstein case, which led to the resignation of former Police Commissioner Warren. The police theory has been that Jerge was killed by a gang of drug peddlers and bootleggers whom he had "shaken down" while posing as a Federal agent or policeman.

O'Farrell said that he had received information from his "connections" that Jerge was killed because he pocketed the proceeds of a $48,000 forgery and then reported to the gang that he had been unable to cash the check. The detective also said that Jerge was known as "Chicago Eddie Mack," and was arrested in Cleveland several years ago for forgery under the name of Harold Atwater. He added that the gang that killed Jerge had made away with $1,000,000 in check forgeries in New York in the past year.

H. A. Crowe, manager of the criminal division of the W. J. Burns International Detective Agency, Inc., representing the Americans Bankers' Association and several surety companies, ridiculed O'Farrell's statements. Crowe said that there had been no $48,000 forgery in New York, and that no organized gang of forgers was now operating in New York.

Crowe did not deny that forgers had obtained $1,000,000 in New York in the past year, but said that he did not believe Jerge had had any connection with them, as his agency had no record of Jerge as a forger.

The Automobile Show—
Let's Give 'Em a Hand!

Here's to the Automobile Show over there in Grand Central Palace! They're the ones that started all this high speed—mile-a-minute—step-on-the-gas—let's go places and see things—modern life. The rapid change—the stock market speed—the new fashions in everything. The mass production—mass distribution world of the automobile.

THEY'RE to blame for most of the traffic congestion, too, only let's don't blame them. Let's give 'em a hand. They're doing their best and trying to make good, just like the rest of us. If it weren't for them we'd never be able to get a taxi on a stormy, wintry night and we'd still be looking for hitching posts instead of parking space when we drive in from the country to do a little shopping.

It's a long way from 1842, when the first store of Gimbels was founded, to the present day. When trains and subways, Hudson tubes, buses, automobiles, surface cars, airplanes and even airships provide transportation to Gimbels of 1929.

Gimbels of 1929 is universal in appeal as the Ford. Alert and attractive as the Chevrolet. Slick and new fashioned as the Chrysler. The Buick—"when better stores are built, Gimbels will build them." The Packard—"ask the woman who shops here." The Lasalle—"a store beautiful." "As comfortable as a Hupmobile." Colorful and customer-worthy as the Marmon, the Nash or the Stutz. And on through the Show over there in the Palace!

Gimbels of 1929 is a new model store, as most of you know. New features, improvements, greater buying power, a speedier store. Easier than ever to shop in, just as cars are easier than ever to ride in. The latest fashions without increase in price. And you, the customer, get more per dollar, just as you get more per gallon. You might even say Gimbels is equipped with balloon tires—it's so easy to shop in Gimbels.

Just as you want easy riding, economical, fashionable cars so do you want easy shopping, money saving, fashion knowing stores. Minutes count in traffic. Minutes count in shopping. Gimbels of 1929 is the kind of a store you want, the kind of a store that this high speed, quick changing, rapid moving—let's go places and see things—modern automobile age—demands.

MAIL IS RESTORED TO THE BERENGARIA

Order Limiting Letters Is Lifted When Postoffice Learns She Is About to Depart.

SAILS WITH REDUCED CARGO

Officials Deny Any Discrimination Against Cunarders, Saying Ship Was Behind Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The order limiting mail to be put aboard the Cunarder Berengaria to letters specially addressed for dispatch by that vessel was rescided today by Second Assistant Postmaster General Glover, in charge of foreign mails, when the Cunard officials informed him that the liner would sail early tomorrow morning.

No general order had been issued by Mr. Glover discriminating against Cunard liners and limiting mail shipments to such boats to those letters which were specifically addressed to go on them.

Berengaria in Thirty Hours Late.

Mr. Glover said the order to shift mail that ordinarily would go on the Berengaria was issued because the ship arrived thirty hours late and was expected to depart for Europe on Sunday. The mail, he said, was assigned to the De Grasse, which has sailed, and other mail shipments had been intended for the Baltic, which sailed today.

When informed today that the Berengaria had expedited its coaling and revictualing and would sail tomorrow morning, Mr. Glover instructed that delayed mails be placed abroad the Berengaria. The shipment will amount to 2,200 bags. The order to give the mails to the Baltic and DeGrasse had been made, he said, only in the interest of speedy service.

Postmaster General New said the Government has no plans for changing its transatlantic mail service and that no new policy could be made without his sanction. He regarded the protests of American business men and the Cunard Line as without justification and said that a little investigation would have shown that it was only a temporary arrangement.

"It is distressing, indeed," he said, "that those who are so much interested to see that the English lines get all the American mails do not protest against the action of the English authorities in dispatching mail from Europe."

Tells of Delays at Christmas

"Every Christmas, American mail comes late because the English authorities do not see fit to send it via American boats. For instance, the Olympic arrived here on Wednesday before Christmas with 15,000 bags of American mail. The Leviathan came a day later with 4,000 bags. Mail was not placed aboard the Leviathan but was held some time so that it might be given to the Majestic, which arrived here on Christmas day with 15,000 bags. This has happened every Christmas and investigation might show that American boats get very little mail from Europe."

The Berengaria incident has called attention to the subject of American foreign mails and some members of congress said today that when the American merchant marine reaches a greater development there should be some regulation which would give preference to American vessels in mail contracts. It was recalled that in 1847, when the American merchant marine was a power, England tried to prevent American vessels carrying mails by imposing an extra charge on mail carried by American ships.

Berengaria Off at Midnight.

The Berengaria sailed at midnight last night with about 2,500 bags of mail. It was estimated at the offices of the Cunard Line that she would have carried more than 4,000 bags if cargoes had not been transferred to the Baltic and the DeGrasse.

The loss to the Cunard Line could not be estimated as the income which it receives from this source ranges from about $3 a bag for third class to $9 a bag for first class mail, based on the international rate of 26.3 cents per 100 pounds. Officials of the line said the withdrawal of the Postoffice Department's order was "very gratifying."

Shipping circles were not convinced that the expected late sailing of the Berengaria was the reason behind the order which would have kept all but specially addressed mail from her and speculated on the inclusion of the Ausonia and the Andania, also of the Cunard fleet, in the order. The ban on these ships was not lifted yesterday although they will sail today as scheduled.

The steamship American Banker of the American Merchant Line sailed Thursday afternoon with about 4,500 bags of mail. The Berengaria will beat her to Europe by two days or more and could concede to the Baltic forty-eight hours or more and still be the first to arrive.

OUTCOME RELIEVES LONDON.

Cunard Officials Feared Berengaria Ban Would Arouse Ill Will.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Relief was expressed by shipping and postal officials tonight after American postal authorities rescinded their order transferring mails from the Berengaria. Neither the Cunard Line nor the British postoffice was perturbed by the earlier American action but there was a fear that the whole episode might produce further Anglo-American ill will in the shipping world.

Cunard Line officials here would make no comment on the matter today, saying they preferred to wait to discover what caused the trouble. They believe Cunard ships would receive just as much American mail as formerly even if the rule about special addressing were imposed. They are confident the American public would send mail by the Mauretania, Aquitania and Berengaria to get the benefit of the extra speed rather than trust to the seven-day and eight-day boats.

Adverse Comment in Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Expressions of opinion heard in Paris today indicated that American business men here strongly resented the order of the United States postoffice authorities, transferring New York mail from the Cunarder Berengaria to the White Star liner Baltic. Before news of the rescinding of this action arrived it was pointed out here that it meant a delay of three or four days in the arrival here of American mail. The general opinion seemed to be summed up in one comment, which was that when it came to handling mail the most important consideration should be speed.

BERENGARIA CARRIES 1,200 PASSENGERS

Mooney of General Motos Sails, Planning to Return for May Conference Here.

The Cunarder Berengaria sailed last night for Southampton and Cherbourg with 1,200 passengers, of whom 625 were in the first cabin. Among those sailing was J. D. Mooney, vice president of the General Motors Corporation in charge of overseas operations and president of the General Motors Export Company. He said the corporation was continuing to expand its business in the overseas markets.

"During 1928 General Motors sold 290,000 cars and trucks in the overseas markets as compared to 193,830 in 1927," said Mr. Mooney. "Net sales wholesale last year totaled $265,000,000 as compared to $171,991,261 in 1927."

Mr. Mooney will return in time for the managing directors' conference here in May which will be attended by executives of General Motors from all parts of the world.

Alvin T. Fuller, who retired on Thursday from the Governorship of Massachusetts, was on the liner on his way to a two-weeks visit to France, where he plans to visit art exhibitions. Mr. Fuller was accompanied by Mrs. Fuller, his mother, Mrs. Flora A. Fuller; his sister, Mrs. Martha Fuller Halsey, and her daughter, Hope. Mr. Fuller said he planned to take a rest but did not consider himself finished with public life.

Another passengers was Ery Kehaya, president of the Standard Commercial Tobacco Company, importers of Turkish tobacco, who is going on an extended trip through Europe and the Near East. While in Germany he will start the manufacture and sale of a new cigarette along American lines and will confer in Athens with President Venezelos on the use of American machinery and methods in agriculture in Greece.

Lucius R. Eastman, president of the American Arbitration Association, sailed on the Berengaria on his way to Geneva to attend the meeting of the Economic Committee of the League of Nations, of which he is the sole American member. Mr. Eastman said he expected the new year would see the same rapid progress in commercial arbitration that was made last year in political arbitration.

CALL SLAIN MAN A CONVICT.

Jersey Police Say Fingerprints Indicate Victim Was Paul Farone.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 4.—State police partly identified late today the man found shot to death in the Bargaintown woods on New Year's Day. Fingerprints indicated, according to the police, that he was Paul Farone, an ex-convict, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

The police were not certain that the man was Farone and no one else had identified the body. They said they had learned nothing further as to the exact manner in which the man was slain, or where.

Farone is said to have served time in New York State for burglary. His sister, Mrs. Joseph Carillo, of 5,862 Seelman Street, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., is expected here tomorrow to complete the identification.

It is the theory of the State police that the man was slain elsewhere and his body brought to Bargaintown and thrown from an automobile.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Paul Farone, identified as the man who was shot to death in New Jersey New Year's Eve, was about 29 years old and had spent most of his life in this city. His only serious clash with local authorities was in 1925, when he was arrested here on a charge of burglary when dresses stolen from a store in Ballston Spa were found in a hotel room occupied by Farone.

He was sentenced to Clinton Prison and transferred soon after to Great Meadows, where he served about eighteen months, and was released on appeal.

POLICE CLUB ANTI-FASCISTI.

Rout 300 Foes of Gen. Balbo When Italian Official Goes to Dinner.

Another anti-Fascisti demonstration took place last night when General Italo Balbo, Italian Under-Secretary for Aeronautics and a close associate of Mussolini, left the Ritz, where he is stopping, to attend a dinner given in his honor at the Biltmore. A crowd of 300 had collected on Madison Avenue and were driven back by policemen who used their clubs freely.

General Balbo was escorted from one hotel to the other by five policemen. The reserves of the East Twenty-second Street, East Thirty-fifth Street, East Fifty-first Street and East Sixty-seventh Street stations were on hand to preserve order.

At the dinner Count Ignazio Thaon di Revel, president of the Fascisti of America, presided. The principal speaker was Nobile Giacomo de Martino, Italian Ambassador.

Comparative Statistics of Europe.

The Instituto Centrale di Statistica of Italy has completed a comparative study of certain demographic data pertaining to the principal countries of Europe, according to the Italian correspondent of The Journal of the American Medical Association. For 1927, Italy had the largest excess of births over deaths of any country—namely, 475,000. In Germany, the corresponding figure was 408,00; in England, 179,000, and in France, 65,000. The number of marriages contracted in France had decreased, but in the other countries reviewed there was an increase. The birth rate is declining in all the countries considered. In Italy, the birth rate dropped from 27.2 per thousand population in 1926 to 26.9 in 1927; in England, from 17.8 to 16.7; in France, from 18.8 to 18.1; in Germany, from 19.5 to 18.3. The death rate for Italy declined from 16.9 per thousand population in 1926 to 15.9 in 1927; in France, from 17.5 to 16.5; in England, the death rate rose from 11.6 to 12.2 and in Germany, from 11.5 to 12.0 per thousand population.

BILL TO REAPPORTION VOTED OUT TO HOUSE

Census Committee, 7 to 6, Acts Favorably on Measure After Threats by Leaders.

IT WILL COME UP THURSDAY

Bitter Contest Over the Proposal Is Expected, Led by States Which Lose Seats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—One of the sharpest fights of this session of Congress is expected to come to a head next Thursday when the reapportionment bill, a favorable report on which was was voted by the census committee today, is brought to the House floor for final consideration and vote. The bill will be taken up, leaders announced today, under a special rule strictly limiting debate so as to compel a roll-call vote before adjournment Thursday evening.

In its present form the bill, sponsored by Representative E. Hart Fenn, Republican, Connecticut, chairman of the committee, would shift twenty-three House seats among the several States.

The opposition to the proposal is largely composed of the seventeen delegations whose States will lose House seats and electoral college representation if the bill becomes law.

Rural and Dry Members Opposed.

Besides the solid phalanx of losing States, the bill will be bitterly fought by rural and dry members of other States who fear an increase in the Congressional strength of wet, populous centres.

The States which would lose seats, according to estimates of the 1930 census, which will be the base for the reapportionment, are as follows:

Alabama	1	Missouri	3
Indiana	2	Nebraska	1
Iowa	2	New York	1
Kansas	1	North Dakota	1
Kentucky	2	Pennsylvania	1
Louisiana	1	Tennessee	1
Maine	1	Vermont	1
Massachusetts	1	Virginia	1
Mississippi	2

Michigan, under the proposed redistribution, would gain four seats and other States would gain as follows:

Arizona	1	North Carolina	1
California	6	Ohio	3
Connecticut	1	Oklahoma	1
Florida	1	Texas	2
New Jersey	2	Washington	1

Under the proposed reapportionment the House will have 435 members, as at present. In rearranging this total the gains go to States which have gained most rapidly in population. Therefore, when additional members are given to States where the increase in population has been greatest, it is necessary to reduce the number of members from States which have not shown such a large gain in population. This explains why New York, for instance, will lose a seat if the measure goes through in its present shape.

The bill to be voted on Thursday is virtually the same measure which was recommitted to the census committee in the last session after a desperate fight in which the losing States mustered 200 votes against 179 in favor of passing the measure.

At that time fifty-one members of the House were absent and leaders, including Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the floor leader, expressed confidence today that most of last year's absentees will be present Thursday to support the bill.

Report Follows Demand for Action.

The favorable action of the census committee today was the direct result of threats by Representative Tilson, Representative B. H. Snell of New York, chairman of the rules committee, and others that unless the bill were reported at once, steps would be taken to discharge the committee from further responsibility.

Moreover, the threat of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan to filibuster against a bill to authorize appropriations for taking the 1930 census unless the House acts quickly on reapportionment is credited with having stirred the House committee to make its favorable report.

When the committee met it was deadlocked, 7 to 7, until Representative H. D. Moorman, Democrat, of Kentucky agreed to be paired against the bill with an absent member who would have voted for a favorable report. The bill was then reported out, with the following Republicans voting in favor of it: Representatives McLeod, Michigan; McGrady and Swick, Pennsylvania; Johnson, Washington; Selvig, Minnesota; Englebright, California, and Chairman Fenn.

Those opposing the favorable report were Representatives Rankin, Mississippi; Greenwood, Indiana; Lozier, Missouri; Rutherford, Georgia; De Reuen, Louisiana, Democrats, and Thurston, Republican, of Iowa.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Jan. 4.—There was a strike today of 1,300 employes of the Fabrica Paulista de Tecidos de Algodao, in Sao Paulo, on account of their failure to receive wages.

The cave and near-by land, comprising 2,208 acres, were bought from heirs of the original owner for about $500,000 and will be operated by the association until such time as it raises enough money to complete purchase of near-by tracts, when the whole is to be given to the government for a national park.

LEAGUE WILL STUDY OPIUM, SUGAR AND COAL

Experts Will Seek to End Drug Traffic by Post—Import and Export Taxes Another Topic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 4.—The League of Nations' program for January includes meetings of technical committees engaged in studies of the opium, sugar and coal problems.

The opium convention's central board, appointed during the Council session at Lugano, will meet on Jan. 15 to examine the situation arising in the United States as a result of its refusal to participate in the convention.

The commission will once more consider the whole question of the traffic in illicit drugs with a view of preventing transportation by parcel post in particular. This organization will also begin a careful examination of the United States Government's project for the limitation of the manufacture of drugs, which was submitted a year ago.

The coal, sugar, cement and aluminum problems will be studied by an economic committee in an effort to reach a decision allowing the eventual internationalization of export and import taxes, and also the methods of production.

American experts will take part in all of these discussions. An American, Herbert L. May, will be present at the opium convention's central board. In the League's Economic Committee it is expected that Lucius R. Eastman, chairman of the Merchants' Association of New York, will participate.

P. S. du Pont Gives Town $300,000.

SEAFORD, Del., Jan. 4 (AP).—This town will soon receive one of the largest gifts ever made to a town in Delaware outside of the City of Wilmington, a present of $300,000 from Pierre S. du Pont. When the school house here was burned Mr. du Pont advanced $300,000 to begin reconstruction. He was to be reimbursed by the Legislature, but he has decided to turn the loan into a gift.

BROOKLYN EAGLE IS ON THE EVE OF SALE

Papers Not Yet Signed, but Transfer to Frank Gannett Virtually Agreed Upon.

$6,000,000 PRICE RUMORED

Paper Founded in 1841 Began as Spirited Political Organ—Once Edited by Walt Whitman.

Controlling interest in The Brooklyn Eagle, of which Walt Whitman was once the editor, is about to pass to the Gannett newspapers, but although the sale has been practically agreed upon, it has not yet reached the stage of signing the final papers, it was learned on authority last night. The signing, however, is likely to take place in the next few days.

So far has the transaction proceeded that Herbert F. Gunnison, the publisher, who is in ill health and has not been able to take an active part in the very latest developments, was under the impression yesterday that it had actually been closed and so informed THE TIMES. Mr. Gunnison's impression, however, was contradicted last night on behalf of the more active negotiators.

When the deal is actually closed a formal announcement, which has already been prepared, will be given out by the executives of The Brooklyn Eagle.

Reports that Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, the head of the organization bearing his name, would purchase the paper, have been current for many months. Various purchase prices have been reported, the one usually quoted being $6,000,000.

With the acquisition of control of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the Gannett chain will number sixteen papers, among them being The Elmira Star-Gazette, The Ithaca Journal-News, The Rochester Times-Union, The Utica Observer-Dispatch, The Elmira Telegram, The Elmira Advertiser, The Newburgh News, The Plainfield Courier-News, The Beacon News, The Olean Herald, The Ogdensburg Republican-Journal, The Hartford Times, The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, The Albany Evening News and The Knickerbocker Press, also of Albany.

Regarding the immediate plans for The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, an article in Editor and Publisher of this week says that Mr. Gunnison will remain with the new publishing corporation as chairman of the board of trustees and Harris M. Crist, the managing editor, will become associated with Mr. Gannett, retaining the position of managing editor, which he has held for 15 years.

Frank E. Tripp, who was this week made vice president of the Gannett Newspapers, will represent the Gannett organization when it assumes control, the article says. He will be acting publisher of The Eagle and will be assisted by R. B. McClean, who has been appointed general manager of Gannett Newspapers, succeeding Mr. Tripp.

Editor and Publisher also quotes Arthur Howe, the editor of The Eagle, as declining to discuss his plans for the future and says that E. G. Martin, The Eagle's business manager, has resigned with the disposal of his stock interest and will take a trip either to California or around the world. He is uncertain at the present time whether he will re-enter newspaper work. Raymond M. Gunnison, the vice president of the Brooklyn Publishing Company, of which his father was the president, is planning a holiday in the South.

The newspaper was founded as The Brooklyn Eagle and Kings County Democrat, in the Fulton Street printshop of Isaac Van Anden, Oct. 20, 1841. Since then it has had only four presidents, Isaac Van Anden, Colonel William Hester, William V. Hester and Mr. Gunnison. William V. Hester, the present secretary, is a grandnephew of Isaac Van Anden and son of the third president.

The ten editors who have controlled The Eagle's policy in its eighty-seven years of existence have been: Richard Adams Locke, 1841-42; William P. Marsh, 1842-46; Walt Whitman, 1846-47; S. G. Arnold, 1847-53; Henry McCloskey, 1853-61; Thomas Kinsella, 1861-84; Andrew McLean, 1884-86; St. Clair McKelway, 1886-1915; Arthur M. Howe, 1915 to the present.

The Brooklyn Eagle and Kings County Democrat was a spirited political daily at the start, its sponsors being Henry C. Murphy, who later became Mayor of Brooklyn; John A. Lott and John Vanderbilt. They ultimately sold out to Van Anden and the paper became The Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

During the Civil War the paper met with trouble at the hands of the Federal authorities. Its owner believed in the spirit of the freedom of the press, and so aroused the authorities that it was suspended for a time.

Walt Whitman finally left The Eagle because the paper's owner did not approve of his drastic anti-slavery editorials. It was while with the paper that he began the famous "Leaves of Grass."

When Van Anden retired, his nephew, Colonel William Hester, succeeded him. Under his leadership the paper emerged into the national news field. Bureaus were established in Europe and a Washington correspondent appointed.

Of the later editors, Thomas Kinsella, Andrew McLean and St. Clair McKelway were all well known. The latter was a noted educator, and the friend of all the prominent persons of his time. Mr. Howe, the present editor, has been with the paper since 1893 and was the managing editor before becoming editor.

35 MEN FINED FOR SPITTING.

Court Threatens Jail Sentences—Nine Subway Smokers Penalized.

Thirty-five men, one a Salvation Army captain, were fined $5 each for spitting in public places, by Magistrate Stern in Tombs Court yesterday. Nine men were fined $2 each for smoking in the subway. They were all brought to court on summonses issued by Patrolmen Wortheimer, Stern and Greene of the Health Squad.

Magistrate Stern, in imposing the fines, called attention to the increase of influenza and pointed out that the Health Department had issued repeated warnings against spitting in public places. He said that offenders would be dealt with more severely in future, and declared that he would give jail sentences for spitting in public if the nuisance continued.

Anson Loomis, 25 years old, of 535 West Forty-eighth Street, was the Salvation Army captain. He was arrested for spitting on the sidewalk at Canal Street and West Broadway.

Health Commissioner Wynne yesterday announced that the Health Squad had arrested twenty-seven men for spitting in the subway in the week from Dec. 27 to Jan. 2. During the same period seventy-five men were arrested for smoking in the subway.

CENSOR FACES TEST OVER SOUND MOVIES

Pathe Asks Injunction to Halt Interference by State With Film Licensed as Silent.

OFFICIAL BARS USE OF TALK

But Company Contests His Right to "Limit" Permits—Holds It Would Prevent Illustrated Lectures.

A test of the right of the New York State film censor to revoke licenses for films if sound is used in conjunction with them was started in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Pathé Exchange, Inc., against James Wingate, director of the motion picture division of the State Education Department, and Commissioner Frank P. Graves to restrain them from interfering with the exhibition of the film "Sal of Singapore," a showing of which had been announced for yesterday.

Justice Mitchell granted a temporary injunction which will prevent Director Wingate from taking any action against the synchronized film pending further action on application to be heard Monday to continue the injunction pending the suit. The restraining order was issued on an affidavit filed by Lewis Innerarity, secretary of Pathé, who charged Director Wingate with "unwarranted assumption" of power in threatening to revoke the license already granted to "Sal of Singapore" if the sound version were presented.

The plaintiff also contends that an endorsement by the courts of Mr. Wingate's action will amount to the granting of a "limited license" for films which would prohibit Martin Johnson, Burton Holmes, or "even Commander Richard E. Byrd himself to appear before an audience in the State of New York in connection with pictures of their travels and to utter any words or language in conjunction with the exhibition of the films" without invalidating licenses issued previously for the films themselves.

"The thought that the director of the motion picture division will be permitted to usurp authority and wield an arbitrary and capricious power unauthorized in law and unfounded in reason," says the plaintiff, "is abhorrent to every principle of government by legislative representation."

Film Licensed Oct. 11.

The suit is based on the fact that under the amendment to the State education law passed in 1927, the censorship and licensing of films is now the duty of the motion picture division of the State Department of Education, and that last Oct. 11 Director Wingate granted an application by Pathé to license the film in question, after reviewing the picture, "without deletion, modification, or change of any kind in the scenes or titles."

The film was then a silent picture, but subsequently the producer caused sounds, words and music to be recorded for reproduction by synchronic devices, which, the plaintiff alleges "did not involve any change of the pictorial matter embraced in the said photoplay." Pathé then applied on Nov. 2 for additional licenses for six duplicates of the film but the sound part of the film was not submitted. Director Wingate granted the application but stamped it as follows:

"This license is invalid when the film or any part thereof is used in conjunction with mechanical devices for the reproduction of sound or by the use of persons for the utterance of language."

Mr. Innerarity said that under the law the director of the Motion Picture Division is bound to license films unless the pictures or any part thereof are "obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious or if the subject is of such character that the exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite crime." He contends that Director Wingate has no further power under the law and is not permitted to issue "limited" licenses revokable if sound is incorporated in pictures previously approved.

Finds Legal Power Lacking.

The affidavit alleged that on Dec. 12 Mr. Innerarity showed Mr. Wingate that nothing in the law empowers him or his department to issue restricted licenses and that "he had no power to withhold such licenses because of any matter or thing outside of the picture itself." He declared further that the law gives no justification under any circumstances for "limited" licenses and that licenses must issue as a matter of course if the films be unobjectionable. The director has no "legislative powers" and cannot change the law, he said.

Mr. Innerarity asserted further that Director Wingate has given notice that if the sound version of the film is used under the license issued for the silent film, he will start criminal proceedings to enforce the law, which will include a revocation of the license. He declared that the manufacture of sound records involves the expenditure of many thousands of dollars for expensive equipment, which is "of the most fragile and sensitive character" because the necessity of timing the sounds with the movements of the film requires "split-second accuracy."

"Any break in the continuity of action of the film or the synchronized sound record and the readjustment made necessary by any such break in the continuity," said Mr. Innerarity, "would occasion great expense to the producer and lessen to a very large degree the artistic merit of the production."

For which reason the plaintiff "is unwilling to incur such expenses and suffer the losses incident to the injury and destruction of its property by the arbitrary and capricious activities of the Director of the Motion Picture Division."

Legal Battle Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Granting of a temporary injunction to the Pathé Exchange, Inc., of New York against James Wingate, director of the Motion Picture Division of the State Education Department, and Dr. Frank P. Graves, commissioner of education, has started what is expected to develop into a legal battle to determine whether the motion picture division has the right to censor sound films.

The question will probably not be determined finally until the Court of Appeals has passed on it.

For months the motion picture division has been passing on sound films, and the film concerns have made no objection.

SMITHS TO LEASE 5TH AV. APARTMENT

TAKE 10 TOP FLOOR ROOMS

To Remain at Biltmore Until July —Former Executive, in Jovial Mood, Photographed at Office.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith announced yesterday that he and Mrs. Smith would make their permanent home at 51 Fifth Avenue, having arranged for a lease of an apartment in a building now under construction there.

The former Governor's new home will be within two blocks of the homes of George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany; Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen and John F. Gilchrist, former chairman of the Transit Commission.

Mr. Smith's announcement, which was made at his office in the Prudence Building, follows:

"Governor and Mrs. Smith have selected for their residence the top floor of the sixteen-story apartment now in course of erection on the southeast corner of Twelfth Street and Fifth Avenue. The building is owned by the 51 Fifth Avenue Corporation, of which Thomas K. Garry is president and D. A. Harrington secretary. The architect is Thomas W. Lamb. The building will be ready for occupancy about July 1."

In reply to questions Mr. Smith added that the apartment would have ten rooms and that he and Mrs. Smith would continue to live at the Biltmore until their apartment was ready. He said that he had nothing further to announce regarding his plans.

Mr. Smith posed earlier in the day for motion picture and newspaper photographers. He was in jocular mood and, when asked to pose answering the telephone, said to the operator:

"This is Governor Smith, operator. I'm having some movies taken and I'm supposed to be talking to President Coolidge. You can take his place for the time being, anyway. All right, thank you, good-bye."

When he was asked to stand at a window on the Madison Avenue side of his office he declined, saying that the title of that picture would be "Looking at the Sidewalks of New York." He told the photographers to take all the pictures they wanted as it would be their last chance for some time.

NEW ENGLAND MOST URBAN.

London Professor Calls Development "Not Unhealthy."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Three New England States, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, constitute the most completely urbanized region in the world, Professor C. B. Fawcett of University College, London, told the conference of geographical associations today.

The proportion of city dwellers in these States is more than 90 per cent of the total, Professor Fawcett said. "In all the countries of western civilization, the urban population is now in the majority," he declared. "It is not an unhealthy sign. Cities used to be eaters of men but in western civilization they are now healthier than in the rural areas.

REPUBLICAN RETAINED AS CONTROLLER'S AIDE

Mullens Refused to Run Against Tremaine—Gov. Roosevelt to Hear First Clemency Plea Jan. 18

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—One Republican who is to retain his appointive office despite the determination of Governor Roosevelt to have his administration take full party responsibility is Charles H. Mullens of Albany, whose reappointment as Assistant Deputy Controller was announced today by Controller Morris S. Tremaine.

Mr. Mullens refused the Republican nomination for State Controller at the Syracuse convention last Fall, declining to run against his chief.

Mr. Mullens has been in the State's service for eighteen years. He is considered an expert in the direction of the office work of the Controller's department.

Governor Roosevelt will hear his first pleas for clemency when a Brooklyn murder case comes before him on Jan. 18. Those seeking commutations are Israel Fisher, Harry Dreitzer and Isadore Helfant, who are under sentence to die during the week of Jan. 21. They were convicted of killing Policeman William E. Kelly on Jan. 31, 1928, during a hold-up.

MUMTAZ BEGUM DIVORCED.

Husband Says Father Requires Him to Enter Business.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 4 (AP).—Mumtaz Begum, dancing girl, affection for whom cost Tukoji Rad Holkar, Maharajah of Indore, his throne and who was married in 1926 to Abdul Rahman, son of a wealthy Mohammedan, has been divorced.

The divorce was agreed upon mutually at Karachi, where Abdul Rahman was quoted as saying to a newspaper man:

"I have no ill-will toward Mumtaz. I was obliged to agree to a divorce in response to the wishes of my father, who wants me to enter business seriously."

Both Mumtaz and Rahman shed tears on their final separation. Mumtaz left Karachi for Bombay, and on arriving here said that she was tired of romances and in the future would lead a quiet life with her mother.

The former Maharajah of Indore, who renounced his throne in favor of his eldest son, married Miss Nancy Miller of Seattle about a year ago. He is living in France with his American Maharanee, who embraced his religion prior to the Hindu marriage ceremony at Kanachi.

stars are too well thought of by European moviegoers, and no exhibitor with a respect for the box office dare to eliminate American pictures. What the move does indicate, though, it is asserted, is that American pictures will never again be shown in the same overwhelming quantities and with no special regard to quality. In 1924, out of a total of 693 pictures shown throughout France, 589 were American-made.

The new situation has its good points for fans, its backers say, for instead of Europe being used as a dumping ground, a selective process is now working and the results can be observed already.

Then again, Europeans must find some way of breaking into the American market, for there the real money lies. The bloc may accomplish this but the longer heads doubt it and say European producers will never penetrate into the United States in a large way until they make better pictures. Slowly Europeans are beginning to learn this lesson of American efficiency—that the cheapest picture in the long run is the one upon which the most money and brains have been expended. Louis Aubert, one of the heads of the French film industry, just back from New York, told the trade he hoped the French would soon make twenty pictures a year at a cost of 94,000,000 francs (about $3,675,400) instead of ninety-four pictures for the same amount, as they did last year. The board of censors rejected 40 per cent of last year's products as unfit to be included in the seven to one foreign quota.

No Sound-Film Craze.

The sound pictures have left Europe pratically untouched. Not more than a dozen houses have tried them on the Continent, and outside Great Britain nothing special is being done. European producers may profit by the expected shortage of silent pictures, but it will be up to the Americans to sell Europe the idea of sound if they expect as wide a distribution for them as they have won for the silent product.

The current year's plans have not taken sound into consideration, the chief interest being the problem of improving the quality of the staple product. Some British productions are costing as much as $200,000, and next season the French intend to increase the average cost per picture from the present level of $40,000 to $75,000, with several productions going much beyond this figure.

In the final analysis the net result of all the European film agitation is summed up in this manner:

France, Germany, Britain and Italy are determined to build up self-supporting motion picture industries no matter what the difficulties are. They do not expect or desire to force Americans from the market, but they do look forward to the day when they will be able to "play ball" with them on an equal basis.

OIL PATENT SHARE IN DOCTOR'S ESTATE

Executor for Dr. G. A. Lawrence Asks Action to Guard 40% Part in $10,000,000 Process.

HUNTS ASSIGNMENT PAPERS

Bulk of Neurologist's Holdings Go to University and Club—Sons Share Edmund Coffin Legacy.

Dr. George Albert Lawrence, neurologist, left as part of his estate an interest in a patent said to be worth $10,000,000, on a process for refining petroleum, and the executor of the estate now believes that a "precarious situation exists" in which the estate may lose this asset, according to papers on file in the Surrogate's Court. Surrogate Foley appointed yesterday the American Trust Company as temporary administrator of the estate on the petition of Curt Von Boetticher of 501 West 190th Street, the executor, who desires immediate action by the estate to protect its rights.

The nature of the patent, said to have been purchased from a George B. Gifford, whose address is not known, is not disclosed in the papers, which indicate that Dr. Lawrence owned a forty per cent interest in the patent, the balance being the property of a Samuel B. Coley, Leland Stanford Junior University and the All University Club, on West Ninety-fourth Street, which Dr. Lawrence founded, share the bulk of the estate.

Shortly before Dr. Lawrence died on Dec. 22, he told Mr. Von Boetticher of his interest in the patent and of Mr. Coley's co-ownership, the executor says, but he could not obtain details before the neurologist's death. From John Eaton, a cousin who lived with Dr. Lawrence and who gets $100,000 under the will, Mr. Von Boetticher learned that Dr. Lawrence had told his cousin of receiving from Coley an assignment of the forty per cent interest. Mr. Eaton also declared that Dr. Lawrence said the patent was worth $10,000,000.

An attempt to get details from Coley failed, Mr. Von Boetticher told Judge Foley, although Coley did tell of buying the patent from Gifford. Mr. Von Boetticher then had a patent attorney wire Washington, where no record of either Gifford's transfer to the two men or Coley's assignment could be found on file. It is said that Gifford's application for a patent is the only document filed there.

Mr. Von Boetticher's petition expressed the belief that the assignments may be in Dr. Lawrence's safe deposit box.

Sons Share Edmund Coffin Estate.

The will of Edmund Coffin, an attorney and father of Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin, president of Union Theological Seminary, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's Court yesterday, naming Dr. Coffin and another son, William Coffin of 833 East Sixty-eighth Street, as the principal legatees. Mr. Coffin died on Dec. 26 from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile. The will indicates that much of his estate, believed to be a large one, is in the capital stock of the Henry-William Company.

The two sons each receive one-half of the residuary estate after several bequests to employes and business associates, and trust funds are set up for relatives and other employes. The largest trust fund is made up of 1,000 shares of the Henry-William Company stock, which, the will indicates, is worth at least $100 a share. The income from this fund goes to Edmund Coffin, a grandson, until he is 21 years old, when he will receive the principal. Four other grandchildren benefit from smaller trusts of a similar nature, as do two nieces and a nephew.

Two business associates and nine employes are remembered in the will.

I. N. Heidelberg Left $853,174.

Isaac N. Heidelberg, a retired cloak and suit manufacturer, who died Aug. 2 last, left an estate appraised yesterday by Deputy Tax Commissioner Stephenson at $1,039,818 gross and $958,174 net. The chief assets of the estate were $903,540 in securities and $116,431 in cash, of which $112,282 was on deposit with Heidelberg, Wolff & Co. The bulk of the estate went to his eight daughters.

H. H. Benkard Holdings $339,248.

The chief item in the estate of Henry H. Benkard, who was associated with the Stock Exchange firm of F. B. Keech & Co., was $300,000 as the proceeds of his seat on the Exchange, according to the appraisal yesterday valuing the estate at $391,334 gross and $339,248 net, all of which went to his widow, Bertha King Benkard. Mr. Benkard had a half interest in prints and pictures in the office of the Keech firm, appraised at $5,000, while a valuation of $70,000 was fixed for a contract by which he was to get 4 per cent of the net profits of the firm until May 1, 1930, for his services.

PANAMA BOUNDING DELAYED

German Survey Planes Would Have Been Operating Over Manoeuvres.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone, Jan. 4.—Delimitation of the Panama-Colombia boundary, which was scheduled to begin this month, has been postponed indefinitely, although both governments had contracted with the Colombian German Scadta Company for making surveys and photographs of the frontier from airplanes, with a base at Porto Bello, a short distance from the Atlantic entrance of the Panama Canal.

This survey would have taken place during joint manoeuvres of the United States army and navy here, beginning the latter part of this month. There is pressing need for fixing this boundary, as it runs through jungle country that is undeveloped and sparsely inhabited by primitive Indians.

HARRISS TO PROPOSE 12-DECK AUTO ROADS

Will Suggest to the Citizens Sub-Committee Two Elevated Highways for Manhattan.

PUTS COST AT $100,000,000

But Contends City's Traffic Ills Need "Major Operation"—Whalen and Miller Back New Group.

The New York Citizens' Traffic Committee of 500 business, industrial, professional and trade union leaders has received assurances of the cooperation of Police Commissioner Whalen and Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan in its recently launched movement to help solve the city's traffic tangle. Announcement to that effect was made yesterday by the committee's chairman, W. J. L. Banham of the Otis Elevator Company.

Mr. Banham announced further that in view of the friendly attitude of Mr. Whalen and Mr. Miller he would go on Monday to City Hall to invite Mayor Walker and all city department heads to a meeting of the subcommittee on plan and scope at the Chamber of Commerce on Jan. 15. At that meeting the subcommittee will submit a report and a traffic program.

Mr. Banham also reported that his office had been swamped yesterday with telephone calls, telegrams and letters from representative New Yorkers suggesting names for the citizens' traffic committee. The theatrical industry asked for representation on the committee because of the serious traffic difficulties threatening the theatrical business. The theatre will be represented, according to Mr. Banham.

Subcommittee Enlarged.

The membership of the subcommittee on plan and scope, headed by Dr. John A. Harriss, former Deputy Police Commissioner in Charge of Traffic, was increased to sixteen yesterday when George V. McLaughlin, president of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, and L. C. O. Smith, president of the Queens Chamber of Commerce, were added.

At the meeting of the subcommittee on Jan. 15 Dr. Harriss intends to warn his associates that only a "major operation" can save the city from traffic strangulation. He will compare New York City's traffic illness to a cancer which must be removed by emergency measures. In advance of the meeting Dr. Harriss would only outline the proposals he has in mind.

He declared that there were already 800,000 motor vehicles on the city's streets, and that this figure would increase to more than 1,000,000 by the end of 1931. He suggested that only "heroic measures" would provide a remedy against a traffic deadlock.

Aside from recommending night deliveries of certain classes of merchandise, control of construction activities, regulation of foot traffic, interurban and interstate bus traffic, and limitation of taxicab traffic, Dr. Harriss will propose the construction of two elevated vehicular highways of twelve decks each, one for the west side and one for the east side of Manhattan.

Proposes Bond Issues.

He is ready to admit that such projects might cost between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, but he will maintain that the cost, through bond issues, could be spread out for future generations to bear their fair share.

Dr. Harriss further will point out that the cost of constructing such elevated highways would be small compared with the annual losses sustained by the increasing traffic congestion. He estimates that those losses aggregate $500,000,000 a year.

"If it weren't for the telephones and the subways we would have to close shop in Manhattan," said Dr. Harriss.

Describing his proposed multiple highways, Dr. Harriss suggested that the first four decks or tiers be devoted to trucks, giving two northbound and two southbound thoroughfares to trucking. There would be four decks exclusively for buses, and four exclusively for passenger cars, including taxicabs. Dr. Harriss suggests that the elevated multiple highways, except for the top deck, would be protected against the weather, and would afford "enormous parking space on each level."

Would Sacrifice Ninth Avenue.

"For each highway we would have to sacrifice one north and south thoroughfare," said Dr. Harriss. "For one multiple highway I would suggest that we sacrifice Ninth Avenue, because it is undeveloped. There are several streets on the east side any one of which might be sacrificed for such an improvement. And the point I wish to make is that if we are going to obtain any relief we have got to make a sacrifice. We can't afford to develop measures that will provide only temporary relief.

"The elevated motor express highway on the west side is a splendid thing. I understand that its footings have been designed to permit the addition of a second deck. But at the utmost it will furnish only temporary relief. Within a comparatively short time it will undoubtedly be overtaxed.

"I am confident that in all matters wherein relief can be obtained through the Police Department they will give us 100 per cent cooperation."

DEMANDS ABOLITION OF 'MYSTERY SQUAD'

Philadelphia Grand Jury Says Its Evidence in Liquor Cases Is Worthless.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Criticizing the methods used by the Police Bureau in conducting liquor raids, the December grand jury in its presentment to Judge McDevitt today demanded the abolition of Mystery Squad 2 on the ground that it is "a disgrace, un-American, and not in accord with the Democratic system of government which we enjoy as citizens of the United States."

The presentment further recommended that the members of the squad be "put out on the street to perform real police work and stop banditry."

This unexpected denunciation from the grand jury came after it had ignored 219 bills of indictment, 189 of which were for liquor cases.

"The testimony given by the members of the Police Department in these cases was so vague and flimsy," the presentment charged, "that it could not be accepted in good faith, especially the testimony of the so-called Mystery Squad 2, working out of the central station."

In one instance, the presentment stated, three detectives who made a raid on a private dwelling and obtained a half-pint bottle of alleged liquor were unable to agree on the room in which it was seized, one insisting that it was the cellar, another the kitchen and the third the garret.

In another the grand jurors learned that a girl 10 years old had been commissioned by a police raider to buy a pint of liquor in a resort suspected of being a speakeasy so that evidence might be obtained.

"This mystery squad," the presentment continued, "makes raids on private homes at all hours of the day and night, keeping the people in constant fear. In cases where they make a raid on a private home and find no evidence they bring disgrace on these good people. These raids are not made on direct evidence but on the receipt of anonymous letters and telephone massages to the police stations."

Major Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety, said he and District Attorney Monaghan had devised a plan "whereby I believe the investigation of all liquor complaints and the apprehension of violators of the liquor laws can be more efficiently handled."

This, he said, would be ready for operation next week.

"There must, however, be some special squad charged with the sole duty of enforcing the prohibition laws," he added. "Without it, we could never stop bootlegging in Philadelphia."

ARGUMENTS CLOSE IN RAIL VALUE CASE

Supreme Court Takes O'Fallon Litigation, Involving Billions, Under Advisement.

COUNSEL CLASH ON COSTS

Wickersham and Fisher Defend Commerce Board in Weighing "All Relevant Factors."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad valuation case, representing the third railroad attempt to overturn the Interstate Commerce Commission's system of valuing railroad property for rate-making and profits recapture purposes, was taken under advisement by the Supreme Court today at the close of two days of argument.

George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General, and Walter L. Fisher, former Secretary of the Interior, both of whom served in the Taft Cabinet, appeared to defend the commission's valuation system as applied in a special test of a nine-mile coal railroad in Southern Illinois.

Sharp conflicts of definition occurred on several debatable points between the attorneys for the railroads and the commission's counsel, particularly in regard to the practicability of a system of valuation based primarily on "current reproduction cost" as proposed by the railroads.

The case as argued finally resolved itself into an attack by the counsel for the roads on the commission's system of calculating post-war (1919 and later) valuations, on the basis of 1914 unit prices on railroad commodities, with additions to this amount for additions, replacements and land values calculated as of the date of valuation.

On the other side, the counsel for the government, the commission and the National Conference on Valuation of American Railroads defended the present system as the only practicable and just one, safeguarding both the public and the holders of railroad securities.

Economic Factors Discussed.

Donald R. Richberg of the valuation conference, who appeared as amicus curiae after the Senate by resolution asked his appearance, concluded at the convening of court today his argument, started yesterday, dealing with economic factors of valuation. He said the public was entitled to a fair rate as well as the carrier to a fair return, and cited the commission's report in this case as saying that the "value" approaches more nearly the investment cost than the cost of reproduction.

He quoted from the railroad briefs to show that they contended for a value equal to "no less than cost of reproduction less depreciation if any."

"Therefore," he said, "the carrier maintains that full consideration should be given to current cost of reproduction." He cited the 1920 transportation act's clause directing that the commission take into consideration "all relevant factors" in fixing valuations. It was Mr. Richberg's contention, and likewise that of Messrs. Wickersham and Fisher, who followed him, that the commission had given due consideration to this factor.

The railroads' lawyers contended that its only "consideration" had been to hear the evidence and reject it wholly.

"Giving full weight to current reproduction cost would violate the law," Mr. Richberg said. "The ascertainment of value is not measured by artificial rules."

It was his contention that the valuation must proceed from the earning power of the railroad; that is, that the valuation must be fixed on the rate, not vice versa, as contended by the road.

Wickersham Cites Decision.

Mr. Wickersham defended the action of the commission in refusing to class the St. Louis & O'Fallon and the Manufacturers' as a single system. The St

MURRAY YOUNGEST ON PORT AUTHORITY

The 29-Year-Old Appointee of Roosevelt Was an Inventor at Age of 11.

WON PRAISE OF EDISON

Will Take Up Duties Without Any Preconceived Ideas of What Commission Should Do.

John Francis Murray of 169 Rugby Road, Brooklyn, said to be the youngest man to be appointed to the Port Authority and one of the few engineers so honored, will take up his duties on the commission with no preconceived ideas of what it should do, but definitely satisfied that the Port Authority offers more opportunity for helping transportation than any other commission in the State, he said yesterday morning at his office at 55 Duane Street.

He is 29 years old and is executive vice president of Thomas E. Murray, Inc., consulting engineers and vice president of the Metropolitan Engineering Company, the Murray Radiator Company and the Murray Conduit Systems.

He has invented numerous devices for conduits, and when he was 11 years old invented a baseball game apparatus that brought royalties and the recognition of Thomas Edison. There is a diagram of it hanging in Mr. Murray's office and upon which Thomas Edison wrote above his signature:

"This is pretty good for a boy of only 11 years to have invented, it's going some."

His appointment by Governor Roosevelt is subject to the action of the Senate. He expressed his desire to give the other members of the Port Authority his fullest cooperation and "get off on the right foot."

He has only a general knowledge of the problems confronting the Port Authority, he said, and would not attempt to give any opinion in regard to them for fear that because of his youth the other members might regard him as a "wise guy."

Mr. Murray is married and the father of five children. He is a member of the Flatbush Democratic Club and believes his interest in politics was inherited from his grandfather, "Honest Dan" Bradley, who served for many years in the State Senate as an independent. His father is one of the pioneers in the profession of electrical engineering.

He spoke of the necessity of engineers having a knowledge of financing, as "the problem of engineering today is not only in imparting his technical knowledge to buildings and other structures but it is becoming important that he must know how to finance a program."

BUYS STANDARD OIL LOTS.

Development Concern Makes $550,000 Deal in Jersey Bayway Section.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 4.—The Bayway Land and Improvement Company has purchased for $550,000 from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey a number of lots in the Bayway section where a housing development had been undertaken by the Standard Oil Company, it was announced today by Prosecutor Abe J. David in behalf of the Bayway company. The deal was closed in the offices of the Jersey Mortgage and Title Guarantee Company, Mr. David acting for the Bayway company and former Judge Robert H. McAdams and F. S. Perry of New York City for the Standard Oil Company.

Fifty dwellings with land which were disposed of by the Standard Oil Company when it promoted its housing project in 1922 were exempted from the sale. Mr. David said the purchase consisted of lots having an aggregate street frontage of 11,470 feet.

TACNA DISPUTE END DENIED.

Chilean Paper's Report Regarded as Trial Balloon.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 4 (AP).—The newspaper Mercurio states that direct diplomatic negotiations between Chile and Peru over the Tacna-Arica problem have progressed to a point where each has stated its maximum concessions and minimum demands.

However, the evening edition of the government newspaper, The Nacion, this afternoon quoted Foreign Minister Rios Gallardo as absolutely denying that Chile and Peru were close to settlement of the problem.

The Mercurio said that while official reserve does not permit the actual basis of the accord to become known for the present, it is understood that the formula so far evolved gives Tacna to Peru and Arica to Chile.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Publication in the Mercurio of the report that a settlement of the Tacna-Arica problem was imminent was interpreted here as a diplomatic move designed to sound out Peru as to the acceptability of the terms mentioned.

The State Department has been hopeful of a solution being arrived through direct negotiations, but had no information tonight pointing to any immediate success.

For some time it has been understood that Chile was prepared for a solution of the controversy along the lines set forth by the Mercurio, but thus far this has been resisted by Peru, which held that Arica was the valuable and that Tacna was relatively unimportant part of the disputed area.

RAPHAEL SALE REITERATED.

London Paper Carries Report, Denied Here, That Mellon Bought It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A report, previously denied in Washington, that Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, had bought the "Cowper Madonna" by Raphael from Sir Joseph Duveen for $1,000,000, is printed by The Daily Mail.

The picture was the last privately owned authentic Raphael in this country and after a dramatic struggle in May between London dealers and two wealthy Americans it was bought from Lady Desborough by Sir Joseph for $875,000, which was then a world record price for a single picture.

The painting, which measures only 30¼ inches by 12 inches, bears Raphael's signature and the date 1508, when the artist was 25 years old and receiving less than $500 for a picture that size.

The picture was bought about 1780 by the third Earl of Cowper and smuggled out of Florence in the lining of his coach. Although offered for sale here after it passed out of Lady Desborough's possession at the price paid for it, no purchaser was forthcoming and in October, when Sir Joseph left this country for the United States, he took the work with him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—There have been several reports of the purchase of Raphael's "Cowper Madonna" by Secretary Mellon, and all have been denied.

Close associates of Mr. Mellon said tonight that they felt certain there was no basis for the latest report by The London Daily Mail.

WIFE'S CHURCH MISSION WINS BANKER DIVORCE

R. H. Gatling Blames Her Christian Science Work in Jerusalem for Separation.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 4.—Richard H. Gatling of Stamford, vice president of the Manufacturers Trust Company of New York, obtained a divorce in Superior court today from Mrs. Winifred Waters Gatling, formerly of New York, but now of Mispah, Jaffa Road, Jerusalem. Mrs. Gatling's decision to go to the Holy Land in the interests of Christian Science, the banker told Judge John Richard Booth, was responsible for the wrecking of his marital happiness.

Mr. Gatling testified that his wife was wealthy in her own right. They were married on Jan. 19, 1895. Mrs. Gatling practiced Christian Science for years, and after she inherited a large fortune from her father, established an office in the Aeolian Building in New York City.

The banker, who is the father of two grown children, told the court that in May, 1921, while he and his wife were living in New York City, Mrs. Gatling suggested she would like to go to Palestine, and told him "she wanted her freedom" and "he could not be in her way, as she had a great mission in life to perform."

Later in that year, Mrs. Gatling sold the New York residence and removed to Jerusalem, where for a few years she published a Christian Science paper. Mr. Gatling declared he had heard from his wife's attorney in New York City that she had said she was willing that her husband should divorce her. Her intention, the husband said he was informed, was to remain in Jerusalem.

"Did you agree to this step on the part of your wife?" Judge Booth asked Mr. Gatling.

"No, not entirely. She bowed me out of her life," was the reply.

Marguerite Newcombe of Geneva, Ill., a niece of the banker, told of conversations with Mrs. Gatling in New York before her removal to Jerusalem, in which the witness said Mrs. Gatling had expressed a desire that her husband leave her, and discussed the plans of her mission.

What a beautiful apartment . . . but where's the piano?

NO wonder that well-bred people often feel there is something lacking when they encounter a home without a piano. For the grand piano, by common understanding, quietly proclaims your appreciation of things cultural. It adds richness to any room, and it affords many hours of delightful pleasure at home. Above all, a grand piano provides an opportunity which you owe to your children. By learning to play (so easy nowadays) and to enjoy music, to entertain both themselves and others, they will lay a certain foundation for happiness and popularity in later life.

THIS SATURDAY—come in and see the new J. & C. FISCHER Baby Grand in the style of Hepplewhite

SO exceedingly rare is the beauty which Hepplewhite imparted to his furniture that a Hepplewhite sideboard recently sold for $13,000. Much of that same beauty has been recaptured in the lines of the J. & C. Fischer Baby Grand. Before Hepplewhite's time, furniture legs were generally curved and often clumsy; he introduced the straight, slender, tapering leg which has become the ideal today and which is found in the J. & C. Fischer Baby Grand. He painted delicate designs upon his chairs and tables, and so the J. & C. Fischer bears a classic Greek shell motif hand-painted to give just the authentic dash of color. Full-toned, yet compact, this charming baby grand is particularly appropriate for the small apartment. $845. Ten per cent down; two years to pay the balance.

Only $84.50 Down

OPERA

By OLIN DOWNES.

First "Der Rosenkavalier."

DER ROSENKAVALIER, comic opera in three acts. Book in German by Hugo von Hofmannsthal. Music by Richard Strauss. At the Metropolitan Opera House, tonight:

Princess Werdenberg	Florence Easton
Baron Ochs of Lerchenau	Richard Mayr
Octavian	Maria Jeritza
Von Faninal	Gustav Schuetzendorf
Sophie	Queena Mario
Marianne	Dorothee Manski
Valzacchi	Angelo Bada
Annina	Henriette Wakefield
Commissary of Police	James Wolfe
Major-Domo of the Princess	Max Altglass
Major-Domo of Von Faninal	George Meader
Notary	William Gustafson
Innkeeper	George Meader
A Singer	Alfio Tedesco
Three Orphans	Charlotte Ryan, Dorothea Flexer, Philine Falco.
Milliner	Phradie Wells
A Hairdresser	Armando Agnini
Leopold	Ludwig Burgstaller
Animal Vendor	Raffaele Lipparini
A Negro Boy	Madeleine Lewek
Conductor	Artur Bodansky.

Thanks to the cooperation and capacity of several members of the Metropolitan Opera Company, not originally scheduled for the parts that they took, Strauss's "Rosenkavalier" was mounted last night by that organization and given a performance that was highly creditable in its general character. The illness of Greta Stückgold, which postponed the season's first performance of the work for a week, would have caused another delay if Mme. Jeritza had not consented to take pro tem. the part of Octavian. Following this arrangement, Editha Fleischer, who was to have been the Sophie last night, was taken ill, and her part was assumed by Queena Mario, who had herself risen from a sick-bed the previous evening. Under these circumstances it would have been no more than fair if critical indulgence had been asked for any incidental defects of the performance. But such indulgence was not required.

Mme. Jeritza, who substituted for another singer for the first time in her Metropolitan career, comported herself admirably, although it is four seasons since she appeared as Octavian in this city. She gives the rôle a youthful and aristocratic semblance, and her interpretation is an appropriate blend of the manners characteristic of the place and period of the opera, and the emotions which may be supposed to animate the bearer of the Silver Rose. In a few instances there was passing deviation from pitch, a thing which cannot always be avoided, even by gifted and experienced artists. But as a whole this was an excellent interpretation.

Miss Easton, invariably the musicianly and graceful interpreter of the part of the Countess, was especially felicitious in her part. If she does not accent autumnal passion and sensuousness, she gives the rôle a lyric of distinction and tenderness eminently befitting the music.

Miss Mario, not unnaturally, has been in better voice than she was last night, and has not always shown the caution and care she was obliged to exercise, sometimes rather obviously, on this occasion. Nevertheless her Sophie was vivacious and eloquent of the character. Mr. Mayr spoke his lines more than he sang them, and was, as usual in the frame, although he is more convincing in other characters than that of Baron Ochs. Mr. Schuetzendorf's Faninal, on the other hand, was properly fussy and vociferous, captibly acted; and most of the minor parts were carried well. Mr. Bodanzky led a rather meticulous but clear and well-ordered orchestral interpretation. The opera itself maintains much of its wit and charm, if also some of Strauss's horseplay. The situation in the third act was made amusing by Mme. Jeritza's business. For some reason, none of the soloists chose to appear before the curtain after the first act, but there were long and numerous recalls after the second, when Mme. Jeritza and Miss Mario were dividing the plaudits and all the principal singers were heartily welcomed. In spite of bad luck, this performance was plausible, entertaining, capable throughout. It was witnessed by an unusually large audience.

JOE COOK ILL AT BOSTON.

Performances of "Rain or Shine" Are Canceled Until Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 4.—Joe Cook, comedian and star of "Rain or Shine," has been stricken with laryngitis, necessitating the omission of several performances at the Shubert theatre. He expects to be able to resume his stage work next Monday night.

From the hospital to which he was removed yesterday came reports tonight that the attack had responded well to treatment and that there was no doubt that he would be fit to appear again on Jan. 7. Seats for last night's performance, as well as tonight's and tomorrow's two performances had been sold out completely. Refunds are being made at the box office.

ANTHEIL'S MUSIC HAS PREMIERE IN BERLIN

Young American's 'Oedipus Rex' and Jazz Sonata Are Received With Cordiality.

Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—George Antheil, whose music version of "Oedipus Rex" had it premiere in Berlin's Staats Theatre tonight, is the first American ever to be thus honored.

The young composer, who hails from Trenton, N. J., is no stranger to Berlin, where he played some of his works six years ago, at the age of twenty-two, with the greatest success. The Berlin press welcomes him warmly and, in humorous spirit, reminds its readers that Antheil introduced himself as a real American who not only used ten fingers but fists, elbows and forearms, and would probably have liked to sit on the keys of the piano as well. Mention is also made of his ballet music called "Mecanique," for which sixteen pianos were used.

At present Antheil is writing a neoclassic European and humane piece, which probably will likewise be played in Berlin for the first time. Antheil expects to return to America within a few months to take his bows.

BERLIN, Jan. 4 (AP).—The world première of a nine-minute jazz sonata for the piano, written by George Antheil of Trenton, N. J., especially for the radio, was given through the government broadcasting station tonight.

At the same hour his incidental music written for the performance at the Staats Theater of "Oedipus Rex" also had its première and was so effective as to win generous applause from a capacity house. He was said to be the first American composer commissioned by the Prussian State to write music.

The City College Dramatic Society presented "All Fools," a comedy by George Chapman with an acting edition by Joseph L. Pyman, as the annual varsity show of City College, last night before an audience of 600. George Patterson, as Balerio, had the leading male rôle, and Edmund E. Levy gave the feminine impersonation as Gratiana. Second and third performances will be given today.

Sekyra Outpointed by Schmeling—Lewis Loses Mat Title on Disqualification

SCHMELING VICTOR IN BOUT AT GARDEN

German Heavyweight Outpoints Sekyra in Ten Rounds Before Crowd of 14,000.

JOHNNY DUNDEE DEFEATED

Veteran Loses to Phil Rosenberg —Gagnon Scores Triumph Over Grosso.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, triumphed over Joe Sekyra, Dayton, Ohio, last night in the ten-round feature at Madison Square Garden and advanced considerably in his struggle for a position among the heavyweight title contenders. Amid the cheers of 14,000 fight fans who paid $39,530 to see the spectacle, Schmeling left the ring after giving the throng a reminder of what Jack Dempsey was in his earlier days as a fighter.

Schmeling received the decision of Referee Jack O'Sullivan and Judges George Kelly and Tommy Shortell, and it must have been a unanimous verdict for no other decision was possible. The German won by the margin of seven rounds to three, dropping only the second and eighth to Sekyra, while the first was even.

The cheers which greeted the announcement of the decision attested to its popularity. It attested also to the popularity which the youngster from across the sea, who has had only two fights here, has established as a wonderful ring attraction.

Loser Avoided Knockout.

In his first bout Schmeling knocked out Joe Monte. He would have knocked out Sekyra last night but for the fact that the Ohioan is of that awkward type difficult to hit with a clean, solid shot to the jaw.

Schmeling has the fighting qualities which seem destined to bring him ring fame, and he has the style which attracts the favor of the crowd. He is tireless, relentless on the attack, is a good counter-puncher and hits sharply, if a bit lightly. But punching strength will come to him unless disaster overtakes him prematurely.

Schmeling reminded the fans of Dempsey in more ways than merely in looks as the fight started. He shuffled forward, held his hands ready for attack as did the old Manassa Mauler, ignored his rival's blows in the patient wait for an opening for one of his own and moved relentlessly forward all the time.

In the opening round Sekyra appeared timid or too respectful of his rival's ability. He led with punches often enough but was in retreat most of the time and his leads were defensive lefts. Schmeling, however, didn't get going until near the bell and then only earned an even break on the round.

Sekyra Takes the Second.

The second was Sekyra's because he pecked and peppered the German with left jabs and landed several rights to the jaw which brought out the fact that Schmeling can take a drive to the chin without folding.

In the third Schmeling appeared to advantage. He kept his left jab popping. In the fourth round a straight left jab sent Sekyra down in a sitting position in a neutral corner.

The fifth found Schmeling outjabbing his rival and for the greater part of the sixth session it was the same. Then Schmeling started crossing his fire to the face and with a mixture of left jabs and high right hooks the German had his rival weary.

Bekyra's effort in the seventh was a disorganized, desperate retreat. He tried to keep Schmeling at bay with straight lefts but without success. He had better success in the eighth, but in the ninth Schmeling, coming in steadily against his foe's desperate lefts, had Sekyra's face looking like a midsummer sunset from a continuous barrage of straight lefts and occasional hooks with both hands.

The tenth round found Sekyra battling valiantly against a foe whose attack completely enveloped him. Left jabs, left hooks, right crosses and jolts and uppercuts rained on Sekyra from all angles in a steady fire until the Ohioan was dizzy. Schmeling weighed 181¼ pounds and Sekyra 179.

Rosenberg Outpoints Dundee.

Charley (Phil) Rosenberg won the decision from Johnny Dundee in the ten-round semi-final. The verdict, rendered by Referee O'Sullivan and Judges Shortell and Kelly, was unpopular with the crowd, but it was justified, nevertheless. Rosenberg, undefeated bantamweight champion, won six of the ten rounds from Dundee, the former featherweight champion.

The match, except for its sentimental value, was ordinary. Dundee, 35 years old, with eighteen years of ring service and more than 400 battles back of him, tried to overcome with his unparalleled store of experience what he lacked in physical equipment against the youth of his rival. Rosenberg was starting at school when Dundee was entering upon his glorious ring career, and this margin in years, more than anything else, told the difference last night. Rosenberg just managed to flash enough ability to win. He captured the third, fourth and fifth rounds and the eighth, ninth and tenth.

Gagnon Defeats Grosso.

Jack Gagnon, Boston heavyweight, scored a victory over Johnny Grosso, Yonkers Italian, in the first ten-round bout, receiving the decision after a spirited battle which gave Gagnon the opportunity of avenging a two-round knockout he suffered at the hands of Grosso in their previous bout. Gagnon weighed 189½ pounds and Grosso 196.

Jackie Saunders, Long Island City heavyweight, knocked out Jack Shaw of Jersey City in the third round of their scheduled six-round bout. Referee Tommy Sheridan stopping the bout after 58 seconds of the third round when Shaw was almost helpless. Saunders weighed 194 pounds and Shaw 194½.

In the opening bout of four rounds Joe Oliver, Sheepshead Bay heavyweight, defeated Eddie Benson, also of Brooklyn, getting the decision at the final bell.

Tunney Says His Retirement Is 'Definite and Decided'

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP).—Gene Tunney has "definitely and decidedly retired," he said today, and any stories circulated to create a contrary idea are entirely without foundation.

The former heavyweight champion, in response to an inquiry from The Associated Press, replied today:

"I prefer to completely ignore any story of my coming back, since it is palpably a press agent yarn. But if you must have reply, it is that I have definitely and decidedly retired."

Tunney and his bride are sojourning at Brioni, an Adriatic resort, but expect to visit Rome later in the Winter.

The Rutgers swimming team marked its début in the Intercollegiate Swimming Association by defeating City College in the Lavender pool last night by the score of 40 to 21. The visitors captured five first places in the seven events contested. The City College water polo team succeeded in conquering the visitors, 31 to 24, in a league struggle.

The first two races were won by Rutgers, Bostock taking the fifty-yard swim and Captain Danny Creem the 440. Steffen contributed a victory for C. C. N. Y. by winning the fancy dive with a score of 74.5.

In the 150-yard backstroke, Jack Armstrong of Rutgers came home first, but he was disqualified for failing to touch the end of the pool. The victory went to Buffington of Rutgers. Karachefsky, City College breast-stroke star, was closely pressed to earn the victory in the 200-yard breast-stroke, winning by a nod over Barnett of Rutgers.

The water polo game was closely contested, with individual performances of Jess Sobel, Lavender right forward, and George Cronin, Rutgers goalie, featuring. The latter tallied all of his team's 24 points, while Sobel made 21 for the winners. Monty Massler, C. C. N. Y. goalie, went into the game on crutches, as a result of an injury he sustained at football. He played the greater part of the contest.

BAN ON JOE DUNDEE IS LIFTED BY BOARD

But Commission Stipulates That Welterweight Champion Must Box Thompson.

Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, was restored to ring eligibility in the local battle sector at yesterday's meeting of the State Athletic Commission, on the condition, however, that he fulfill a contract to defend his title against Young Jack Thompson, Coast challenger.

Dundee's reinstatement was based on the reports of commission physicians that he has entirely recovered from an illness which incapacitated him six weeks ago. At the time he was placed on the unavailable list Dundee was signed to battle Thompson for the title in Madison Square Garden. The board informed Dundee yesterday that he would be compelled to fulfill the Thompson contract and so advised Matchmaker Tom McArdle of the Garden.

Ordinarily it would follow that Dundee would bow to the ruling of the commission. In the present case, however, there is reason for doubt. Thompson boasts a two-round knockout victory over the titleholder in a non-championship match. Also it is understood that Max Waxman, manager of Dundee, favors matching Dundee with Jackie Fields, Coast welterweight, who has defeated Thompson and knocked out Sergeant Sammy Baker, on the theory that Fields would be the more attractive box-office card.

Matchmaker McArdle's request for approval of a middleweight title bout between Mickey Walker and Ace Hudkins in the Garden was rejected until such time as Walker applies for reinstatement and a license here. Consideration of the Massachusett's Boxing Commission's request that Max Schmeling be compelled to fulfill a contract to box Ernie Schaaf in Boston was deferred until Tuesday's meeting. Secretary Bert Stand announced that no word had been received from the Illinois State Athletic Commission on the proposed working agreement between this State and Illinois.

On the request of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission Angelo Chapoli and Jimmy Mason were suspended and the commission concurred in the Connecticut suspension of Andy Mitchell and Teddy Hayes.

SONNENBERG WINS WRESTLING TITLE

Lewis, Butted Out of Ring Five Times, Refuses to Return and Is Disqualified.

FIRST FALL SCORED IN 30:46

Sonnenberg Then Wins Bout After 8:20 of Second Session Before 20,000 in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 4.—Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, 29 years old, former Dartmouth football star, became heavyweight wrestling champion of the world in the new Boston Garden here tonight when he won one fall from Ed (Strangler) Lewis in 30 minutes 46 seconds and then butted the champion out of the ring five times with his famous driving tackle.

Lewis curled up under the terrific assault, and when he refused to come back to the ring after his last involuntary trip out of it, Referee Leon Burbank disqualified him. Some 20,000 fans roared their approval as the referee slapped the victorious ex-collegian on the back. The official time of the second fall was 8 minutes and 20 seconds.

The bout showed no circus stunts. The Strangler was cautious in the extreme about that flying tackle. Sonnenberg would dart in at the start, look for an opening and then desist as Lewis retired.

Ordered to Break Hold.

At the half hour Gus served Lewis with a head scissors but Referee Burbank called it a strangle hold and ordered Sonnenberg to break it. The big fellows then went into a series of headlocks. It looked as if Lewis had Sonnenberg groggy and dizzy with the vice-like application of the headlock. But the latter came out of each headlock. Finally Lewis rushed after his rival toward the ropes, whereupon Sonnenberg suddenly came to life and butted Lewis.

Down went the champion, with Sonnenberg's arms around his legs. Using all his strength, Sonnenberg pressed the Strangler's shoulders to the mat as the crowd broke into applause. Paper were hurled down from the upper galleries.

There was the interval of fifteen minutes between this first fall and the return of the gladiators to the ring. Lewis looked fit and spick and span at the start, as they locked heads. This time Lewis looked often toward Sandow, his manager, for instructions. Lewis tried his trip trick. Down went Sonnenberg, but so alert that he turned as he fell and was on top.

Then started a series of apparently punishing head locks by Lewis. But as usual Sonnenberg's counter was the tackle butt. Lewis went out of the ropes three times, then twice more, and when he failed to come back after the fifth time, after an ultimatum of 10 seconds, Referee Burbank decreed the fall to Sonnenberg and the title with it.

Lewis Won Title Feb. 20.

After years of dispute as to who was the wrestling champion, Ed (Strangler) Lewis, who had formerly held the title, finally gained a clear right to the crown by defeating Joe Stecher on Feb. 20 at St. Louis in two out of three falls.

Lewis had been generally admitted to be champion up to Jan. 9, 1925, when Wayne (Big) Munn, former Nebraska University football star, dethroned him. Lewis protested the decision and after Stecher had defeated Munn both men claimed the title. Lewis refused to surrender his championship belt.

Since 1920 Lewis, Stecher and Stanislaus Zbyszko have held the wrestling championship. Zbyszko won from Lewis and retained the crown in a return bout that year. 1921. Lewis regained it in 1922. He had won the crown from Stecher in 1920 and held it until Munn conquered him in 1925.

PRATT QUINTET WINS FROM M'GILL, 36-20

Orr, Doley and Otis Each Make Nine Points for High Scoring Honors.

McGill University's basketball team lost to Pratt Institute, 36 to 20, at the Pratt gymnasium last night. Pratt played excellently and the passing was better than in the two previous games, while many of the field goals were sensational.

Orr and Doley each made two spectacular baskets from the floor. Orr sent in two shots over his head from the side of the court, while Doley counted twice from mid-floor. Orr, Doley and Otis shared scoring honors with nine points each. Faulkner was the outstanding McGill player.

FERRY GETS DECISION.

Beats Ice Cream in 22d Armory Bout—Young Marino Stops Wright.

Harry Ferry of the 244th Coast Artillery won the decision over Ice Cream, 269th Infantry battler, last night at the Twenty-second Engineers' Armory in the main ten-round contest. The winner entered the ring weighing 139 pounds, while his opponent was two pounds heavier.

Young Marino, 149, of the Seventy-first Regiment knocked out Howard Wright, 147, from the 369th Infantry, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-rounder.

In another ten Irving Peck, 120, 156th Field Artillery, outpointed Tommy Milton, 118, Twenty-seventh Special Troop. Billy Freeman, 180, of West Point, stopped Jack Elrod, a 179-pounder from Fort Hamilton, in the second round.

Yankee Jack Smith Defeated.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 4 (AP).—Young Jack Dempsey of Conneaut, Ohio, outpointed Yankee Jack Smith of New York in ten rounds here tonight.

Dempsey Ring's Champion Enigma; Comeback Plans Mystify Fans

Ex-Titleholder, Who Is Now at Miami Beach, Is "Willing to Fight, but Is Not Sure"—Muldoon Eulogizes Him, Saying He Is Entitled to Be Recognized as Champion.

Jack Dempsey, the champion enigma of the ring, served yesterday to deepen the mystery surrounding his future plans. On his way to Miami Beach, Fla., where he arrived last night, he added to the puzzle which boxing fans are trying to solve with a series of vague statements.

The Associated Press quoted Dempsey in Macon, Ga., yesterday as follows:

"I am willing to meet the winner of the Stribling-Sharkey fight but I will have no announcement to make until I get to Miami.

"I am not sure that I want to box again."

The former champion's trip from his California home this far has resulted in statements of bewildering coontrast issued at each stop-over. When preparing to leave his home for Florida he was asked whether he would re-enter the ring.

Off for His Training Quarters.

"I am going to my training quarters at Ojai," was the reply.

The next stop was Salt Lake City. "I don't know, maybe I will," was his comment about his comeback.

But in Chicago his assertion, "my retirement is permanent," gave the fans a breathing spell only to cause more excitement at Nashville, where he indicated first he was ready for anybody then a few hours later asserted he was not sure.

Dempsey's contrasting moods were plainly evident in New York in the past year. During his recent appearance on the stage he emphasized to newspaper men that he was "through with boxing for all time."

But at a dinner given in honor of Paulino the latter grasped Dempsey's hand and asserted it would be a pleasure to meet the former champion in the ring. Dempsey smiled and indicated the pleasure would be mutual.

Arriving at his destination in Miami last night, Dempsey was just as confused over his future as when traveling. He said that he did not know whether he would fight again or not, but that he might know after a conference. If he did fight again, he said, he would be glad to meet the winner of the Stribling-Sharkey match, "or whoever seems the logical contender." Dempsey said that he expects to remain at Miami for the Winter season.

Regardless of whether the ring ever again sees Dempsey in action, he is still, in the opinion of Boxing Commissioner William Muldoon, the foremost heavyweight boxer and entitled to be recognized as the champion. Furthermore, Muldoon said yesterday he believed that if the former Manassa Mauler were to fight again he would put up one of the best battles of his career, despite his age, 34.

Incidentally, the commissioner breathed new life into the discussion that still revolves around the so-called long count in Chicago, when Gene Tunney rose from the floor and warded off thereafter the efforts of Dempsey to regain the title.

"I am the one who originated the rule which requires the boxer scoring the knockdown to go to the farthest corner and stay there until the fallen boxer is on his feet," he said. "The purpose was to prevent repetitions of what happened at Toledo, when Dempsey stood so close to Big Willard that he knocked him down five times without even moving his feet, hitting him as soon as Willard's hands and knees were off the floor. Dempsey did much the same thing in his fight with Firpo.

Charges Referee Erred.

"The rule provides that the first duty of the referee when a knockdown occurs is to see that the man scoring it goes to the farthest corner. When that has been done he is to pick up the count of the timekeeper. The referee is not to start a new count, as was done at Chicago, thus giving the man knocked down more than ten seconds in which to recover. The idea of having the timekeeper count is that the referee may pick up the count at the proper time.

"Now what would have happened at Chicago if the referee had picked up the count instead of starting a new one? Tunney might have been able to escape and he might not.

"The men in Dempsey's corner were of no use to him that night. His chief second should have told him that if he landed a knockdown punch he should listen to that second's voice and obey instantly. Seconds are supposed to be cool and collected."

The commissioner's statement gains significance by reason of the fact that he is a member of the committee designated to select that man who will receive the trophy, the gift of Tunney. His name appears on the trophy with that of Tunney.

FORDHAM CONQUERS COLGATE FIVE, 25-23

6,000 Spectators See Close Battle as Maroon Keeps Record Intact for Season.

VICTORS LEAD AT HALF, 9-8

Adams Heads Fordham's Scoring Attack—Bollerman and Hazy Star for Losers.

Before 6,000 fans, who crowded into the Maroon gym last night, the unbeaten Fordham University basketball team added Colgate to its list of victims by a 25-23 victory in one of the most exciting games ever seen on the Bronx court. Fordham also won last year's game in an exciting finish by the score of 33-32.

Captain Bollerman starred for the visitors. Although he made only three points, many of his team's scores were due to his accurate passes. His tremendous reach enabled him to hold the ball out of reach of the defending players and allowed him to get the jump throughout the game.

Hazy, left forward for Colgate, was high scorer, with a total of nine points on four field goals and a foul. It was due to his scoring in the final half that the score remained so close.

Adams Leads Attack.

Bo Adams led the home team's attack with seven points on a trio of field baskets and a foul, while Landers and Captain Dougherty were one point behind with six each. Danny Reardon, anchor guard and the pivot of the Maroon three-man attack, was the defensive star of the game and time and again he literally took the ball away from an opponent.

Fordham started its second team, but after the visitors took the lead on a foul shot after two minutes of play, Ed Kelleher, Fordham coach, sent his first five on the floor. Bollerman made the first score, and after the regulars started Bramer shot a basket to make it 9-0.

A basket by Reardon and a foul shot by Adams tied the score at 3-3. Hazy and Bonacker each made a foul and Adams again tied the count at 5-5. An underhand throw by Dougherty accounted for two more Fordham points and sent the Maroon into a lead that was held thenceforth. At half time Fordham led, 9-8.

Fordham Forges Ahead.

In the second half Landers made two field goals and Adams another that sent the score to what seemed a safe margin. A Colgate rally led by Bollerman and Hazy made the score close again and with two minutes to go the score stood 22-20.

Adams shot another and Landers got Fordham's twenty-fifth point on a foul. Bramer shot a foul and Cynoski a basket for Colgate just as the final whistle sounded.

KEATING TALLIES 15 POINTS

Teams Battle on Even Terms at Start—Clubmen in Front by 16 to 9 at Half-Time.

The Crescent A. C. basketball team registered its seventh victory out of eight starts last night on the Crescent floor in Brooklyn when it defeated the Princeton quintet by a score of 33 to 19.

Taking the lead at the opening whistle, when Rhodes scored two baskets from the floor, the winners held a 4 to 0 advantage at the end of three minutes of play. The Princeton five took the lead when Lebhart and Bowen tallied field goals in quick succession and Lebhart registered a foul shot, making the count 5 to 4 in favor of the losers.

Simmen tallied from the foul line, deadlocking the count at 5-all. The teams battled on even terms during the next seven minutes of play, with neither side scoring. Keating dropped in a field goal from midcourt, making the count 7 to 5, and the winners began to pile up a lead that was never threatened.

With the score 16 to 9 at the opening of the second half, Keating started scoring for the Crescents, dribbling the entire length of the floor for two field goals and tallying another from the centre of the floor. The superior team work of the winners accounted for seventeen points in the second period, while the Princeton five was unable to solve the strong defense of the Crescent guards. Keating of the victors was high scorer of the game, accounting for fifteen of his team's total.

Form Players Score at New Orleans, Four Favorites Winning and Two Placing

4 FAVORITES SCORE AT NEW ORLEANS

Two Others Finish Second, Omardale Being Only Choice to Run Unplaced.

MACEDON WINS AT ODDS-ON

Leads Groucher Home by 6 Lengths in Cloverdale Purse—Strongheart and Eloise Triumph.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4.—The form players again scored heavily here today, with four favorites winning and two placing second on a card of seven races. Tall Grass, which finished first in the sixth event, was held at only slightly longer odds to win than was Flying Chief, the choice, which was second. Omardale, in the second race, was the only favorite to run unplaced.

Macedon from the Wild Rose Farm, an odds-on selection, scored an easy triumph in the Cloverdale Purse, the fourth race, leading Groucher to the wire by six lengths, with Hypnotism four more further back. It was a mile and seventy-yard gallop and the winner's time was 1:43 3-5.

Jockey Randells rode a very good race, keeping his mount back of Hypnotism for six furlongs, while the Graffagnini gelding was tiring. Then, around the turn, Randells sent Macedon ahead to take command and Groucher came on gamely to displace Hypnotism as runner-up.

Victory for Strongheart.

Strongheart had little difficulty in winning the fifth event, the Pickwick Claiming Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, leading Grand Dad by three lengths after coming from behind the latter horse to take the lead in the stretch. It was Strongheart's second victory of the meeting.

Little Colonel, an extreme outsider, was third nearly all the way. He trailed Strongheart for six furlongs, but was unable to improve his position when Grand Dad, the pacesetter, dropped back. He was five lengths behind for the show, but a length and a half ahead of Patuxant, which finished fourth. Jim Bean and Golden Mac completed the field. The latter was far out of it. Strongheart, held as the choice, paid $4.42 for $2.

Eloise, another favorite, running for Mrs. S. Mayberry, scored her third straight triumph by taking the Smart Set Purse, an allowance race for fillies and mares at six furlongs. A good field of seven sprinters lined up in this event, the Greentree Stable's Tossabout finishing second and W. L. Salmon's Glacial third.

After alternating with Sweepsora for the lead, Tossabout finally ran ahead in the stretch, only to yield to the hard-driving Eloise in the final sixteenth. The winner had a margin of a length over the second horse at the end. Glacial was a half length more back for the show.

Bradley Scores Again.

Colonel E. R. Bradley added to his victory of yesterday when Borough Monger, the betting favorite, scored in the opening event for maiden three-year-olds and upward. The Bradley colt won in a romp over Aspin Lake by four lengths, with Clearing House third. Aspin Lake set the early pace, but Borough Monger came on fast at the far turn and could not be headed.

A driving finish in the second race saw Mulatto forge ahead in the final sixteenth to beat When in Rome, the pacemaker, by a head. Laftar trailed for the show by half a length in the six-furlong sprint. Omardale, the favorite, was far back. The winner paid $11.34 for $2, the longest odds of the day.

The sixth event was a contest between Tall Grass and Flying Sweep, held at practically the same odds. Flying Sweep got the jump at the start, but yielded to Spanish Aster, which set the pace until the far turn, where Tall Grass came around the field to breeze in front and win by three lengths. Flying Sweep took the place by five lengths over Border Chief, which was a half-length ahead of Spanish Aster, which had tired rapidly.

Less K, owned by J. L. Knight, did well to beat Tractor in the final event, which was featured by the second driving finish of the day. Jockey Luther held his mount back of the pace until the stretch was reached and there Less K came on and ran almost even with Tractor to win by the margin of a head. The Major set the pace for six furlongs, but was unable to withstand the winner's closing rush and dropped back four lengths behind Tractor for the show. Less K paid $8.50 for $2 straight, and Tractor, the favorite, $2.72 to place.

BICOOK HOME FIRST AT HAVANA TRACK

Murphy Filly Beats Annedire and Quadroon in Race for 2-Year-Olds at 3 Furlongs.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 4 (AP).—Two-year-olds held the centre of interest at Oriental Park today and a daughter of Theo Cook showed the way to nine other well-bred youngsters at three furlongs. Bicook, racing for T. M. Murphy and ridden by Jockey C. Ralls, proved a clever winner over Annedire, while Quadroon, owned by R. L. Gerry, was third, with the latter's stablemate, Treacle, fourth.

Of the ten that faced the barrier, two were colts. The Gerry pair were installed favorites. The youngsters were well mannered at the barrier and left in good alignment. Bicook displayed a good flight of early speed and in a few strides was far in front, while Annedire was moving up steadily on the inside. Bicook won by a length and a half, ridden out, and Annedire beat Quadroon by five lengths.

Nick Cullop, at 7 to 10, took the fifth race, the Union Club Handicap, from Rejuvenation, with Rockhawk third. The winner was in front most of the way and had a margin of a head over the second horse at the wire. Willie K. was a well-played long shot, but he showed scant speed.

'CHASE BODY WORKS ON UNIFORM JUMPS

Present Wide Variation Seen as Menace to First-Class Cross-Country Sport.

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

Davis Again to Head Organization —Committees Named—Eight Licenses Are Granted.

A movement to make the jump of all steeplechase courses more uniform is being sponsored by the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, according to an announcement made by the organization yesterday. It was announced that at the annual meeting the members present agreed that the wide variation in jumps now existing is a menace to the development of first-class cross-country performance.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the board of stewards the following officers were named to serve for the current year: President, J. E. Davis; vice president, J. E. Widener; honorary secretary and treasurer, Henry W. Bull; secretary, Frank J. Bryan; assistant secretary, W. Francis Taylor; handicapper for hunt meetings, Frank J. Bryan.

Committees Appointed.

The following committees were appointed for the year 1929:

Executive—Henry W. Bull, A. Henry Higginson, H. W. Sage, F. S. von Stade, and the president and vice president ex officio.

Sub-Committee of the Executive Committee—Henry W. Bull, J. E. Davis and F. S. von Stade.

Licenses—H. W. Sage, F. S. von Stade and J. E. Widener.

Course—Charles K. Harrison, A. Henry Higginson, Henry J. Morris, F. S. von Stade and J. E. Widener.

Rules—J. E. Davis, Henry J. Morris, F. S. von Stade and J. E. Widener.

Representatives on the Hunts Committee—Henry W. Bull, J. E. Davis and A. Henry Higginson.

The following licenses were granted: Tramers, P. J. Clancy, J. W. Healy and J. Lambert; jockeys, C. Mergier, George Smoot and Richard Williams.

The following applications for authorized agents were approved: J. W. Healy for Miss Peggie B. Bailey and James E. Gaffney; J. P. Smith for Dorwood Stable.

Riding Allowances Changed.

In Rule 14, the paragraph in reference to allowances for gentlemen riders and jockeys, was amended to read: "In all steeplechases and hurdle races, jockeys or gentlemen riders who have never ridden a winner allowed ten pounds; none-winners of five races allowed seven pounds; of ten races allowed five pounds, if such allowance be claimed at time of acceptance of the weights in handicaps, and in all other races at the hours of closing of entries the day prior to the running of the race. These allowances cannot be waived except by permission of the stewards."

On motion of Henry W. Bull, seconded by H. W. Sage, it was resolved that an amendment to the rules be made whereby trainers will be permitted to ride horses in their own care, and in addition the horses of their contract employer that are trained outside their own stable. The secretary was instructed to frame the amendment for the usual procedure of adoption.

Augustus F. Goodwin, on behalf of the Eastern Horse Club of Boston, tendered a piece of plate for the Hunters Steeplechase at Saratoga and also for similar events to be run at the Spring and Autumn meetings of the Westchester Racing Association.

HEARING UNDER WAY IN DOG SHOW CHARGE

American Kennel Club Starts Its Investigation of Developments at Atlantic City Show.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

At the offices of the American Kennel Club, 221 Fourth Avenue, yesterday, was held the first hearing of the investigation of the charges preferred by the Kennel Club of Atlantic City as a result of developments at its exhibition on the Steel Pier on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1. Many witnesses have been summoned to testify and it is expected that several hearings will be necessary to complete the investigation. It was stated at the offices of the American Kennel Club that no information would be given out until the hearing is completed and a verdict reached.

The Atlantic City case promises to be a cause célèbre in canine circles. It started when two dogs failed to appear to be judged for best in show at the final night of the exhibition. They were the wire-haired fox terrier ch. Talavera Margaret, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald M. Lewis of Bedford Hills, N. Y., winner of the terrier group, and the shepherd dog ch. Arko von Sadowaberg of Jessford, owned by the Jessford Kennels of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Mahony of Roslyn, L. I., which had been adjudged best of the working dog group.

The fact that these two dogs were not in the competition for best in show had nothing to do with the action of the Kennel Club of Atlantic City, which suspended the owners and their respective handlers, Alfred Mitchell and Lewis Worden. Under the rules the winners of the variety groups are not required to compete for the highest award.

During the afternoon and evening of the final day, however, there were many rumors that the winner of the highest award had been predetermined. It was because of these reports and the consequent ringside discussions that the Kennel Club of Atlantic City took its action and reported it to the American Kennel Club. The latter confirmed the suspensions, which will be continued until the case is finally settled.

Representatives of the Atlantic City organization and others involved were heard at the initial hearing. The case promises to develop beyond this particular incident, with other principals and handlers involved.

BENTON FIRST GIANT TO SEND CONTRACT

Prompt Response of Pitching Ace Pleases McGraw on Eve of Departure for Cuba.

PILOT TO RETURN FEB. 15

Yanks, Checking Up on Cripples, Learn Combs, Koenig and Pennock Can be Counted On.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

To Larry Benton, ace of John McGraw's pitching staff last year, went the distinction yesterday of being the first Giant to send in his 1929 contract with his signature affixed. Secretary Jim Tierney therefore has only to gather the names of about thirty-five others on the Giant roster, as Benton is the only member of the club thus far to return a signed contract and Eddie Roush is the only member of the cast with a hold-over contract.

The alacrity with which Benton responded was both startling and highly gratifying to the Giant officials. What stipend Larry the Red will draw for his services next season was not revealed, but the promptness with which he accepted the terms offered seemed to indicate that the Giants had given their star hurler a substantial increase for his excellent work last season.

Last year Benton enjoyed by far and away his best season since coming to the majors. Chalking up a record of twenty-five victories against nine defeats, he led the National League pitchers in percentage of victories with a mark of .735. He worked in a total of forty-two games and ranked fifth in the league in effectiveness with an earned run average of 2.73. Along with Freddy Lindstrom, Benton easily was the outstanding factor in the strong bid the Giants made last year for the pennant.

Came to Giants in 1927.

Benton came to the Giants in June of 1927 in a trade with the Braves in which he, Taylor and Thomas were sent to New York in exchange for McQuillan, Farrell and Greenfield. Benton had been with the Braves four seasons prior to this though curiously enough he had once been the property of the Giants before ever entering the majors. This happened in 1921 when the Giants bought him from Portsmouth only to release him to the Memphis club from whom the Braves purchased him at the close of the 1922 season.

The quick acceptance of terms by Benton enabled Manager McGraw to whistle right merrily yesterday afternoon as he cleaned up odds and ends of business matters on his desk preparatory to making his annual Winter pilgrimage to Cuba. The Giant pilot will sail for Havana today and, as President Roosevelt of the Ward Line.

McGraw stated he intended to make this a real vacation trip and would not return to New York for the Spring schedule meeting of the majors early in February. However, for a reason which he did not deem it necessary to elaborate upon, McGraw said he would return to New York about Feb. 15 before going to the San Antonio training camp.

Yanks Check Up on Invalids.

As the days grow longer and the time for the annual Spring exodus grows shorter, the Yankee officials are said to be preparing a rather elaborate check-up on their list of distinguished invalids who staggered backward into a pennant last Fall and then smacked the Cards four straight. The list at the time included Tony Lazzeri, Herb Pennock, Earl Combs, Wilcy Moore and Mark Koenig, and reports on the five thus far are meagre, indeed.

Combs is said to have completely recovered from the fractured wrist that kept him out of the series, and from San Francisco comes word that Koenig will be fit when the new campaign begins, but reports on Lazzeri and Moore are less convincing. In fact, it is considered quite likely Manager Huggins will not know anything definite about the damaged throwing arms of these two until they show up at St. Petersburg, Fla.

6 POLO GAMES ON TONIGHT.

The other games at the 101st Cavalry Armory are in Class C and will be between the Manlius School and 101st Cavalry team, and the Essex Troop of Newark and another 101st Cavalry trio.

The resumption of play in the Class B division of the metropolitan squash tennis championships saw the City Athletic Club maintain its hold on first place last night while the New York A. C. advanced ahead of the Harvard Club to second place.

Frank Ward's leading protégés played the Park Avenue Squash Club, which had lost all five of its matches, but the City A. C. had to remain content with a 4—3 victory. The match was played on the Park Avenue courts.

Park Avenue is now being coached by Robert Cahill, who was formerly associated with Walter Kinsella at the Fraternity Club, and the results last night speak for his ability to get

DUTRA-AL ESPINOSA TIE FOR LEAD AT 68

Ahead in First Round of San Diego Open Tourney—Fifteen Players Under Par 72.

GUEST THIRD WITH A 69

Six Entrants Score 70, While Six More Are Tied at 71—Horton Smith Has 17 Par Holes.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 4.—Al Espinosa of the Illinois Golf Club, near Chicago, and Mortie Dutra of the Tacoma (Wash.) Country Club, two native American professionals of Spanish descent, who were born within a short distance of each other in Monterey, Cal., tied for the lead in the first round of the San Diego open tournament over the Chula Vista links here today. Dutra scored 36, 34—68 and Espinosa 35, 33—68.

One other card under 70 was posted. Charley Guest of the Tam o' Shanter Golf Club, in Detroit, scoring a 69. Guest played with Walter Hagen, British open golf champion. Hagen was one of six players making a 70.

Fifteen cards better than par of the course, 72, were made. Among a half dozen players scoring a 71 were Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion and winner of the San Diego open over the same course last year, and Horton Smith, leading young professional of the winter tournaments played to date.

Smith had an unusual round, in that he played exactly par golf on seventeen holes. This included two par 5 holes, on which his second shots went over the green. So mechanical was the straight play of the 20-year-old Missouri boy he had eighteen putts for birdies. The longest was only fifteen feet, but only one of his putts to beat par went into the hole.

Two Leaders Caddied Together.

Espinosa and Dutra were school chums and they caddied together on the old Del Monte course twenty years ago under the late Jim Melville, George Smith and Macdonald Smith, who were professionals at the Monterey resort. Dutra's card included one stretch of three holes, on which he beat par 5 by making two eagles and a birdie. Espinosa had eight birdies on his eighteen holes.

Espinosa's 68 included a 5 on the short sixth hole and three putts on the seventeenth. Dutra's second shot went over the green on the second hole, he missed a tiny putt on the fourth, and he took three putts on Nov. 12.

On the 466-yard eighth hole the Tacoma professional holed an eight-foot putt for a 3. He sank a ten-footer for a birdie on the ninth and laid his second shot stone dead for another eagle on the tenth.

The cards of the leaders follow:

Out—
Par	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	4	5	—36
Dutra	4	5	3	5	4	3	5	4	5	—34
Espinosa	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	4	4	—35

Hagen's Recoveries Save Him.

Hagen was off the line several times on his second shots, but he saved himself by fine recoveries.

Diegel, making his first tournament start of the Winter, played steadily, a feature of his round being a 300-yard brassie shot which cleared a guarding bunker and stopped 10 feet from the pin on the 535-yard fifteenth. The P. G. A. champion then sank the putt for an eagle after having missed his tee shot.

Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, was the last player to tee off in the field of 141 starters, but he did not return a score.

Stagg Opposes Fumble Change, But Yost Is in Favor of It

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP).—Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, here on a vacation, said today he would oppose a proposed change in football rules governing the recovery of a fumble, for historical and "thrill" reasons.

The rules committee of the national coaches' organization, of which he is a member, was asked to consider an amendment under which a ball fumbled by one team would be declared dead at that point if recovered by the other team.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 4 (AP).—Fielding H. Yost, director of Athletics at the University of Michigan, does not believe the football rule making a fumbled ball dead, as proposed at the recent coaches' conference at New Orleans, would slow up the game or make it less exciting.

PROGRESS IS SEEN BY GREEN SECTION

Experimental Work Fared Well, Although 1928 Was Called Trying Year for Turf.

1,056 CLUBS RECEIVED HELP

Number Served During 1927 Was 1,012—U. S. G. A. to Hold Its Annual Session Today.

A different side of the game of golf was presented at the annual meeting of the Green Section of the United States Golf Association at the Hotel Commodore yesterday.

There was no talk of champions or championships. In fact, the competitive side of the sport disappeared into the background, and instead science and the means of improving golf course turf, fairways and putting greens were the principal subjects of discussion.

Findlay S. Douglas, vice president of the association, presided at the sessions that were held during both the morning and afternoon. The concluding business will be attended to during the forenoon today, and then at noon the U. S. G. A. will hold its annual meeting. Douglas, former national champion, is the nominee for president to succeed Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago.

150 Greenkeepers Attend.

The meeting of the Green Section was attended by 150 greenkeepers and their assistants from various sections of the country. H. L. Westover, acting chairman of the green section research committee, reviewed the past year, calling it one of the most trying for turf grasses. The humid weather and diseases, he reported, accounted for considerable damage to greens, but it was also a year in which considerable experimental progress was made. A total of 1,056 clubs received service from the green section, as compared to 1,012 during the previous year, and of the $23,000 appropriated for the work, $7,100 was contributed to experimental stations.

Besides the new experimental plots conducted with Stanford University, the Massachusetts Agricultural College and the Mill Road Farm golf course, Chicago, fifteen new plots were opened during the season at Minneapolis, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Boston, New York, Atlantic City and Richmond.

John W. Bryant Jr., secretary of the Detroit Golf Association, submitted a report that brought forth much discussion and interest. He analyzed the cost of the operation of clubs in his district, giving $32,330 as the highest sum per year for maintenance and $10,279.06 as the lowest, the average being $15,500. These figures were based on the answers to an elaborate questionnaire which Bryant submitted to thirty-eight clubs in his district.

John B. Mackie, professional at Inwood, spoke on the professional's view of turf problems and outlined the work of experimentation of pioneer days. John Morley of Youngstown, Ohio, president of the National Greenskeepers Association, and R. F. Arnott of Upper Montclair were other speakers in the morning session.

Monteith Is a Speaker.

During the afternoon meeting Dr. John Monteith Jr. of the U. S. G. A. Green Section at Washington, D. C., gave an illustrated talk on the work that is being conducted at the Arlington Turf Garden. He was followed by A. S. Dahl, who spoke on new phases of disease affecting grasses. C. A. Tregillus of Chicago described the new experimental turf garden in Chicago on the property of A. D. Lasker, and Kenneth Welton of the Washington bureau and F. H. Wilson of the Boston district were other speakers.

The afternoon session was closed with motion pictures on the work of the green section experimental and a slow-motion picture of Bobby Jones in action. Besides the visiting greenkeepers, among those attending were Wynant D. Vanderpool, former U. S. A. president; Herbert Jaques and Ganson Depew of the executive committee, James D. Standish Jr., Walter Z. Shafer, president of the Metropolitan Golf Association, and H. Y. Barrow, former president of the district golf body.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

THE United States Golf Association will hold its annual meeting today, and it may be that the subject of eighteen-hole rounds in amateur championships will come up for discussion.

Some of our best players and deepest students of the game are strongly in favor of removing the eighteen-hole match play rounds from the amateur championship, wrapping them firmly in three layers of burlap, and dropping them overboard from a transatlantic liner at any point where the ocean floor is 2,000 fathoms below the keel of the ship. Just to register a point of no importance whatever, the vote of this observer goes solidly in favor of retaining the eighteen-hole rounds in the amateur championship.

It has been urged by Bob Jones, among others, that one whirl around the links is not a sufficient test in a championship tournament, and that in eighteen holes an inferior player on top of his game or getting the breaks has too great an opportunity to defeat a usually superior player. There's nothing personal in the observation made by Jones because the Atlanta barrister never lost an eighteen-hole match in amateur championship play. Since 1923 Jones has lost but one match in five consecutive amateur championships, and that match was lost over the thirty-six-hole route.

On the General Topic.

It takes from two and a half to three hours to play eighteen holes of championship golf, and the action is fairly continuous. Baseball games are usually played in about two hours. Football games, even with intermissions and time out, are played in about the same time.

Polo matches can be played in less time and so can five-set tennis matches in championship tournaments. A dual track meet can be completed in about the same time that it takes to circumnavigate a full-length golf course with all putts holed out.

In most games it appears that a contest of two or three hours is deemed sufficient to prove which is the better team or the better player on that particular day, which is about all that any athletic contest can prove.

Why isn't it so at golf? After one player has been matching drives, brassie shots, mashie chips and putts with another player for three hours, enough evidence should have been collected to render a decision one way or the other. This is only offered as a general rule, of course. Matches that finish all even are in another category, and it might be remarked that not only have thirty-six-hole matches frequently finished all even, but opponents have been tied for the open championship at the end of seventy-two holes of medal play.

All Square.

With regard to matches that finish all square, it doesn't seem to make much difference whether they were contested at eighteen holes or thirty-six holes. The players, at match play, move off to a "sudden death" struggle in which "a true test of golf" may be decided by a gust of wind, a bad bounce on the fairway, a pebble on the green, or one bad shot after hours of fine play.

The thirty-six-hole match is not the last word in golf tests. Take the final round of the amateur championship at Flossmoor in 1928. Jess Sweetser and Max Marston were all square on the thirty-sixth green, and the "true test of golf" was decided on the thirty-eighth green—by a stymie!

If mentioning a match that finishes all square is putting too much stress on an exceptional occurrence, reference might be made to the famous match between Chick Evans and Francis Ouimet in the amateur championship at Oakmont in 1916.

Ouimet and Evans stood on the thirty-sixth tee all even. They both got good drives, but the second shots gave a decided advantage to Evans, for Ouimet was in a trap at the right side of the green. Evans was lying just off the edge of the green in grass two or three inches high.

Evans made a ragged shot that ran far past the hole. Ouimet came out of the trap well and holed his putt for a 4, winning the match. Now, here was a thrilling contest that had raged all day, and it was decided in about two minutes on the last hole by two strokes, one made by Ouimet and one made by Evans. The thirty-five holes previous played, for all practical purposes, "ran for Sweeney."

A Few Admissions.

It is cheerfully admitted that there is nothing fundamental in the game of golf that limits a game to eighteen holes. It just happened that way. It is further admitted that thirty-six holes are a better test of skill than eighteen holes, just as seventy-two holes are a better test than thirty-six holes.

But it is contended that the difference in results—if any—is not worth the extra time it takes to play the double round. There is the further point that the thirty-six-hole contest is not by any means an absolute test of superiority. It merely has it advantages—and its disadvantages.

If the morning round ends with one player holding a long lead, the afternoon round is usually just a formality. If the morning round ends with the players all even or one hole apart, the afternoon round, eighteen holes, will decide the matter, anyway.

It is respectfully submitted that the morning rounds in thirty-six-hole matches are decidedly dull and colorless affairs. This is another point that is not important. Nevertheless, it is true.

The Reason for the Tournament.

It is urged by the thirty-six-hole advocates that the purpose of the amateur championship tournament is to decide, as accurately as possible, the best player of the year. This is true within reasonable limits. The amateur championship is also held for other reasons too long and too numerous to mention here.

It might also be pointed out that if the deciding of the best amateur player of the year were the only reason for holding the tournament, there has been no reason for holding the tournament at all in the last five years. Bob Jones could have been given the crown offhand. The tournament of 1926 must have been a mistake, for Von Elm won it, and everybody knew that Jones was far and away the outstanding amateur golfer of the world.

Finally, it is submitted that the eighteen-hole round adds a lot more fun and excitement to the program. That's something to be considered, even in the (to some people) deadly serious task of deciding the amateur golf champion of the year.

MISS HICKS DEFEATS MISS ORCUTT, 2 UP

Gains Bermuda Ladies' Title Final by Brilliant 80 on Rain Drenched Course.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 4 (AP).—Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, former Canadian champion, and 18-year-old Miss Helen Hicks of Hewlett, N. Y., will meet tomorrow in the final of the Bermuda ladies' golf championship at the Riddell's Bay Club. In a surprising upset, Miss Hicks defeated Miss Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., holder of the women's metropolitan championship and many other titles, 2 up. Miss Mackenzie defeated Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., 3 and 1.

Over a rain-drenched course Miss Hicks scored a brilliant 80 to take the match, coming through on the last two holes after Miss Orcutt had squared the match on the sixteenth. Miss Hicks led most of the way up to the sixteenth, when she missed an iron shot, then took three putts to hole out. She made the next two holes in par figures, winning both.

On the short seventeenth Miss Hicks holed a twenty-foot putt, and on the next hole she came close to holing her approach, and easily made the putt to clinch the match.

Miss Hicks started off by sinking a five-foot putt to win the first hole. The next four were halved, but the sixth went to Miss Orcutt when her opponent required three putts. Miss Hicks regained the lead on the seventh when Miss Orcutt hooked her drive and sliced her second shot. The next two holes were halved, leaving Miss Hicks one up at the turn.

A five-yard putt gave Miss Hicks the tenth, but on the eleventh she missed the green with her approach while Miss Orcutt chipped dead for a four.

The metropolitan champion had another bad hole on the twelfth, a crucial hole in the match, driving into the water twice. Miss Hicks lost only one more hole.

The cards:

Miss Hicks	5	5	3	4	4	5	5	4	4	—39
Miss Orcutt	6	5	3	4	4	4	6	4	4	—40

Miss Orcutt	4	4	7	4	5	5	5	4	5	—43—83

Miss Mackenzie's triumph was gained on the last four holes of the outgoing nine. The Toronto player won all four of these to reach the turn four up. Miss Quier twice cut the lead down to two up, but she was unable to reduce it further. They halved the seventeenth in threes to end the match.

WYKOFF HAS PASSED CRISIS, DOCTOR SAYS

National Sprint Champion's Turn for Better Following Transfusions Reported.

GLENDALE, Cal., Jan. 4 (AP).—Frank Wykoff, youthful national sprint champion, was reported by his physician, Dr. T. C. Young, to have passed the crisis late last night in a serious illness which followed an operation in which his tonsils were removed.

His tonsils became infected while he was at the Olympic contests in Europe last summer, Dr. Young said. Less than two weeks after the first operation the trouble manifested itself lower in his throat and a second operation was required. A third was performed New Year's night and blood transfusions became necessary. H. C. Hayhurst, his coach, and Dick Ryan, a friend, gave their blood to aid his recovery.

SARAZEN IS LEADING AT MIAMI WITH 146

Battling Against Wind and Rain, He Turns In Two Cards of 73.

MAYO, HUTCHISON GET 148

Farrell, National Open Champion, Takes 151, Tying Miller for Sixth —George Christ Has 149.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4.—Gene Sarazen, former American open and professional titleholder, set the pace today for a field of 114 starters in the first half of 36 holes in the Miami open championship, over the Municipal Golf Course at Hialeah.

The player from the Fresh Meadow Country Club of Flushing, L. I., who is registered in this tournament from his Winter home at Newport-Richey, Fla., battling against wind and rain, negotiated the two rounds in 73—73—146, to show the way by two strokes. The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

There was a tie for second place between Jock Hutchison of Chicago, the first American representative ever to win the British open, and Charley Mayo of the Pomonok Country Club of Flushing, L. I. The Chicago veteran took 73 in the morning, but went off to a 76 in the afternoon and finished with 148. Mayo reversed the order and had 76, 72—148.

Johnny Farrell, national open champion, tied for sixth place. His score was equaled by Maggie Miller of Norwich, Conn., who, after taking a 75 in the morning turned in a 76 in the afternoon for a grand total of 151. Farrell had a 76 in the morning but went around in 75 in the afternoon.

The wind and rain accounted for many high scores, the players encountering difficulties, especially on the greens. The top dressings on the greens were washed away, making it hard for the players to have the ball grip the green. This caused them to run over with their approach shots, and a number putted past the cup.

Sarazen, winner of the Miami open the last two seasons, was hitting the ball off the tee with his usual crispness and distance. He lapsed somewhat on the concluding nine holes, due to misjudging the grip of the greens. This caused him to overplay the greens several times.

Sarazen's cards and the par for the course:

Hutchison played matchless golf on the morning round, turning in only one bad hole, the fifth, where he took a 6. On this hole his drive found a deep hole in the fairway. Taking a niblick for the recovery, he slashed at the ball and cut it almost in two.

His cards:

Open Champion Johnny Farrell was slightly off in his putting, usually his forte, and this cost him several strokes.

His cards:

Charley Mayo seemed unmindful of the wind and rain when he went out in the afternoon, and collected a par 72, after getting a 76 in the morning round.

His cards:

The willowy Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., one of three brothers in the tournament and who was runner-up to Bobby Jones for the national open championship in 1926, romped away in the morning with a brisk 73, but he slumped on the outgoing nine in the afternoon and wound up with a 77 for total of 150, placing him in fifth position, one stroke back of George Christ, the Rochester professional.

Joe Turnesa's cards:

PAN-AMERICAN ARBITRATION.

Mr. HOOVER will reach Washington tomorrow after his good-will tour through South America, and will find awaiting him, signed and sealed, a treaty to give practical effect to Pan-American professions of amity. The work of drafting it could not be done at the Pan-American Congress in Havana last year. It was assigned to a special conference of delegates which met at Washington nearly a month ago and has now happily completed its labors. The best explanation of this treaty of arbitration has been made by Mr. HUGHES, who worked at Havana with such ardor and success to promote measures of this kind, and who now declares, in behalf of our government, that the treaty will be accepted by the United States without a reservation of any kind.

The agreement of the nations on this hemisphere to arbitrate their differences is not unlimited. Accurate definitions are required. A classification has to be made of the matters which are arbitrable and those which are not. Among the latter are questions of purely domestic legislation, or of disputes which the courts in any given country are fully competent to decide. To demand that such questions be submitted to international arbitration would be futile. It would hurt and impair the sovereignty of the nation to which a demand like that was submitted. But there remains a large number of controversies that may arise between nations which are of a juridical nature—that is, can be determined by a proper tribunal in accord with the principles of international law. Cases of this order the contracting nations have pledged themselves in this new Pan-American treaty to submit without hesitation to an arbitral process.

Mr. HUGHES justly observes that agreements of this kind tend to remove the fear of hostilities. The reason is that they do not simply "renounce war" in vague and general terms, but specifically provide the "pacific means" by which war may be not only renounced but prevented. In the treaty there is the fullest recognition of the equality and independence of all the Pan-American republics. But at the same time there is a clear implication that by geography and common aspirations they are more closely bound together than any other group, as large, of nations in the world. A natural consequence is the desire to set up such special understandings and definite obligations as are embodied in this new Pan-American treaty. If it is soon ratified by all the high contracting parties, the result cannot fail to be to create a new spirit of confidence and cooperation among the countries of North and South America. Brought into operation as it may be before long and made specifically to apply to disputes that arise, it bids fair to establish this side of the Atlantic something that may come to be called the Pax Americana.

WHAT HAPPENED IN QUEENS.

A change of 52,000 votes in New York State from HOOVER to SMITH would have carried it for the former Governor, since the Republican candidate's majority was slightly over 103,000. Now that the party enrolment figures of Queens Borough are available, proofs are multiplying that what seemed clear on election night had most to do with SMITH'S loss of the State—the party disaffection in Queens. For HOOVER had 35,308 more votes in the borough than were enrolled by his party, while SMITH'S vote was 31,034 below the Democratic enrolment.

Assuming that every one who registered in Queens came out to vote, SMITH lost 68,337 votes from the enrolment figures, which showed a Democratic majority of 92,140. HOOVER'S gain reveals but 35,303 of these. But in the city as a whole 11.34 per cent of those who registered did not vote at all, and this would represent about 42,300 votes in Queens. Of these, according to the party proportions shown by the enrolment, 24,200 were Democratic. Add the 24,200 to HOOVER'S gain of 35,303 and 59,303 of the 68,000 loss are accounted for. Of course, the presumable 18,100 Republicans who did not vote would have cast their ballots for HOOVER, which again changes the calculations and prevents the analyst from saying flatly that the whole burden for SMITH'S loss of New York rests upon the disaffection in Queens. But that the lion's share is in that borough is proved by the available figures and the plausible deductions.

In Queens the former Governor was in the position of the innocent bystander who gets all the bricks hurled by the principals in a fight. The sewer scandals were responsible. As Governor, Mr. SMITH appointed an official inquirer, and this resulted in the trial and conviction of Borough President CONNOLLY. The borough organization, being disaffected, voted against the symbol of their connection. Independent citizens, angered by the ill repute which came to Queens as a result of the Democratic administration, voted the Republican ticket as a protest against Mr. SMITH'S party affiliations. Thus he got it "a-comin' and a-gwine," and thereby lost his own State and with that loss a good portion of his future availability, in the eyes of national politicians, as a Presidential candidate.

An idea of what the enrolled Democrats did to Mr. SMITH when the time for voting came is gained by comparing the enrolment figures in the assembly districts with the actual voting. Here is a sample:

District Number.	Democratic Enrolment.	Smith Vote.	Loss.
1	31,012	27,003	4,009
2	29,020	24,332	4,688
3	39,023	33,494	5,529
4	52,104	45,030	7,074
5	40,744	34,506	6,238
6	23,075	19,137	3,938
Total	214,978	183,502	31,476
Changes after official tabulation			442
Net loss			31,034

Thus the effects of a party split in a single borough of SMITH'S home city are seen to have played a great part in national political history.

BORAHIZING THE TREATY.

Senator BORAH is strong in attack. As a defender he doesn't shine. Forced to answer a fire of questions in the Senate on Thursday and yesterday, he may be said to have conceded a good deal more than was necessary. If he felt it his duty and indicated policy to be as amiable as possible, making admissions for the sake of winning votes for the Kellogg treaty, he was so unusually amiable as to play into the hands of those who, like Signor MUSSOLINI, hold that it is a nullity and a mere flourish. The gist of his answers is that as things have been, they remain. There is nothing in the treaty which the United States has not favored since the time of JOHN JAY and his treaty of unfortunate memory.

Every signatory power will decide for itself what degree of good faith it will give to the treaty. Had it been in force in 1898, the United States would not have had to arbitrate the sinking of the Maine. That is, the agreement to "outlaw" war in general does not apply to specific cases. Conveniently enough, war can be renounced, but used, as an instrument of national policy. As to the Monroe Doctrine and the inalienable right of national self-defense, what Mr. BORAH said was true enough, but scarcely likely to convince the reservationists; though perhaps assertions and definitions of the Doctrine are best left unmade. In modern hands it possesses marvelous gifts of elasticity.

The treaty is to bind the conscience of each signatory. There again the elasticity of the individual national conscience will come in. Finally, Mr. BORAH took refuge on safer ground. The treaty is meant "to bring the moral forces of the earth to a greater realization of the efficacy of peace and the destructive power of war." That is true, even if a signing nation will still be free to try the efficacy of war. At least, said the Senator, abandoning his studies in minimization, the treaty will be "an instrument of education." He might have said that its hoped-for value is in the sphere of morals; that it looks forward to the growth of an international conscience that abhors war; that it is a step to direct the thoughts and desires of nations to the preservation of peace.

Its object is of the noblest. It is part of an effort that must be long to fix the minds of men upon the necessity and the possibility of permanent international peace. Senator BORAH means well; but he unintentionally seemed almost to wish to belittle a pact for which he has been as ardent as if he had written it himself.

ANOTHER LEAGUE ACTIVITY.

The League of Nations has completed the personnel of the Central Board to keep watch of international traffic in narcotics by appointing Mr. HERBERT L. MAY of Pittsburgh as a member. The seven other members have been chosen from seven other countries, all of them members of the League: England, India, Germany, France, Italy, Finland and Japan. Though the United States withdrew from the Geneva Anti-Opium Convention, the Council of the League deemed it important that an American of standing should be associated with this effort to limit the manufacture, sale and use of narcotic drugs. The selection of Mr. MAY gives evidence of the purpose of the League to create a board of high character and competency.

Mr. MAY has given varied service to his city, Pittsburgh, and during the war assisted in the food administration. He became interested a few years ago in public recreational activities and has prepared a report for the Playground and Recreation Association of America. He has used his leisure time to make a special study of the opium problem and the international laws relating to the traffic. He traveled all the way around the world two or three years ago, making investigations in the countries visited and presented his observations to the Opium Advisory Committee of the League of Nations. He will, though in an entirely unofficial capacity, be able to give great aid to the board in acquainting his fellow-members with procedure under our governmental agencies and in taking intelligent part in making plans for gathering and disseminating information as to the world production of raw opium and manufactured drugs. It is another instance of unofficial cooperation with a body of increasing helpfulness to the world at large, though in this instance our own government has as yet given no approving word.

Attention is called in a letter in today's TIMES to the fact that the establishing of this board is a step in advance of all precedents and one of great significance, in that it is given powers of control which may in turn furnish precedent for boards in other fields. However this may be, the experiment in itself will tell whether such control can be "a reenforcement instead of a futility" and will give advice as to future procedure in restricting opium to its benign uses and so preventing its baneful hold.

CAPTAIN BARTLETT'S AMBITION.

Captain ROBERT A. BARTLETT'S proposal of a scientific drifting expedition in the Arctic from Bering Strait to Spitsbergen, in a specially constructed saucer-shaped ship for overcoming floe pressure, is made by an experienced polar navigator. He is called a veteran, not because he is 53, but because he has spent thirty years as a master in the north polar regions. Physically BARTLETT is as hard as teak, and his vitality has stood every test. During a recent voyage he was eighteen hours in the crow's-nest in bad weather. He has gone without sleep for days together in Arctic expeditions. On the Roosevelt PEARY would pick the chief engineer and two or three tried men and turn over to BARTLETT the job of getting together a crew of "hardy ice-navigators." He could turn his hand to anything. Next to the leader in a polar expedition, the indispensable man is the ice master. PEARY wrote:

> He must possess good judgment, nerve, endurance, quick decision, and an uncanny prevision as to what the ice is going to do next. BARTLETT is the type I have in mind.

Other employers of BARTLETT, STEFANSSON, GEORGE PALMER PUTNAM and MCCRACKEN, have all been attracted by those qualifications of BARTLETT that endeared him to PEARY. As a dog-sled man BARTLETT was second only to MATTHEW HENSON. In fact, on the ice he was as much at home as on the bridge of a ship. "After breakfast," says PEARY in "The North Pole," "BARTLETT started to walk five or six miles to the north to make sure of reaching the eighty-eighth parallel." On that last hike to the Pole BARTLETT would probably have finished as fresh as any one, but on being left out he cheerfully said that HENSON was a better sled man and PEARY'S choice was sound. BARTLETT'S latest adventure was on the schooner Morrissey, which he took from Sidney, Nova Scotia, through the Panama Canal and up the Pacific Coast to the Aleutian Islands. With GEORGE PALMER PUTNAM he had taken the Morrissey in and out of many channels in the Canadian Arctic. BARTLETT was, of course, the last to leave the sinking Kariuk of STEFANSSON'S expedition. In the story of "Forty Years of Seafaring and Exploration" by BARTLETT himself may be read how, in his characteristic way, he put CHOPIN'S "Funeral March" on the victrola and left the ship by the rail as the strains came up the galley. "Pushing my hood back, I bared my head and said, 'Good-bye, old girl.'"

For several years BARTLETT has been after backing for a scientific expedition such as he brings to notice again. In 1923 he said: "The weather along the Atlantic Coast, in my opinion, is regulated by the ice cap." The same view has been often expressed by scientists in the past few years. BARTLETT would take with him scientists to aid him in working the ship as well as to make physical studies of the Arctic in their various capacities. He has an ambition to command his last expedition. A Newfoundlander, BARTLETT is a type of the mariner that England formerly sent out on polar enterprises. His proposal is one to be considered sympathetically.

THE SALE OF THE ARMORY.

Governor ANDROS found that the loft over the kitchen in the Dutch fort at New Amsterdam was a poor place to store arms. It proved "extraordinary leakcy, and too rotten to bee repaired." For a while he tried keeping the arms in the garret over the soldiers' quarters. But they didn't do very well there either, "by reason of smoake and moysture." So he builded anew, using the walls of the church, of the great house, of the staircase, and of the fort, remarking with some satisfaction that this new "armory," being the "only one that is in those parts," was a work absolutely necessary to the fort.

He would have been incredulous had any one told him that there would come a time, 250 years later, when another armory, several miles to the north on the "Great Highway," having outlived its usefulness, would be sold for $3,375,000. That is probably a good deal more than all the buildings in the New York of his day were worth. Yet it does not seem like such a huge sum nowadays, particularly when it is realized that the armory occupied a whole block, though a truncated one. There are very few blocks left along Broadway under a single ownership, as Mr. DAY remarked when he made the sale. The Waldorf, which occupies a full block front on Fifth Avenue, was sold the other day for several times the sum bid for the armory. Madison Avenue saw the sale of the Presbyterian Hospital block not long ago. Such opportunities do not come often to real estate operators on Manhattan Island.

The buyer of the 104th Field Artillery Armory, better known to New Yorkers of the older generation as the armory of the Twenty-second Regiment, plans to remodel the building and make it an amusement and convention centre. If he does that he must face the stiff competition of Grand Central Palace and Madison Square Garden—unless, as he appears to think, he can produce something that will successfully bridge the gap between small exhibition halls and the very largest ones. Of equal interest are the city's plans. Naturally the Controller is glad to see so substantial a property put back on the tax rolls. But what will he do with the proceeds of the sale itself, which go into the city's real estate fund? Perhaps General BERRY will propose that the surplus be used for new parks and playgrounds. That would be an appropriate way of beating swords into ploughshares.

SCIENTIFIC PHILANTHROPY.

The mere size of the new Rockefeller Foundation, with assets of nearly $300,000,000, is enough to stagger the imagination. But size alone is the least of its distinctions. The new organization is a combination of the Rockefeller Foundation created in 1913 and of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, both of which have been distinguished for the high quality of their service and for the exceptional ability and efficiency of their management. The purpose is to avoid overlapping, to facilitate investigation and study, and to add to the efficiency of administration. Part of the functions of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, notably those pertaining to child health work and to interracial relations, are to be continued by a new organization known as the Spelman Fund. The new Rockefeller Foundation will include the public health work and research of the old Foundation and the social science work of the Memorial.

It has been said of the Rockefeller Foundation that it is the most scientific philanthropic organization in the world. This is true. But it is equally distinguished for its qualities of imagination. To administer the work of relief and assistance of many kinds which the Foundation and its associates have been carrying on is a specialized occupation that requires exceptional skill. But to plan largely, to choose wisely from many suggestions and requests for help, to render assistance where it will be most productive—these tasks require vision, sympathy and common sense in a rare degree.

Comparison has often been made between the public gifts of the ancient Romans and the generosity of American millionaires. Aside from differences in form, it may be said that the latter, as shown in such cases as the Rockefeller Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation, have a constructive purpose and are designed to be progressively valuable as the years go by. Research work and scientific studies such as are being conducted nowadays, thanks to the assistance of these great bequests, not only greatly speed up the work of relieving human suffering, but lay the foundations on which future scientists can build. It has been the peculiar distinction of the Rockefeller Foundation through its health work to render invaluable services in this way.

The natural sciences, the social sciences, the medical sciences and the humanities—these are the fields on which the new Rockefeller Foundation is to concentrate. So broad are they that they permit it to lend a hand in almost any constructive activity affecting scientific work or human welfare. Thanks to the enormous resources of the Foundation it is able to push a good cause without stint, thus assuring the sort of success in many fields that it has had in carrying on projects like the fight against yellow fever, malaria and hookworm. On a small scale such work would be of only limited value. On a large scale it benefits the world.

SHIPS AND SEALING WAX.

An apparent petty attempt by the Postoffice Department at Washington to penalize the Cunard Line by withholding mail from the Berengaria is explained—or explained away—by the Assistant Postmaster General in charge of foreign mail. He declares truthfully that he should have no concern at all in quarrels about shipping, and that "my business is getting the mail to foreign ports as quickly as possible." Then he enters into a little calculation of time tables where it is difficult to follow him. The mathematical upshot would seem to be that a ship which takes nine days to cross will, if it starts one day earlier, arrive before a ship which takes only six days. However, it is reassuring to know that the Postoffice Department is not going to imitate the Shipping Board in a display of bad temper simply because an English company has sought to obtain a part of the ocean carriage of passengers between New York and Havana. Nor is it a question of especially favoring American liners in the writing of mail contracts or assigning the mails to be carried. The sensible position is taken by the Postoffice Department that, in accepting letters or mailable articles from the public, it is bound to do its best to deliver them at their destination in the shortest time possible, by whatever facilities are available.

Of course, all Americans wish to see their flag more frequently on the sea, and are ready to do everything reasonable to bring about a larger proportion of American freights in American bottoms. But it must never be forgotten that the ocean remains the greatest area of free competition on this earth. There, if anywhere, enterprise finds a fair field and needs to ask for no favors. In the long run, in overseas transportation it is service, not nationality, that counts. The way to defeat a rival is to do better work cheaper than he does. It is certain that we cannot beat him by making ugly faces at him.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Calcium Supplies in the Body.

Magazines of a technical nature do not often contain articles of popular or timely interest. The Journal of Experimental Medicine is probably one of the most incomprehensible to laymen, but in the January number are two articles which deal with a subject of public interest just now. In following the accounts of King GEORGE'S illness we have learned that calcium is being administered to make up for a loss of that mineral in the blood.

It has been known for some time that many influences increase the body's demand for calcium. Investigators have discovered a special storehouse in the body for this necessity. The entire skeleton is not at the mercy of unexpected drains. Its supply is fairly stable. When exhaustion reduces the supply of calcium or inorganic salts in the blood, the newly discovered storehouse is drawn upon. The trabeculae of the bones serve as a source of calcium.

It had been thought that perhaps the shafts of the bones gave up some of their supply when needed, but it has been proved that the trabeculae—these delicate, lace-like structures, in close relation to the bone marrow"—hoard calcium when there is an abundance and give it forth again when demanded.

After the trabeculae have given up all of their supply, the bone shafts begin to be depleted, but it is only in cases of great need that they relinquish their calcium. Before that extremity is reached calcium may be artificially administered.

Peking Is Abolished.

Peking is no more. When first the Chinese Nationalists announced that they had changed its name to Peiping, the world hoped that this might be but a temporary measure. But the Chinese Postoffice announces that henceforth letters must be addressed to "Peiping" or at least to "Peping"—a Europeanized spelling of the new name.

The outside world will be even more reluctant to accept this change than it was to substitute Leningrad for St. Petersburg. Peking is more than a mere label attached to the former capital of China. It connotes the Imperial City, the seat of the Son of Heaven, the centre of an empire resplendent in its monuments and magnificence. It is the place where the Forbidden City was built, a city of golden-yellow tiles, of sculptured dragons and bronze bells, of majestic gates and massive walls, a city of rich mystery, symbolical of an age before modern industry standardized the world.

The change of a letter or two seems unimportant. Yet it is everything. Peiping—or Peping—is nothing but a Chinese city, as colorless as any of the other names of unfamiliar places. It is perhaps the desire of the Chinese Nationalists who have made Nanking their capital in this way to deprive the Manchu city of its glory. But they are robbing China of part of its special flavor. Peking may be officially "dead," but Peking will live forever.

Horses and Gloucesters.

The news from the Quorn hunt at Melton Mowbray is that the Duke of GLOUCESTER, third son of King GEORGE, fell off his horse, while the Prince of WALES went galloping on. Thus a horse again plays a part in the career of a Duke of that name. But the animal's rôle luckily was not so serious as when a horse figured in the affairs of that Duke of GLOUCESTER who, by various methods, became KING RICHARD III. He offered his kingdom for a horse when the fighting at Bosworth Field went against him. Now it is suggested that, if the horse had been forthcoming, the Lancastrian Duke who was defeating him would have become HENRY VII just the same. For RICHARD, as did HENRY in the Quorn yesterday, might have fallen off.

Because of the ill-repute of RICHARD in his country's history, the title now worn by the King's third son has not been very popular. It was a long time before the name of JOHN was found again in members of the royal family of England, the reason being the bad character attributed to the King from whom Magna Charta was wrung at Runnymede.

But the House of Windsor is too far away from those old tales of blood and oppression to be affected by the inhibitions they aroused, and there was a Windsor JOHN just as there is now a Windsor GLOUCESTER. This particular one enjoys the reputation of being a very fine fellow, and the general hope is that horses, or the lack of them, will be of no unhappy significance in his life.

A Visitor Arrives Silently.

Mr. Televox, the distinguished robot who has come to this country to follow the good example of foreign authors and poets by going on a lecture tour, has achieved a distinction which few of our visitors find. He has "made" the front page—not by what he says, but by his refusal to say anything at all until he has got through the customs.

This gives him a double distinction. Our visiting lecturers are nearly always primed by their publishers to express before landing their effulgent views about everything American. To arrive and miss a chance to be quoted is even worse than to be asked as guest of honor at a tea and fail to appear. In the latter case, at least, one is talked about. In the former one's existence is not even known.

Mr. Televox's second distinction consists in remaining quiet in the face of the customs inspectors. This is more than most Americans or foreigners have ever been able to do. Furthermore, his provocation to say something is probably greater, for he is not only likely to be pried into without regard to his sensibilities, but is subject to paying duty on his inner as well as his exterior man.

As he is here as a lecturer, however, his first words when he grants an interview will doubtless be to express his pleasure at the courteous reception accorded him and to inquire after the sartorial health of the new Police Commissioner.

The Argentine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The name of the Argentine Republic as written by their Government and citizens is "Republica Argentina," in the Spanish language. Names of foreign countries and cities are being frequently translated, and although this procedure is as unwarranted as translating private names of persons, it is done, probably to facilitate pronunciation. We say New York, the Argentine would say Nueva York, the Brazilian Nova York. Would anybody discuss which is correct?

Let us apply the same to the Argentine Republic. The native name would be Republica Argentina. Correctly translated this would be "Argentine Republic" or "The Argentine Republic," just as we may say "The United States of America." In the present case we can correctly translate "Argentina" to "Argentine" (silvery), as the English language includes the word Argentine. To say just "The Argentine" is not to be considered wrong, as the word "Republic" has been omitted to shorten the long name. It is common use to say also "The States," meaning the United States of America. Of course this does not prove we could also say "The Brazil" or "The Chile." We may say "The Brazilian Republic," although it is "The United States of Brazil."

Therefore it is to be considered correct to say: Argentine, The Argentine (omitting Republic), or Argentina or Republica Argentina.

Help for Problem Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent letter of Miss Perlack advocating an increase in the number of visiting teachers, surely is worthy of serious attention on the part of all those interested in dealing with juvenile delinquency at its source. And the more familiar one is with this particular problem, the more, it seems to me, does the plan advocated commend itself. Doubtless, these visiting teachers would, when necessary, invite the assistance and cooperation of other outside agencies, such as the settlements, the Big Brothers and the Big Sisters—help, which I feel sure, would be gladly forthcoming.

I believe, however, that there will always be a certain number of problem children who fail to respond, and for whom transplanting to an institution will be the only alternative. Granted that, is it not incumbent upon the community to support particularly those institutions which are seeking to carry out the careful and scientific study of the case and its background, with the treatment in accordance with the findings of that study? Let the public examine for themselves these institutions and support them in proportion as they are succeeding in giving the children placed under their care something that will help them to make of themselves decent, law-abiding children, with some good hope of later on becoming decent and law-abiding men and women.

A PLEA FOR REFORM.

One Suggests That Writers Might Help to Correct National Speech.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If it is not too late for good resolutions, I hope I may be permitted to suggest one to the members of the fourth estate—a body, by the way, for whom I entertain the liveliest respect and most unqualified admiration.

My proposed resolution has to do with journalistic usage in the matter of our national speech. First, then, I appeal to all reporters and editors to ban the use of am for is or are in reproducing alleged negro dialect. When Stephen Foster, of blessed memory, wrote "all de darkies am a-weepin'," he undoubtedly believed himself to be accurately reproducing "nigger talk." The affectionate regard in which Americans hold his immortal songs is undoubtedly responsible for the unquestioning acceptance of his inaccuracy. As a matter of fact, no negro in America was ever known to say am when he meant is or are.

The old-fashioned Southern darky, unlearned and illiterate, did habitually say "I's a-gwine" when he meant to convey the statement that he was going somewhere, just as he asked "Is you-all gwine to church today?" But never under any possible circumstances did he ask "Am you-all gwine to church?"

THE TIMES writer who reproduces "low country" Gullah with such fidelity will, I am sure, support the above positive statements. This old stock is fast passing away, and to me, whose childhood was passed among so kindly and faithful a people, it is a perversion of both history and sentiment to distort their speech. Is you-all gwine to he'p me straighten dis heah out?

Next: Why Frisco? Everybody who knows San Francisco—and most of us who know it admire it—knows that the residents of that city not only never use this abbreviation, but actually resent it as a survival of the days when that splendid city was scarcely more than a camp of adventurers, gamblers and worse. As a rule, when you hear a man say Frisco it is reasonably safe to say that he is trying to give the impression that he is on terms of familiarity with a city he never saw.

And San Antone. Just say that in the modern city of San Antonio and note the look of pained surprise on the face of your Texas host. It only serves to recall the days of Ben Thompson and King Fisher and Judge Roy Bean, who was "law west of the Pecos"; of the days when the White Elephant ran wide open and the punchers carried their six-shooters swung upon belts and unconcealed. Really, it isn't necessary for us of the East to display raw ignorance in an effort to appear traveled and sophisticated.

ADVICE TO WORKINGMEN.

These Who Go to California Will Find Low Paid Competition.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The California gold rush was insignificant compared to the migration of late, started by reports emanating from the minds of highly paid publicity writers. These statements may be intended only to induce a wealthy class of investors and business men to come here, but the highways and byways are full of ordinary folks carrying their meager life savings with them, anticipating a bright future on the strength of these beautiful word pictures. Now that the Boulder Dam bill has passed, this migration will assume great proportions, and really become a serious problem.

I am not a pessimist, but a foreman of a construction company to whom hundreds of disappointed men apply for work in competition with Mexicans, who are paid fifty cents an hour. Lucky indeed are the ones who possess the means to return to their home towns and former jobs.

Let us take the case of a man with a wife and possibly one or two children, holding down a job which has enabled him to save a few hundred dollars. He read about the fine climate here, and of the many industries establishing factories, which employ many people. He decided to pack up his little car and come. If he happens to be like many others, he will find that the trip will cost him more than he figured. He says to himself that if he is unable to find work that suits him best he will take anything offered.

After arriving, say in San Diego, he will find that if he were a Mexican his chances of obtaining work would be better. He may then decide to go up the coast to Los Angeles, where he has been told many factories have been established. After making the rounds of their employment offices, you will find that labor at these factories is paid from thirty to thirty-five cents an hour.

Say he is successful in obtaining a job at one of them. How long could he get by, after paying $30 or $35 for rent, plus gas and upkeep for the Silver to get to work?

I have seen hundreds of men milling near the doors of one of the largest concerns in the world on the day its factory opened, willing to work for such wages—perhaps not willing but forced to do something. Many good white men and their families are living on a level below the Mexicans, who are flocking here in droves. THOS. P. GREANEY.

Relief for British Miners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the numerous inquiries I receive in connection with contributions to the Lord Mayor of London's relief fund for miners, I state that such sums as are received for this very worthy and urgent object will be transmitted by me in due course to the Lord Mayor of London, and that such clothing as may be contributed will be forwarded with the least possible delay.

Clothing should be securely packed and delivered to the Cunard Line, Pier 56, North River, or the White Star Line, Pier 59, North River, addressed as follows: "Lord Mayor's Relief Fund, London." The name and address of the sender should be attached to each parcel.

May I also express my thanks to those who have already communicated with me and to the contributors who have kindly sent me checks.

A SOCIETY DICTATOR.

When a Lady Was Supreme Social Ruler of New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading your opportune and interesting editorial "No Mere Society," I thought I would send you my own recollections of the day when society had something of an organization and an accepted leader—Mrs. Astor.

A position in the social empyrean at all comparable to that occupied by Mrs. William Astor for a goodly number of years without jealousy, enmity or dispute was never possible before her time for any American woman, nor has it been since. Not a few of the prerogatives of royalty were hers. No affair could properly begin until she arrived. And no matter how bored one became at some too-conventional or prolix an entertainment, or how many engagements had to be deferred, all had to wait the departure of Mrs. Astor before seeking a congé of the hosts. And everybody accepted it as a very charming make-believe game of kings and queens.

As it had fallen to her lot to entertain elaborately for years, unaided and alone; to arrange and manage so that society need not be like the world at creation—without form and void—she had the business of queenship down to a very fine point. And probably the only fun Mrs. Astor got out of it was in the technique of this queenship. The wonderful repasts she ordered of Pinard, who studied to excel other caterers, she may not have, at times, even tasted, when all she ever wanted for breakfast was tea and toast.

While it is not the portrait of a beautiful woman, the painting of Mrs. Astor by Carolus Duran gives you a very fair idea of the personality of this very unique grande dame. It is the only portrait of her she allowed for public consumption, so to speak. Strange as it may now seem, the omnipresent snapshot man respected her wishes quite as he might have done had she been in fact his very gracious sovereign lady. There are extant no disillusionizing pictures of Mrs. William Astor. As a girl, Caroline Schermerhorn, she may have been pretty, but certainly not as pretty as, say, Lila Lee or Clara Bow of the motion pictures.

Although Mrs. Astor had a husband, his absence from court never seemed to dim the brilliancy of her reign. She was such an entirety. She was just Mrs. Astor. She could command the services of any acceptable cotillion leader or master of ceremonies, the latter position made picturesque during the latter part of her reign by the dominant personality of Harry Lehr, who from comparative obscurity rose rapidly to fame.

Like Victoria and most women of the last generation, Mrs. Astor was deadly opposed to divorce. She worked for blenséance, and refused to listen to or discuss disgraceful goings-on. When told that there had never been so much cursing among the women since the days of Mrs. Paran Stevens, she changed the subject. And when any new evidence of approaching age disturbed her equanimity for the day, naturally she did not want to have said to her, "My de-ah, my de-ah, I could tell you things that would blanch your hair in a single night!"

Through the seething inferno of scandal, intoxication, profanity, godlessness, gumshoe divorce, "hardness of heart and contempt of Thy word and commandment," avarice, this wonderful woman moved serenely, majestically. What she must have thought was that the iniquities of the ancien régime—which was to say hers—could not possibly be worse than would the orgies of the sans culottes were their bondage to be removed. Were the beggars to be placed on horseback, and they become the plutocrats instead, what laws indeed would the power of their money not openly disregard!

Opium Control.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Central Board of Opium Control established by the Geneva Opium Convention of 1925 is the furthest the League has gone in international machinery. It is the first board of control established by a treaty evolved under League auspices. It holds within it the germ which may develop into the international control of a raw material for the benefit of the whole.

The board has been promised by governments the statistics and figures of the production of raw opium and manufactured drugs. It consists of experts not appointees of their governments. It has its own secretariat, its direct channels of communication. It can recommend sanctions. That phrase "super-state," which so terrifies nationalists in every country, has even been whispered in Geneva as the international law experts consider the powers which the Geneva convention of 1925 entrusts to this board. Its development will be watched with interest not only by international drug traffickers but by experts in international law.

If this control board succeeds, then the treaty for the traffic in arms may later have to be amended. The machinery of disarmament will be emboldened to consider this particular cog as necessary, and even sooner or later that conference on world resources in oil, which inevitably must come, will point to this group and say, "Behold our precedent!"

INSTRUCTIVE BELIEF.

Oh, do not think because her love is late,
That you can give him any other name;
Call him convenience, or insinuate
That he is need, or loneliness gone lame.
Can dusky shadows underneath his eyes
Deny a sure and immemorial spark,
That lights the foolish and inflames the wise
And is the certain remedy for dark?
Although he does not wear the rosy cloak
Of April passion; lean of the lustrous trappings,
He yet sustains the very golden yoke:
The jewel is real without the paper wrappings.
I, once, was heir of the firmament, and I
Credit the wings I cannot verify.

MT. SINAI HOSPITAL TO RAISE $2,000,000

Campaign for Fund to Remodel Old Buildings Will Be Launched Tomorrow.

NEW LABORATORIES SOUGHT

116-Bed Structure for Semi-Private Patients and Modernization of Dispensary Planned.

Mount Sinai Hospital will begin a campaign tomorrow morning for $2,000,000 for improvements, it was announced yesterday by George Blumenthal, president of the Board of Trustees. The improvements are to be made in that part of the hospital plant occupying the block bounded by Fifth and Madison Avenues, 100th and 101st Streets.

The buildings to be remodeled have been used by the hospital intensively for a quarter of a century. They were erected between 1901 and 1903. Since then the hospital has been expanded over two additional blocks, between Ninety-eighth and 100th Streets, where eight additional hospital buildings of more modern design have been constructed.

Mount Sinai Hospital, which according to the report of the United Hospital Fund provides the largest amount of free ward service in New York City outside of the municipal institutions, has a record of about 200,000 visits a year to its dispensary. This building is being constantly used as a diagnostic center for patients unable to pay for private medical service. It is found to be inadequate, according to the announcement, and it will be greatly enlarged and improved for the most modern diagnostic work with the funds to be raised.

During the last fiscal year of the hospital, Mount Sinai was credited by the United Fund with 79,107 days of free ward treatment. The complete renovation and modernization of the public ward buildings of the hospital is part of the present building program.

New quarters are also designed for additional research laboratories, and the erection of new laboratories for those departments which for some time have been forced to use unsuitable basement rooms for laboratory and research work.

What is considered by the trustees to be the most important of all the projected improvements, however, is the erection of a building of 116 beds for intermediate or semi-private patients, that is, for patients in moderate circumstances who cannot afford to pay for the more expensive private rooms, but who seek "and are entitled to a reasonable measure of privacy at prices within their means," according to the announcement.

For patients of this class Mount Sinai has long maintained a small department, and applicants for admission sometimes must wait for weeks for a bed assignment, and in cases where delay is impossible are compelled to seek admission in other hospitals, the announcement says. It has not been possible for the hospital to expand this service, except by displacing some of the 500 free ward beds, which the trustees are unwilling to do.

The hospital plans in its improvements to equip six new operating rooms and an expansion of the laundry to meet new requirements.

Upon the completion of the present building program the hospital will have 750 beds, an increase of 100. It will have eighteen modern hospital buildings, with one of the largest schools of nursing in the world.

BISHOP MANNING STILL ILL.

Meeting on Dean's Resignation May Be Held in His Home.

Bishop William T. Manning, who has been ill for a week, has been suffering from a light attack of pneumonia, it was learned yesterday, and if he is not sufficiently recovered to attend the special meeting of the trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine Tuesday afternoon in his office within Cathedral Close, it is expected that the session will be held in his home.

The meeting is to act on the resignation of the Very Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins as dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The dean gave as the reason for submitting his resignation on Dec. 26 last, rather than at the completion of the nave, when he had said it was his intention to resign, that "a fundamental difference of opinion" in administration matters at the cathedral had arisen between bishop and dean.

This is now believed to be that Bishop Manning dismissed as a curate the Rev. Joseph B. Bernardin, whereas Dr. Robbins believes that the statutes of the cathedral give the dean jurisdiction in such matters.

Dean and Mrs. Robbins were out of town last evening, but are due back today. The dean was the celebrant of the Holy Communion in the cathedral at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

NORMAN ANGELL URGES EDUCATION IN POLITICS

Would Equip Voter to Make Choice of Candidates Intelligently Rather Than by Impulse.

Intelligence rather than impulse should be applied by voters in selecting public officials, Norman Angell, British publicist, said yesterday in an address before the United Parents' Association at the Hotel Astor. "Education for Public Service" was the topic of Mr. Angell's lecture, in which he emphasized the value of "freedom of discussion" in determining the qualifications of candidates for office.

"Before you can have good public service," he said, "you must have voters who know what a good public servant is. We should pay more attention in education to the equipment of the voter and should make the process of voting less difficult. The average voter who appears at the polls is confronted by a great catalogue of names of men whom he has never seen and knows nothing about. Whatever choice he makes is dictated by sheer chance or prejudice. It is this situation that keeps the intelligent and disinterested citizen out of politics as a candidate for office."

Mr. Angell said that a voter, confronted with a ballot fourteen feet long, with forty-eight legislative measures and 590 names appearing on it, is expected to decide within three minutes "whether or not William Jones, whom he has never seen, will make a better keeper of court house records than some one else."

Education must proceed, in Mr. Angell's opinion, from the general to the particular. Mr. Angell thought that proper training in economics was sacrificed in order that school children might learn about Washington's hatchet and how the earth rotates on its axis. The capacity to interpret facts, he said, is more important than memorization of facts.

Robert E. Simon, chairman of the Board of Directors of the association, introduced Mr. Angell, and Dr. V. T. Thayer of the Ethical Culture Society led the discussions.

ALBANY HOPEFUL OF POWER ACCORD

It Is Believed Roosevelt Has Paved the Way for an Early Compromise.

CONFERENCE NEXT WEEK

Some Believe the State May Share Ownership of Dams With Private Interests.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—In the face of widespread misinterpretation of what Governor Roosevelt has said in his inaugural address and his annual message to the Legislature on the subject of water power development, word came today from a person fully conversant with the Governor's views that the chief executive stood firmly on the water power plank contained in the Democratic State platform. That platform followed closely the policy of Governor Smith and called for development under State auspices, with the power plants not only under continuous control by the State but in its permanent possession.

Friends of the Governor, it was said, had been amused and somewhat puzzled at the interpretations placed by some newspapers on his public statements regarding water power.

It was stated authoritatively that the question of long or short leases of sites along streams presumably controlled by the State to private interests had never for a moment entered as a factor into his study of a plan for the solution of the problem. Leases, as the Governor is said to view the situation, would not permit the State to exercise the complete and necessary control over rates and operations that physical possession would.

Compromise Talk Continues.

It might seem that, with the Republicans insisting they will never accept development and operation of hydroelectric plants by the State and the Governor equally determined that there must be no surrender of possession of the plants, the deadlock which blocked development during the Smith régime would now continue. Governor Roosevelt, however, as he stated in his annual message to the Legislature, regards an agreement as possible largely because he believes the Republican attitude as been as widely misunderstood as have his own utterances.

There is a belief in official circles close to the Governor that the conferences between him and the legislative leaders, scheduled for next week, will clear away many misunderstandings and establish the basis for compromise that would save the pride of the Republicans by giving neither side ground for claiming a victory.

Governor Roosevelt has no interest in water power as a political issue, but he is anxious to see something accomplished to bring to the people the benefit of the latent water power resources of the State.

Division of Ownership.

Where Governor Roosevelt in his annual message took up discussion of "water power sites, owned in part or in whole by the people of the State," observers at the Capitol have read between the lines an inclination on the part of the executive to invite private power interests to become part owners with the State in hydroelectric plants established on sites owned by the State. This would pave the way for cooperation where there has been continuous conflict between private interests and the contenders for exclusive State ownership.

What was gleaned in a day of inquiries in well-informed quarters did not discourage this interpretation of the language quoted from Governor Roosevelt's message.

The Governor has declined to enter upon any public discussion of his personal views on water power beyond what his inaugural address and his message contained. He feels that his first statement in elaboration of what he has already said, as a matter of courtesy, should be made to the legislative leaders whose support he is anxious to enlist in promotion of a program differing in many essentials from that of his predecessor and one which he believes should make a strong appeal to them when conversant with the details.

Whether possession by the State of prospective power plants, under the tentative plan which the Governor is credited with having worked out to a certain extent, would be insured through a board of control composed of representatives of the State and power corporations interested in any such project could not be learned. Friends of the Governor said that he was well aware there is more than one method by which the State's interests could be protected.

It was stated today that the Governor would enter the conferences with the legislative leaders with an open mind where details were concerned, as long as he could feel certain that the principle of continuous possession by the State for which his party has contended was preserved. He is represented by his friends to be rather hopeful that something may be accomplished at the present session of the Legislature.

Business Views Modified.

Indications that many far-sighted men of large affairs interested in power development, like Owen D. Young of the General Electric Company, are taking a somewhat friendly attitude toward proposals for development of power under public instead of private auspices may be in part responsible for what optimism is entertained by the Governor with regard to the outlook. It was intimated today that another strong group identified with water power, which in the past has been opposed to public ownership and control of hydro-electric plants, is now less averse to public initiative in that direction.

One reason for this change in attitude may be a realization that with public sentiment on the subject running so strongly in the direction of keeping the State's power resources in the hands of the people it would be impossible for the State to grant to any private corporation the long-term leases on power sites which alone would place them in a position to finance such costly projects as the damming of the St. Lawrence and installation of the necessary machinery to develop the energy.

Business men, and the new Governor himself is one, are aware that it would be difficult to find a market for such securities as underlying bonds on short-term leases of power sites for ten, fifteen or twenty years, while leases in excess of that period would be in conflict with the political theory advanced by the Democratic party that they in effect amount to franchises in perpetuity, no longer countenanced by public opinion in any part of the country.

STAR HEAT RADIATION FOUND BY NEW DEVICE

Observers at Mount Wilson Use Instrument at 1,000th Part the Size of a Drop of Water.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Through the use of a heat-measuring device which is only one-thousandth part of the size of a drop of water and one-thirtieth of a milligran in weight, the heat radiation of 124 stars has been measured by Drs. Edison Pettit and Seth Nicholson of Mount Wilson Observatory. The results of their experimental work are given in the Astrophysical Journal published by the University of Chicago and edited by Edwin Frost, director of the university's Yerkes Observatory. He declares the study is of great scientific value to astronomers.

The device used is known as a thermocouple and measures heat differences as small as .00001 degree centigrade. Passage of the heat through two delicate junctions of the thermocouple sets up an electric current which is recorded on a galvanometer and furnishes an index of the amount of heat. Because of their minute size it was necessary to construct the thermocouples under a microscope. A window of rock salt admitted the thermal radiation to the thermocouple in the experiment.

It was found that the giant star Betelguese gave the most heat. This star, which is 27,000,000 times as large as the sun, is 200 light years distance from the earth. A light year is about 6,000,000,000,000 miles. The radiation of heat from this distant star was found to raise the temperature of the receiver by one-sixtieth of a degree centigrade.

The red star Antares, one of the brightest stars visible from the earth, though at a distance of 330 light years, was found to give the next greatest amount of heat radiation. Sirius, the brightest of visible stars, which is only eight light years distant, was third in heat radiation.

The two Mount Wilson observers found that the radiation of the "variable" stars agreed with the variable vision, more heat being given off when the stars are not in eclipse. For the "pulsating" stars they learned that the temperature is 20 per cent higher at the maximum than at the minimum, a temperature range between 1,000 and 2,000 degrees centigrade being observed. The pulsating of these stars is due to their compression and expansion, the greatest amount of heat being given off at the time of maximum compression.

NOTE CALLS FOR HELP FROM UNKNOWN ISLAND

Message Found in Bottle on the North Sea Coast Is Signed 'Cranston Marshall.'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The finding of a note on the German North Sea coast purporting to have been written from an unknown barren island by one "Cranston Marshall" was announced by the State Department today in the hope that some light might be shed on it by the public. The message was communicated to the department by the German Embassy on Dec. 11, and since then has been the subject of inquiry by the Navy and Commerce Departments and by the Shipping Board, but without result. Previously it had been communicated to the Canadian Government.

The Embassy's note read:

"The German Embassy has the honor to transmit herewith to the Department of State a note which was found in a sealed bottle at the beginning of October last near the town of Ostbenz on the German North Sea coast, south of the Island of Iangeoog. The writing is hard to read. The contents so far as can be described here are as follows:

"'Help, Help. I, Cranston Marshall, am on an island 45 degrees latitude, 60 degrees longitude. Only wild goats and (?) to eat. Cranston Marshall.'

"The text does not show whether north or south latitude is meant. In the former case the intersection of the two degrees mentioned would lie in the vicinity of the Canadian Coast. Accordingly, the note was first submitted to the Canadian Government, but the latter stated that it had been unable to ascertain anything more definite relative to the sender of the message in the bottle.

"The German Embassy would be obliged to the department if an attempt could be made here also to obtain some information with regard to the sender of the message."

PARKWAY HOSPITAL OPENED BY WYNNE

Health Commissioner Praises High Standard of New Private Institution in 110th Street.

The Parkway Hospital at 123 West 110th Street, a private institution accommodating seventy patients in a seven-story building was opened yesterday morning. It was erected at a cost of more than $500,000 for building, land and equipment.

Among the members of the medical profession who took part in brief ceremonies and inspected the hospital were Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner, and Senator Royal S. Copeland, both of whom congratulated those responsible for its erection.

Dr. Wynne, who said that the sponsors had set a new standard for the construction and equipment for private hospitals, and that the standards of medical service set by the hospital's medical board were of perhaps even greater importance.

"Your medical examining board which is appointed to pass upon the qualifications and character of every doctor who wishes to use the hospital facilities is an extremely good thing," he said, "and a very forward step for private hospitals."

The purpose of the board, according to the hospital authorities, is to protect the public as well as to maintain a high reputation for the institution.

Senator Copeland expressed his gratification with the location of the building, opposite Central Park, and with a southern exposure, "so important to patients in the Winter time." He said that the moderately priced maternity service of the hospital would be of great benefit to the neighborhood.

Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo presided at the opening ceremony which consisted of Dr. Wynne's raising the institution's flag to the top of the pole on the roof. Others who attended were Dr. De Witt Stetten, president of the County Medical Association, and Dr. Max Einhorn, stomach specialist. Dr. Joseph Constantine is president of the medical board of the hospital.

PUSHCART FINDINGS CRITICIZED BY COURT

Judge Rebukes the Grand Jury When It Reports Its Failure to Bring Indictments.

BODY URGES REFORMS

Declares It Got Testimony of Corruption, but No "Substantiating Evidence."

ASKS BOARD OF INQUIRY

Suggests a Group of Civilians to Consider Doing Away With Peddling Entirely.

Judge Mulqueen, in General Sessions, expressed dissatisfaction yesterday with the work of the December grand jury, which for several weeks had been investigating allegations of irregularities in the Markets Department, made last October before the Board of Estimate by William H. Allen, Director of the Institute for Public Service.

Mayor Walker had testified before the body on Thursday and was understood to have gone at length into the difficulties of the city in dealing with pushcart peddlers particularly. A presentment handed up to Judge Mulqueen yesterday dealt entirely with this part of the Markets Department jurisdiction. It was estimated recently that last year the pushcart men of the poorer sections of the city did a business of $15,000,000.

It was understood that when the Mayor was testifying before the grand jury, at the suggestion of Assistant District Attorney Hastings, Justin C. O'Brien, the acting foreman, informed the Mayor of the contents of the presentment to be handed up to Judge Mulqueen yesterday. The Mayor later declared that "not only was my appearance before the grand jury valuable for me, but it was of great value to the people of the city."

From remarks made yesterday by Judge Mulqueen, however, it was evident that the court was not in accord with the Mayor on the value of the grand jury investigation.

Calls for Reforms.

The presentment not only called for speedy reforms in the handling of pushcart peddling but also revealed that evidence of corruption had been uncovered in the relation of minor officials toward the pushcart men. It suggested that Mayor Walker immediately appoint a board of civilians, including Moses A. Leavitt of the Jewish Social Service Association, said by the jurors to be the person most familiar with the pushcart situation, to assist in putting the grand jury's recommendations into effect and also to consider whether it would be advisable to abolish pushcart markets entirely.

The presentment had not reached Mayor Walker when seen last evening, but he said that he knew of the work of Mr. Leavitt and would be pleased to appoint him and other civilians to the committee immediately. He added, however, that while the Board of Estimate, on the recommendation of the Markets Commissioner, adopts the regulations for the pushcart men, the suggestion that the pushcart markets be abolished would have to be taken up by the Board of Alderman, which creates the markets.

Criticizes Grand Jury.

Foreman O'Brien held the presentment as he, escorted by Mr. Hastings, led the grand jury before Judge Mulqueen. When Mr. O'Brien had said that the jurors would like to have copies of the presentment made public, Judge Mulqueen said:

"They are using this court for publicity purposes, and not to make New York safe for its citizens."

Mr. O'Brien explained that the grand jurors had spent much time considering the evidence and would like to have the presentment published.

"Grand juries should indict when they have sufficient evidence, or keep quiet when they haven't," declared the court. "Public officials should look out for conditions in their departments. If they do not, they are guilty of neglect of duty."

Again referring to public officials, Judge Mulqueen said:

"They don't care about these scoldings, but they cannot throw an indictment into the wastepaper basket. The grand jury investigation should be with only one object in view—that of indictments. The more disagreeable we make it for the crook—whether in office or not—the better for the community. I'm extremely doubtful whether any good will come from this presentment."

The presentment began with the statement that thirteen witnesses, including Markets Commissioner Thomas F. Dwyer, officials under him, pushcart peddlers and representatives of pushcart organizations, had been questioned on "charges of corrupt practices and general conditions alleged to be existing" in the management of the pushcart markets by the Department of Markets.

Unable to Indict.

"The testimony we have heard showed conclusively that corrupt practices to exist in the present management and supervision of these markets," the presentment went on; "however, due to lack of substantiating evidence, we are unable to indict any offenders."

The document then said that "it appears" that records of pushcarts were incomplete and improperly and carelessly kept in the department; that the department supervisors rarely were seen at the markets, except when collecting the weekly city fees; that these fees of $1 each were collected on the streets and in many cases receipts are not given to the peddlers, and that "special privileges, given for compensation in the allotting of desirable spaces in the markets, exist and that unlicensed peddlers are permitted to occupy spaces."

The presentment also complained of unsanitary conditions about these pushcart markets.

The jurors made twelve recommendations and suggested that the force of supervisors could be cut down one-third, with a considerable saving to the city.

It was suggested that the rules relating to pushcart peddlers be revised; that maps be placed in pushcart markets showing the spaces allotted, and those holding permits for these spaces; that the period of the license be for a year and be paid for at the main office of the department, and that the police, the Health Department and the Weights and Measures Department be required to cooperate with the Markets Department to enforce the laws and the rules.

It was requested that copies of the presentment be forwarded to Mayor Walker and the commissioners of the various departments mentioned.

Traffic in Panama Canal Set a New Record in 1928

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Jan. 4.—The traffic through the Panama Canal has set a new record in 1928, with the transit of 6,334 ships, which paid a total of $26,375,692 in tolls, as compared with $26,231,022 paid by 6,085 ships in 1927.

The number of ships traversing the canal in 1928 exceeded the number in 1927 by 249. Although the increase in tolls collected amounted to only $144,940, the aggregate of tolls collected in December, $2,443,029, established a new record for a single month, exceeding the previous high record, made in December, 1927, by almost $45,000. The number of commercial vessel transits fell ten short of the record of 589 established in December, 1927.

The daily average transits for 1928 was 17.31, with a daily average of $72,065 in tolls collected.

GETS PHYSICISTS' MEDAL.

Dr. Guillaume Honored by Society at London for His Alloys.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Council of the Physical Society has awarded the Duddell Memorial Medal for 1928 to Dr. Charles Edouard Guillaume, director of the International Bureau of Weights and Measures at Sèvres, France, and winner of the Nobel physics prize for 1920. The medal is awarded annually to the inventor of new scientific instruments or of discoveries of new materials used in their construction.

Dr. Guillaume is known in the scientific world for his invention of three important metallic alloys, invar, elinvar and platinite. The latter is used everywhere for the wire introducing the current into electric incandescent lamps. As about 1,000,000,000 lamps are made annually, Dr. Guillaume, by his discovery, has been responsible for an annual saving of $5,000,000, which is estimated to be the difference in cost between teh old platinum wire and the new platinite.

The pendulum rods of all modern first-class clocks are made of invar, while elinvar is used in the manufacture of balance springs of watches.

DRESS UNION OPENS PARLEY

Discusses Extension of Agreement With Jobbers' Committee.

Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and a union committee met yesterday with a committee of dress jobbers at the Hotel McAlpin to discuss the extension of the agreement between the two groups covering the employment of dressmakers. Another group of employers, the manufacturers, has agreed to extend the agreement, which expired on Jan. 1, another six months. The jobbers' leaders promised to lay the proposal before the executive committee of their association and reply to the union next week.

Mr. Schlesinger announced that he was gratified by the response of the public and union members to the union's $250,000 issue of 5 per cent. bonds to carry on union activities. He felt that the response was stimulated by the interest in the organization's desire to abolish sweatshops which are said to be menacing the industry.

OPPOSE POSTOFFICE SITE.

Downtown Group Object to Plot Proposed by Government.

Opposition to the proposed selection of the block bounded by Church Street, West Broadway, Barclay and Vesey Streets as the site for the new Federal building and downtown branch postoffice was expressed yesterday at the City Hall by a group of men whose places of business are within the area named. Among them was Victor Ridder, publisher of The Journal of Commerce.

Mayor Walker suggested that they take the matter up with the Federal authorities in Washington, as it was from that source that the block named was first proposed as a location that would be satisfactory to Postmaster General Harry S. New.

FIVE DEAD OF GAS AT NEW YEAR MEAL

Police Nearly Overcome as They Find the Bodies in Brooklyn Apartment, Two at Table.

ROAST TURKEY IN OVEN

Couple and Three Guests Believed to Have Succumbed From Unlighted Jet in Stove.

Death by gas overtook five persons as they were about to sit down to a New Year's dinner, it was revealed last night when detectives entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, on the top floor of a three-story frame house at 37 Poplar Street, Brooklyn. The bodies of Wood and a man identified as his brother were found sprawled beside a dining table. Mrs. Wood had died in an adjoining bedroom and two guests were found dead in a second bedroom.

The two guests were later identified by relatives as George Wormwood, 47 years old, of 547 Throop Avenue, and Daniel Quinn, 50, of 43 Fulton Street, both of Brooklyn.

The deaths were discovered when Ralph Garcia, living with his wife on the second floor of the building, noticed an odor of gas early last night and notified the Poplar Street police station. Detectives William Kenna and Robert Kelly went to the top-floor apartment and found the door unlocked. With their first breath of the poisonous atmosphere they were nearly overcome. Going downstairs to Garcia's apartment, they tied wet handkerchiefs about their nostrils, re-entered the Wood apartment, flung up the windows and switched on the electric lights.

After a period of ventilation, they inspected the premises, which included a combined kitchen and dining room and two adjoining bedrooms. Wood and his brother, whose given name was not ascertained, were lying beside the table in a position suggesting that they had fallen from chairs at the table. The table was set, and on it was a bowl of celery.

Opening the oven door, the policemen found a gas jet turned fully on, and, in the oven, a roast turkey weighing about twelve pounds. After turning off the gas the detectives explored the bedrooms, where the other victims were found. All five were clothed, and appeared to have flung themselves upon the beds when they first felt the effects of the gas.

The police said that no alcoholic liquor was found in the apartment. Their theory of the tragedy was that Mrs. Wood had turned the gas flame all the way out while thinking that she had turned it only partly off, and had subsequently opened the cock in the impression that the jets were still lighted.

Mrs. Garcia told the police that on New Year's Eve she had chatted with Mrs. Wood in a hallway and had been told that the Woods were having friends to dinner on New Year's Day. No one appeared to have noticed their failure to leave the apartment or the odor of gas until last night. Wood was said by the detectives to have been an employe of a "sporting paper" in Manhattan, and to have formerly worked for the Lockwood Press.

Ambulance doctors from Long Island College Hospital, who came with pulmotors, declared the victims had been dead two or three days.

INDICTED MINISTER IS OUSTED BY CHURCH

Maplewood Pastor Summarily Dismissed at Stormy Meeting of Trustees Board.

The Rev. Elmo L. Bateman, who was indicted for circulating a false Knights of Columbus oath, was again the central figure in another stormy meeting on Thursday night at the Hilton Christian Church in Maplewood, which ended his pastorate. He was summarily dismissed by the board of trustees.

Dr. Bateman was conducting a prayer meeting when John Michaels, chairman of the board, and eighty-two members of the congregation entered. Mr. Michaels in the name of the board demanded that the meeting be ended so that a business meeting might be called.

Mr. Bateman twice refused Mr. Michaels's request, when Mr. Michaels arose a third time, the pastor said:

"I advise, as there can be no harmony in the meeting under the present conditions, that all retire to their homes and that the meeting be postponed."

He then withdrew and was followed by twenty-four of his supporters.

Mr. Michaels then called the meeting to order and Frank Jaeckel was elected moderator. The resolution calling for Dr. Bateman's dismissal was then read. It charged the pastor with conduct in the pulpit that amounted to "public scandal," and said that he had placed "the property of the church in jeopardy."

The minister resigned at the request of the trustees soon after the Essex County Grand Jury had returned an indictment for criminal libel, for which he is now awaiting trial, but it was refused at a congregational meeting. Trustees who had requested his resignation then quit.

TO TRACE CANCER CASES.

Chicago Surgeons' College to Establish Bureau of Archives.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—As a part of the battle against cancer, the American College of Surgeons announced today plans for the establishment of a bureau of archives on all known cancer cases in this country and Canada. Heretofore the length of time required to collect data has prevented research concerning the influence of heredity in cases of the disease.

The American College of Surgeons, through its committee on the archives of malignant diseases, has completed the preliminary preparations for the work and the compilation of records will begin at once.

Every known case of cancer in this country and the Dominion will be reported and catalogued with a complete family history of the patient, details of the case and records of the health of descendants.

Information will be furnished by every hospital in both countries that measures up to the standards of the College of Surgeons, 2,000 in all. Each physician and surgeon will also gather data as will the medical schools of Illinois, Chicago, Northwestern and Loyola Universities.

Lee-Adam Gimbel Buys Stock Exchange Seat; Pays $575,000 to Become Individual Trader

Lee-Adam Gimbel has arranged to purchase the New York Stock Exchange membership of Frederick H. Mindermann for $575,000. He has resigned as vice president of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., but will remain a director of that company. He will be an individual floor trader, having made no firm connection. Mr. Mindermann bought his seat in November, 1926, and is realizing a profit of about $400,000 on the transaction.

Mr. Gimbel is 32 years old. He is married and lives at 950 Park Avenue.

The Stock Exchange also announced four other seat transactions yesterday. James Morris has arranged to buy the membership of J. Hartley Mellick for $575,000. The purchaser will be a member of the Stock Exchange firm of Wheeler & Kenly of Chicago. Mr. Mellick bought his seat in 1908, paying not more than $96,000.

Frederic L. Yeager has negotiated the purchase of the seat of James H. McGean for $580,000. Mr. McGean joined the Exchange in 1924, when the prices paid for seats ranged from $76,000 to $101,000. His profit, therefore, is at least $479,000. Mr. Yeager will be a floor member of the firm of Sutro Brothers & Co.

Lawrence Cowen was revealed as the prospective purchaser of the seat of the late John M. Shaw for $585,000. Mr. Shaw became a member of the Exchange in 1889, when the highest price paid was $28,000. The profit to his estate, amounting to at least $562,000, is one of the largest ever realized on the sale of an Exchange membership. Mr. Cowen will be a floor member of Baar, Cohen & Co.

The seat of W. Plunket Stewart has been posted for transfer to Gerard H. Coster for a nominal consideration. Mr. Stewart bought his seat in 1907.

All of the transactions announced yesterday will be passed upon by the Exchange next week.

'JOKING' ON MAYOR, M'COOEY DECLARES

Too Early to Talk, Brooklyn Leader Says, Explaining His Remark on Drafting Walker.

LATTER SEEN AS CANDIDATE

Chiefs Believe He Must Run if Party Trouble Is to Be Avoided in Fight Among Other Aspirants.

Although John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, explained yesterday that he was only joking when he told newspaper reporters that he favored drafting Mayor Walker for renomination, the feeling prevailed in Democratic circles that under present conditions the Mayor must be a candidate for re-election if serious trouble in the party was to be avoided.

When asked about the report that he favored the drafting of Mayor Walker, Mr. McCooey replied that it was too early to talk about the Mayoralty campaign. He also professed amusement at the report that he might be a candidate for Controller if Controller Berry should become the head of the proposed new sanitary commission.

The general opinion in Democratic circles is that Mayor Walker probably will be renominated and that it will not be necessary to draft him, despite his frequent assertions that he does not care to run again. Every recent move from City Hall, the appointment of Grover A. Whalen as Police Commissioner, the hint of shake-ups in other city departments and the recent appointment of Charles A. Buckley, leader of the Eighth Bronx Assembly District, was said to indicate a desire on the part of the Mayor to strengthen his political fences in the expectation of running again.

The present disposition of most of the party leaders, it was said, is to renominate the Mayor to prevent a fight for the nomination among other aspirants. It is regarded as certain that Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, the Bronx County Chairman, would resist strongly any attempt to pass over Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee and name another candidate if Mayor Walker should be out of the running.

Friends of Mr. McKee were reported to be particularly active in trying to put him in a position where he would be nominated for Mayor if Mr. Walker should not be a candidate. It is the belief of some of his supporters that an increased fare decision by the United States Supreme Court in the Interborough case would throw the nomination open by creating a situation in which the party leaders might seek to avoid popular resentment by switching to some other candidate than Mayor Walker. It was said to be the strategy of Mr. McKee's friends not to make any attempt to push him forward openly at this time, but to be prepared to do so if any change in the situation, such as might be caused by an increased fare, should offer opportunity.

Roosevelt & O'Connor Lose Costs.

A judgment for $14.75 as costs on the dismissal of an action was entered in the County Clerk's office yesterday against Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and his partner, D. Basil O'Connor, in the law firm of Roosevelt & O'Connor. The attorneys served a summons on Aug. 15 last in a suit by them for $2,523 against the Chages Dental Instruments Corporation, but no complaint was ever filed, and for that reason the defendant applied to dismiss the case, and Justice Valente granted it when the plaintiffs made no opposition.

'ABIE' NOT UNIQUE, PROFESSOR FINDS

H. R. Steeves of Columbia Notes Similarities in "Caste" and "Joseph Lewis & Son."

TWO PLAYWRIGHTS TESTIFY

Copies of Works by Henry Doblin and Milton Goldsmith Are Put in Evidence at Piracy Trial.

The trial of Anne Nichols's $3,000,000 plagiarism suit before Federal Judge Goddard took on a genuine academic air yesterday afternoon when Harrison Ross Steeves, professor of English at Columbia University, took the witness stand to trace alleged similarities between "Abie's Irish Rose" and other plays which had been written considerably earlier.

Former Governor Nathan L. Miller, defense counsel, concluded his cross-examination of M. L. Malevinsky, who was on the stand as an expert on dramaturgy, before court adjourned for the noon recess. Former Judge Isaac R. Oeland, trial attorney for Miss Nichols, kept Mr. Malevinsky only long enough to answer a few questions.

Professor Steeves, as a defense witness, was questioned by Siegfried F. Hartmann, general counsel for Universal Pictures, which firm Miss Nichols charged with piracy of her comedy in the film "The Cohens and the Kellys."

The professor, who resides at Westport, Conn., said he held three degrees—A. B., A. M. and Ph. D.—and had been in the English Department of Columbia since 1905, during which time he had conducted courses in the contemporary drama and novel, eighteenth and nineteenth century literature, and had at one time assisted Professor Brander Matthews in a dramatic course. He also said he was the author of several books and "scholarly monographs" on subjects pertaining to literature.

He declared that he had noticed several previous literary works which included many of the elements of resemblance between "Abie's Irish Rose" and "The Cohens and the Kellys," including parental opposition to a marriage, a secret marriage, separation and reconciliation effected through the birth of a child.

"That is essentially the story of Thomas W. Robertson's 'Caste,' first produced in 1867, which is probably one of the best known, if not the best known, play of the repertory stage between 1870 and 1890," said Professor Steeves. "Instead of the religious prejudice of 'Abie's Irish Rose,' 'Caste' has aristocratic prejudice, exhibited by an English mother who objects to her son marrying an actress. There is the secret marriage, separation and reconciliation through a child."

He referred to another play, known first as "Joseph Lewis & Son" and later as "The Match Maker," in which he found many features that he said were identical with the Nichols comedy.

Henry Doblin of the Hotel Beacon, co-author with the late Charles Dickson of "Joseph Lewis & Son," also was called by the defense in the afternoon. "Joseph Lewis & Son" had first been played in New York in 1890 and was afterward produced throughout the country, he said, and was revived here in 1915 under the name of "The Match Maker." Copies of versions played at both times were offered as evidence in the case.

Another dramatist, Milton Goldsmith, of 353 West Eighty-fifth Street, testified that he had collaborated upon a work known first as "The Rabbi and the Priest" and later as "The Little Brother," written originally in book form, but also made into a play. He said the play had opened at the Belmont Theatre in New York in 1918 and ran for twenty-two weeks. The script of the acting version was offered in evidence by counsel for the film company.

The defense contended that both "Joseph Lewis & Son" and "The Little Brother" showed substantial likeness to "Abie's Irish Rose."

CLEARS FIREMEN IN ACTOR'S DEATH

Banton Finds It Was Due to an Accident, but Connolly Faces Departmental Trial.

LOOTING INQUIRY STARTS

Dorman and Kenlon Ask Whalen's Aid in Sifting Alleged Thefts at Riverside Church Blaze.

District Attorney Banton exonerated all persons present at the death of Norman St. Clair Hales at a New Year's party in Engine Company 23's quarters at 215 West Fifty-eighth Street when he closed his investigation yesterday with the finding that the actor's death had been entirely accidental. He told the complete story of the fatality for the first time.

Lieutenant P. Joseph Connolly, commanding the station in the absence of Captain William Bowen, heard that night that he was to be promoted to a captaincy this week, following the retirement of Captain Mulligan of Engine Company 40 on Dec. 30. He invited his wife Gertrude and several other relatives and friends to the firehouse and they arrived between midnight and 2 o'clock New Year's morning. Among them was Hales, who had lived for thirteen years at 211 West Fifty-eighth Street and was friendly with the entire fire company.

Hales and Fireman Thomas J. Walsh of Engine Company 47 were on the third floor, separated from the rest of the gathering by a partition. Hales had been doing contortionists' tricks and he lurched dangerously near the pole hole. Walsh shouted a warning and grabbed for him. Hales caught Walsh's arm and pulled him off balance, fell through the opening and dragged Walsh with him.

Lieutenant Connolly was in his office on the second floor when he heard the men fall. Walsh landed on top of Hales. Both men were knocked unconscious. After sending a call for an ambulance, Lieutenant Connolly ordered Fireman Patrick Cummings and Probationary Fireman William A. Ryan to carry Walsh into the office, where he was revived. He received only a few bruises. As the two men lifted Hales to carry him downstairs, an alarm came in for a fire at 410 West Fifty-sixth Street. So that the ambulance might find the injured man without delay, Cummings and Ryan carried him to the street and left him near his old doorway. They leaped aboard the truck and responded to the alarm with other firemen.

Dr. Wilker and an ambulance from Metropolitan Hospital arrived while they were absent and the man was pronounced dead. On their return, the firemen found Assistant District Attorney Joseph V. Burns waiting to question them. Other members of the party, numbering twenty-four and including five women, were held in the firehouse for three hours while the questioning continued. Traffic Policeman George McNight, there in civilian clothes as a guest, had tried to reach the street and was ordered inside by a uniformed policeman. McKnight faces the trial commissioner on charges that he failed to take proper police action. Fireman Walsh admitted having a few drinks before he arrived at the party on his night off. No evidence of liquor at the party was found.

Mr. Banton said that the party had not been planned, but had been organized spontaneously to congratulate Lieutenant Connolly. Hales, though a friend of Lieutenant Connolly, had not been invited. Hales was intoxicated when he appeared, all witnesses agreed, and their statement was confirmed by Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, city toxicologist at Bellevue Hospital.

Lieutenant Connolly, according to the District Attorney, is the only man in the Fire Department holding four citations for bravery and efficiency. Within forty-eight hours after the District Attorney sends his report to Fire Commissioner Dorman, Lieutenant Connolly will be tried on six departmental charges, it was said yesterday at Commissioner Dorman's office. The charges have not yet been formally preferred.

Investigates Looting Charges.

While District Attorney Banton was concluding his inquiry Fire Chief John Kenlon and Fire Commissioner Dorman began their investigation of alleged thefts by firemen in thirteen apartments near the Riverside church fire on Dec. 24. Both officials requested aid of Police Commissioner Grover Whalen and offered the full facilities of their own department to assist him. Chief Kenlon told the forty-three battalion chiefs and fourteen deputies who were off duty yesterday that he was anxious to break up petty thievery at fires and would eliminate every thief from the department. While he said thievery was not general, he said every fireman who stole threw discredit on the entire department. He also told them every fireman leaving a building should be required to open his outer clothing, both to discourage thievery and remove suspicion from honest men. His statements were delivered in strong terms, according to those who listened.

Commissioner Dorman sent to Commissioner Whalen a letter he received from Chief Kenlon yesterday, repeating the charges of theft in the two apartment houses near the church on Riverside Drive and 122d Street.

"It is reasonable to believe that reputable persons, such as the tenants no doubt are, make truthful statements," the letter continued. "Therefore I am inclined to believe they sustained loss. Whether it was caused by uniformed members of the Fire Department I do not know but I wish to bend every effort to find out. If there be any reflection on the honor of the uniformed force I wish to remove it at once. May I suggest that this matter be turned over to the chief of the Bureau of Fire Investigation for a most thorough and searching investigation. I am most anxious to go to the bottom of this matter, and may I also suggest that you take the matter up with the Police Commissioner."

Thomas P. Brophy, chief of the Bureau of Fire Investigation, said his investigation had begun yesterday by communication with persons who reported losses. Commissioner Dorman gave assurance of a thorough investigation and said that there would be no whitewash, adding that the same method would govern the trial of Lieutenant Connolly.

Commissioner Dorman warned yesterday against unauthorized selling of tickets on the pretext that the proceeds were for the benefit of city firemen. He said any high-pressure salesman representing New York firemen should be turned over to the police.

Will Rogers Sees No Comfort Ahead for Mr. Hoover

To the Editor of The New York Times.

Mr. Hoover lands at Old Point Comfort tomorrow. That's about the last comfort he will get for the next four years.

If his proposed Cabinet meet him at the train in Washington it should be a greater reception than Lindbergh's.

Mr. Coolidge also just got back off a trip away down in Georgia. That's as far for him as Chile and Peru was for Hoover. Mr. Coolidge took passports down there with him.

We are loaning Europe two financiers to show 'em how to pay each other off without any money, by just reorganizing and issuing more stock like we do. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

Cunningham Says Cash Was Given So Help to the Outdoor League Would Not Be Known.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—The part played by Boston Braves officials in the activities of the Outdoor Recreation League of Massachusetts figured today before the Finance Commission, which is investigating charges that a city councilman sought a bribe at the time an order to permit Sunday professional sports was to be acted upon by the council. President Emil E. Fuchs of the Braves in previous testimony had said bribes were sought for thirteen councilmen.

Joseph P. Walsh, representing Councilman William G. Lynch and Daniel Carroll, a boxing manager, in cross-examining Secretary Edmund Cunningham of the Braves, made an effort, it was believed in some quarters, to indicate a violation of the corrupt practices act on the part of Braves officials through their connection with the Recreation League, which is alleged to have spent $30,000 in a campaign for passage of the Sunday sports referendum.

Mr. Walsh endeavored to show that the Braves and the Outdoor Recreation League were one, and that the substantial part of the funds of the league, which were used to further the cause of Sunday baseball, were contributed by the Braves.

Lists Contributors to League.

Mr. Cunningham testified that he contributed $200 in cash to the fund and that he solicited other contributions in cash from friends.

Among the large contributors on the list were President Fuchs of the Braves, $1,000; Vice President Charles F. Adams, $1,000; Weston Adams, son of the vice president, $1,000; V. C. Bruce Wetmore, a stockholder in the club, $1,000; Frank Stevens of New York, concessionaire at Braves Field, $1,000, and Charles H. Innes, who was recently called the "night boss" of the city by Governor Fuller, $750.

Mr. Cunningham said he made his contributions in cash because the Lord's Day League, chief opponent of Sunday baseball, was checking up on each contributor and because he did not want the name of the baseball club to enter into it. The witness denied that the Recreation League had been organized at a meeting in Mr. Fuchs's office.

He admitted that the Braves had issued 5,000 free tickets for ball games with political advertising on the backs, in the effort to defeat State Senator Bilodeau, an ardent opponent of Sunday sports.

Previously Mr. Cunningham's testimony had been much like that of Vice President Adams yesterday, who revealed that his knowledge of the alleged seeking of a bribe on the part of a group of councilmen was second hand, and relayed to him by Mr. Fuchs, who had named Councilman Lynch and Mr. Carroll as the men who had come to his hotel room at the time the alleged bribe was solicited.

The Outdoor Recreation League incident burst unexpectedly in a hearing that had been comparatively tame. In response to questions, Mr. Cunningham said he knew of the league but had nothing to do with its formation.

Says Carroll's Name Was Used.

When Mr. Walsh asked if he knew some of the organizers, Chairman Dowling of the Finance Commission asked what it had to do with the case.

"I expect to show that Judge Fuchs told Carroll that he had used his name (Carroll's) as a contributor of the sum of $500 to Sunday baseball," Mr. Walsh replied, "and that Fuchs's statement that he had expended $30,000 for Sunday baseball was not the truth, but that he had spent more."

BOSTON, Jan. 4. (AP).—The Boston Post will say tomorrow that Attorney General Joseph E. Warner stated tonight that he would take official action tomorrow morning on charges made before the Finance Commission that a list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation League, sponsors of the Sunday sports bill filed with the Secretary of State, was false. It was charged that the contributions, totaling $30,000, were all, in reality, made by Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves.

Chairman Dowling of the finance commission adjourned the hearing until 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The new City Council meets to elect a president on Monday and Major Lynch, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the office, must be in his seat. It is possible that he will be placed on the stand Tuesday.

Hoppe's Ex-Wife's Suit Settled.

The settlement of a suit brought by Mrs. Alice B. Hoppe, divorced wife of Willie Hoppe, billiard player, against her father, Thomas W. Walsh, for injuries received two years ago, when she fell and hurt her spine on a stairway in his home, where she resided, caused the dismissal of the suit in the Supreme Court yesterday. William D. Bosler, attorney for Mrs. Hoppe, said that a nominal sum was paid by the casualty company to settle the case.

L. I. R. R. WOULD DROP WHITESTONE BRANCH

Application to I. C. C. Points to $10,000 Monthly Deficit, Due to Decrease in Traffic.

SEES NEED FOR CITY LINE

Company Also Seeks Saving of $4,000,000 Required for Grade-Crossing Elimination.

WILL PROVIDE FOR FREIGHT

Facilities Installed on the Corona Meadows to Be Enlarged to Handle Requirements.

Application to abandon the Whitestone branch of the Long Island Railroad was filed yesterday with the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to an announcement by George Le Boutillier, vice president of the railroad company. The company maintains it is losing $10,000 a month because of the decline of business along this branch and because the grade crossing eliminations which will be required along this line will cost upward of $4,000,000.

Another reason stated in the announcement is that ultimately the city's own rapid transit lines must be extended to serve the territory traversed by the Whitestone branch, while the trolley lines and bus routes are already reaching a point where they feed the rapid transit lines at Flushing. An expansion of the present bus service also is foreseen by the railroad.

Mr. Le Boutillier's statement continues in part:

"The business on the Whitestone branch began to fall off even before the extension of the rapid transit line to Flushing. When the extension was opened the decrease was very much accelerated. In 1927 when the rapid transit line was opened to a terminus just west of the Flushing River, the Long Island's passenger revenue on the branch showed a decrease of $36,000, as compared with 1926, and for the first six months of 1928 the passenger revenue shows a further decrease of $55,000. The decrease is continuing. The operating deficit is upward of $10,000 a month or $120,000 a year.

"It will cost $4,000,000 at least to eliminate the grade crossings on the branch. The improvidence of any such expenditure for a business which undoubtedly will continue to diminish is obvious. In view of the enormous expense not only to the railroad company but to the State and city required by the elimination of grade crossings, it would be folly to continue this branch for business which must inevitably be taken care of by the city-owned rapid transit five-cent fare system.

"Residents of the territory served have long known that the Whitestone territory ought to have its own rapid transit service and money ought not to be wasted in attempting to do what a trunk line railroad cannot do and never will be able to do. It is inevitably a question of a very short time before a rapid transit route or routes will serve all of the Whitestone district.

"The freight facilities already installed on the Corona Meadows will be enlarged to satisfactorily handle the freight requirements of the Whitestone branch.

"The company, after very careful consideration, therefore, is convinced that millions of dollars ought not to be spent for grade crossing eliminations for a facility which would have practically no business by the time the money was spent and has reluctantly reached the conclusion that the branch should be abandoned."

OTTINGER IS NAMED SHELLAC CO. RECEIVER

Involuntary Petition Puts Assets of Rogers-Pyatt at $1,484,000, Liabilities at $3,713,377.

Albert Ottinger, former State Attorney General and Republican candidate for Governor of New York, was appointed by Federal Judge Coleman yesterday receiver in bankruptcy for the Rogers-Pyatt Shellac Company, which has offices at 81 Exeter Street and a large plant in Jersey City. The involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed against the concern places its assets at $1,484,000 and its liabilities at $3,713,377.13, apart from contingent liabilities of about $300,000.

On Oct. 11, due to financial difficulties, a committee of trustee banking concerns, including Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Baring & Co., William Brandt Sons & Co., the National City Bank and the First National Bank of Philadelphia, took charge of the Roger-Pyatt Company's affairs. The petitioning creditors allege that the trustees were made preferred creditors by the terms of the trusteeship.

The petitioners are Paul Dean, James W. Byrnes and Harold E. Kampf. Dean, connected with the sales department, claims $13,142 is due him. Byrnes, who is an officer and director of the alleged bankrupt, puts in a claim for $12,000. Kampf's claim is for only $60. The assets of the concern include $1,000,000 worth of supplies and accounts receivable and the plant at Jersey City, which the creditors value at $484,000.

Mr. Ottinger was directed to file a bond of $25,000.

Clothier Beaten in His Hotel Room.

Louis Siegel, clothier, with a shop at 22 East Fourteenth Street, fought off early yesterday morning an unidentified assailant who entered his room on the fifteenth floor of the Hotel Broadway View, 2,720 Broadway. The man is believed by the police to have entered Siegel's room from a ledge running along the Broadway side of the building. Siegel received lacerations of the scalp and forehead, a fracture of the nose and laceration of a finger. The police are investigating.

INTELLIGENCE TEST APPLIED TO INFANTS

Dr. Wooley Says Results Show Environment as Patent as Heredity in Growth.

EXPERIMENTS IN VIENNA

Child Welfare League Delegates Hear Plea to Train Children Free of Inhibitions.

Intelligence tests are now being applied to children from 2 months to 11 months old, and the results are tending to show that a child's intelligence is as much the product of the opportunities for growth given a child in its environment as of its heredity, according to Dr. Helen T. Wooley, director of the Institute of Child Welfare Research at Teachers' College and Columbia University, and head of the Speyer School. She spoke last night at the Hotel McAlpin at a dinner meeting of the Eastern regional conference of the Child Welfare League of America, in session yesterday and today at the Russell Sage Foundation and the New York School of Social Work.

At one time, Dr. Wooley said, it was considered ridiculous to apply these tests to adolescent children 14 years old because it was thought they were too young for the tests to give any sign of their future capabilities.

She said that the tests were being conducted by Dr. and Mrs. Karl Buhler of Vienna, and that work on a wide range of children showed that, while at the age of 2 and 3 months no differences were apparent between "institutional children" and children from superior homes, marked differences began to show at the age of 4 months. At 1 year, she said, the children that had a better intellectual inheritance were a whole month ahead.

Orphan Children Improved.

But then, she asserted, the Buhlers took the rank and file of the babies from the orphanages and institutions and put them for about six weeks under conditions most superior for the development of their mentality and at the end of that time they were at the superior test level. Dr. Wooley said that she herself got the same results at the school of which she is the head, and found that the intelligence level rose after a period of attendance. This shows, she said, that capacity for mental growth is partly an inherited quality and partly the chance to acquire, supplied by the proper stimuli.

A big field for parental education, she said, will be to teach the mother that there are many things in the home itself to stimulate mental growth if she knows how to use them. Common tools, she mentioned as a good example and told of the mother of a two-year-old, "the age at which they love to pound," who gave her little son a hammer and nails, and big bars of yellow laundry soap to pound them into.

"That," she said, "is distinctly good education, for we all have to use hammers sooner or later, and meanwhile the child is learning motor coordination."

Dr. John A. Lapp, head of the department of sociology at Marquette University, Milwaukee and former president of the National Conference of Social Work, discussed practical objectives to be overcome in attaining the "fundamental objectives in children's work."

Inhibitions.

The dropping of social, religious, racial, moralistic and economic taboos, inhibitions and restrictions by society was urged for the benefit of the growing child dependent upon social agencies by Miss Mary E. Boretz of the Home Bureau of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society yesterday at the opening session conference.

Miss Boretz spoke on "Are Folkways Being Affected by the Newer Social Viewpoints?" and defined folkways as "group feelings that turn about race, nationality, biology and social concepts."

"The attitude of what we want our children to be," she said, "often depends on geography. In one primitive sphere the child is urged to be a fighter, to seek scalps, in another to be socially prominent, in a third to be mentally precocious. Often the child is urged to be financially capable above all else.

"In this connection we think of work. We have a strange outlook on work in like; work to us means saving and deferring enjoyment until we have reached a period in life when our capacity to enjoy has almost vanished. Stealing we do not regard as presuming on youth but interference with the enjoyment powers of others."

Lionel Simmonds of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum said that institutions should fit children for their future environment better than they do. To this end he advocated daily visits by parents to the children, frequent visits home by the children and supervision of a less obvious nature on the part of the institution.

Felix Wildenstein is chairman of the men's division, and the captains at yesterday's luncheon included Jules Aubry, John Chevalier, Paul Debry, Jacques de Sieyes, Edouard Fermon, Joseph Freedlander, Julien Gehrung, James M. P. Hill, Francois Kleinberger, J. M. Langeneiux, Paul Meyer, J. H. Michelin, Raymond Ortieg, Jules Weber, Frank D. Pavey, Louis J. Rousselot, Theodore Seltzer, Frederick Starr, N. Tiller, Jules H. ASK FUNDS TO FINISH NEAR EAST RELIEF

Trustees, at Ninth and Last Annual Meeting, Appeal for Aid to 30,000 Children.

The ninth and last annual meeting of the trustees of the American Near East Relief was held yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania, when it was announced that unless $2,000,000 is raised before June 30, when the association officially goes out of existence, 30,000 children less than 15 years of age will be thrown on their own resources without any provision.

Dr. James L. Barton of Boston, chairman, presided.

Dr. Barclay Acheson, director general of the overseas work of the association, reported that between January and November, inclusive, last year 4,624 children less than 15 years old were placed in private homes, but only 15 per cent of them were sent to their own families, whereas in 1925 80 per cent of the children were returned to their families. He announced orphanages took care of 51 per cent fewer of the children than was expected when the "liquidation" began a year ago.

Cleveland E. Dodge, treasurer, reported that $1,457,490 was spent for relief during 1928, a reduction of 32.6 per cent from 1927. The association closed the year with a balance of $294,416, he said.

Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary, reported that two major problems faced the association: giving the children vocational and reconstruction training to make them self-sufficient, and raising the $2,000,000 to do this. A 30 per cent reduction of overseas operations was made necessary last year, he said. Of the 169,125 persons to whom relief was given last year 68,052 were children, and of the latter only 3,928 were in institutions, he said.

In outlining how the drive for the final campaign will be carried out Dr. William E. Doughty, national field administrator, said that in addition to the Golden Rule work and regional and community activities that have been carried on an appeal will be made to all denominations after their Easter collections have been taken up to make a final effort for the Near East this year.

John R. Voris, director of public relations, declared that the churches, local pastors and Sunday school teachers always had been the backbone of the support for the association and that without them the work could not be successfully terminated. Edwin M. Bulkley, chairman, read the report of the executive committee.

The officers and trustees were all re-elected with the exception of the election of Bishop Francis J. McConnell to succeed the late Dr. William I. Haven and Fred B. Smith to succeed the late Dr. Talcott Williams as trustees.

The following received distinguished service medals given by Cleveland E. Dodge: Miss Esther Louise Marks of 85 Barrow Street; Gordon L. Berry, Miss Isabella Bass, Mrs. Marjorie W. Wright and E. M. Wright, all of this city. Others to whom medals will be sent are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Midgley of Worcester, Mass.; Dr. Dudley C. Kalloch of Leupp, Ariz.; Edwin M. Douglas and Mrs. Ellen Douglas of Bronxville; Carl E. Hallin of Minneapolis, Minn.; Miss Mildred A. Hunting of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Roy C. Baker of Clyde, Mich.; Miss Elsie L. Jarvis of Charleston, W. Va.; Paul H. Phillips and Mrs. Nellie B. Phillips of Cushman, Mont., and Miss Helen Porter of Alma, Neb.

NEW DEVICE IS TESTED TO PICK UP AIR MAIL

It Also Will Be Tried Out to Refuel Plane and Get Food to Pilots in Endurance Flight.

Special to The New York Times.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., Jan. 4.—A new air mail pickup and receiving device, which is expected to expedite the air mail service throughout the country, was successfully tested here this afternoon by Dr. L. S. Adams of Seattle, the inventor. He was assisted by L. V. Rawlins, pilot of the New Travel Air Cabin Monoplane; the Postmaster, which was named by Postmaster General New in Washington a week ago.

By releasing a small iron ball on the end of a thin 75-foot cable, Dr. Adams picked up a mail bag carrying a 45-pound load from a trap, 35 feet wide and 15 feet high, constructed on a turn-table. The ball and cable released through a trap door in the plane was guided into the mouth of the trap where it entered the metal pick-up thimble attached to the bag and carried it along in its flight.

This test was made without the use of the catapult attached to the trap which is released by a spring and lessens the weight of the bag upon the cable at the moment of impact.

The device will be tested more fully on an endurance flight to be made by Captain John C. Donaldson, former army war flier, assisted by Rawlings and Don Brown. It will be used to keep the plane supplied with fuel and the pilots with food, after the plane takes off with a load of only 120 gallons of gasoline. This will be replaced during the flight by ten-gallon cans from the Adams device. Special arrangements have been made for night flying when pickups will be made in answer to signals from the pilots.

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO THE CHURCHGOER

St. Patrick's Cathedral to Have Prayer Books — Mortuary Chapel for St. Thomas's.

DR. GATES'S SILVER JUBILEE

Chapel of the Intercession Marks Anniversary of Vicar—Uptown Baptists Have New Pastor.

St. Patrick's Cathedral will shortly have prayer books in all its pews. It is now completely equipped with new pews as a part of the general interior improvements being made in preparation for the golden jubilee in the early Summer.

"I have often been worried to see the considerable practice of fine, respectable, intelligent men and women, both old and young, who seem content just to look on at mass, and not use either prayer book or beads," says Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, the rector, in a letter to the parishioners. "I intend within a short time to place prayer books in the racks of the new pews for the use of those who come without them. But I hope that soon every one will have his own Manual of Devotion—a full, inspiring book, not a mere vest-pocket edition."

Mgr. Lavelle in the same communication reports that the new organ being built into the gallery will be completely installed before Easter. At present the gallery, which extends the length of the Fifth Avenue side of the cathedral, is completely torn out.

A mortuary chapel will be built in St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. The Rev. Dr. Roelif H. Brooks, the rector, in a letter to his parishioners, tells of the plans.

"The rector is happy to announce that a contract has been signed for the erection of a beautiful mortuary chapel in the north ambulatory aisle near the high altar," wrote Dr. Brooks. He added that he hoped the chapel would be finished in time for dedication on Easter Day. "The design for the altar and reredos and the altar furnishings is unusually fine, and the chapel will not only fill a great need but will be a magnificent addition to our beautiful church," added the rector.

St. Thomas's is also to have a set of chimes in its tower. "The rector is happy to announce that a contract has been signed with the firm of John Taylor & Co. of Croydon, England, for the casting and erection of a chime of twenty-one bells," writs Dr. Brooks in the same communication. "It is expected that the chime will be placed in the tower in time for dedication on All Saints' Day, 1929, when the names of those in whose memory the bells are given and the name of the donor will be announced."

The Rev. Dr. John W. Bradbury, for the last four years pastor of the Bales Baptist Church, Kansas City, Mo., has accepted a call to the Wadsworth Avenue Baptist Church, at 184th Street, and he will begin his pastorate on Washington Heights tomorrow. He is a native of England and was ordained in the First Baptist Church, Chicago, in 1914. During the World War Dr. Bradbury spent two years in France first as a chaplain and later as field historian of the Y. M. C. A. His first pastorate was the First Baptist Church, Lancaster, Pa., where the membership was tripled. The second was in Kansas City.

Tomorrow the silver jubilee of the Rev. Dr. Milo H. Gates as the vicar will be celebrated by the Episcopal Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, Broadway and 155th Street. In the morning Dr. Gates will preach a reminiscent sermon. A jubilee service of music will be rendered by the choir of seventy, assisted by trumpets any tympani. At "popular vespers" at 4 o'clock the Mozart string quartet will play, accompanying the regular choir. In the evening Handel's "Messiah" will be rendered by a full choir and orchestra. Dr. Gates supervised the erection of the present big stone edifice, moving the congregation several blocks downtown. Until recently Dr. Gates was president of the Clergy Club.

The Lutherans in Scarsdale will begin tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock to hold regular weekly worship in Dykman Hall, the parish house of the Congregational church. The inauguration sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England. The presiding officer will be the Rev. James Berg, Mayor of Mount Vernon, who is also extension superintendent of the synod.

A memorial service will be held for Dr. Frank Crane, writer, in the West Side Y. M. C. A., 318 West Fifty-seventh Street, tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. Dr. Crane died recently, abroad, while on a trip around the world. The presiding officer will be the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, new president of the Greater New York Federation of Churches. There will be addresses as follows: "Dr. Frank Crane, the Philosopher of the Press," by Colonel C. T. Brainard; "Dr. Frank Crane, the Christian," by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Graffiin; "Frank Crane, the Human Friend," by Dr. Henry H. Crane, his brother. There will be a musical program.

Pope Pius XI. through Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State, sent this week to the Very Rev. M. J. Ripple of this city, national diretor of the Holy Name Society, the following cablegram: "His Holiness heartily thanks Holy Name Society members for Christmas and New Year greetings and prayers and willingly imparts his Apostolic blessing." In transmitting the blessing to the hundreds of Holy Name branches throughout the country, Father Ripple added: "Pope Pius has been deeply impressed by the great good accomplished for religion by Holy Name men."

Leaders of the denomination in this vicinity will attend the annual meeting of the National Lutheran Educational Conference to be held in the Hotel Read, Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday and Thursday. There will be delegates from eighty-seven Lutheran colleges and secondary schools in this country and Canada.

Professor John Dunburg will deliver a lecture on "The Divine Orator" before the New York Methodist Preachers' Association Monday morning at 11 o'clock in the Methodist Book Concern Building, 150 Fifth Avenue.

HAMPTON ATTACKS MILLS PRIZE PLAN

Aide to Dry Unit Counsel Denies Denatured Alcohol Is Bootleggers' Supply.

COMPARES STILL SEIZURES

He Shows They Were Greatest in States Using the Most Industrial Alcohol.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In reply to requests by the Durant Award Committee for an analysis of the $25,000 "prize" plan for the enforcement of prohibition submitted by Major Chester P. Mills, L. H. Hampton, assistant chief counsel of the prohibition unit of the Treasury Department, has sent a letter in which he stated that many of the facts that have come to light in connection with the award "have served to prove the expressions of doubt as to the sincerity of the whole proceedings."

Mr. Hampton stated that apparently the committee had "accepted as true" statements by Major Mills as to existing conditions in respect to prohibition enforcement and also had viewed the methods proposed to correct these conditions as new and original.

"Reference to official data and statistics," he added, "which are available to the committee and the general public, clearly shows that in neither respect were Major Mills and the committee correct."

The committee, Mr. Hampton said, apparently was "well sold" on the idea that control of the manufacture and use of specially denatured alcohol was the best practicable plan for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. He gave figures which he said proved that the situation indicated by the Mill's proposal did not square with the facts.

"Diversion of denatured alcohol," said Mr. Hampton, "was never a very considerable source of supply of bootleg liquor in the greater part of the country. Illicit liquor, made from corn, sugar and grain mash, is the principal source of supply in the country at this time.

"This is evident from the commissioner's report showing that in the last fiscal year a total of 35,200 illicit distilleries and stills, and 36,594,533 gallons of mash were seized by enforcement officers."

Mr. Hampton gave a table showing that 3,055 of the 4,041 permits to use denatured alcohol were held in twelve industrial States and also showing the distribution of the illicit stills seized.

This table showed that the largest number of permits were issued for New York in which manufacturers received 899. It also showed that there were 1,914 stills and 1,181,836 gallons of mash seized in New York in 1928.

In eleven other industrial States the number of industrial alcohol permits issued in each were as follows: Massachusetts 285, Pennsylvania 284, New Jersey 283, Illinois 371, Ohio 228, California 212, Michigan 138, Missouri 117, Connecticut 98, Maryland 93, Indiana 97.

In the twelve States there were 8,626 stills and 11,231,667 gallons of mash seized.

Mash and Spirits Seized

"Any estimate as to what percentage of all the illicit stills in operation is represented by the number seized would be mere conjecture," wrote Mr. Hampton, "but the quantity of mash seized if distilled, at a reasonable estimate, would have made approximately 4,000,000 gallons of 'moonshine' liquor, which is equivalent to the total quantity of specially denatured alcohol withdrawn and used in the manufacture of hair tonics, toilet preparations, and perfumes during the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1923.

"In addition to the stills and mash, 1,048,636.84 gallons of distilled spirits were seized during the year, and Canadian customs authorities report that export duty was paid on 1,-169,002 gallons of Canadian whisky 'for export to the United States' during the year.

"Therefore, it appears absurd to contend that control of denatured alcohol permits is the best practicable plan for enforcement of the prohibition laws throughout the country, when the facts are that nearly one half of all such permits are held in six Eastern States, and more than three-fourths of them are held in those and six additional States having large industrial cities; when it is known that in thirty-six States and the District of Columbia, holding a total of only 998 permits, there were seized during the year 19,300 illicit stills and 14,647,251 gallons of corn, sugar and grain mash.

Denies Official Negligence.

"The premise upon which the Mills plan is based being shown to be entirely unsupported by facts, it necessarily follows that the plan itself fails," Mr. Hampton added.

Mr. Hampton said that the language of the Mills plan left the impression on the uninformed person that until now Government officials have indiscriminately granted permits to all applicants without making inquiries along the lines suggested in the Mills plan, and with indifference to the character of the applicant or his legitimate business need for the privilege requested.

He then pointed out the provision of the law and regulations, and told of the extreme care that the government was taking to reduce the illicit use of denatured alcohol to a minimum by carefully scrutinizing all applications for permits. He also stated that a regulation providing for yearly renewals of permits had been in effect for some time; that the work of granting and revoking permits and supervising operations under them had been decentralized.

Major Mills in his plan had suggested temporary permits, and also that the local administrators be responsible for issuance of permits and for their revocation in case of illegitimate handling.

FOUR MEN ARRESTED IN TRUCK ROBBERIES

Captured After Raid on Apartment—3 Others Caught Following Hold-Up Attempt.

Four men, said by the police to have confessed to thirteen hold-ups of department store delivery trucks in different parts of the city within the past few weeks, were arrested on charges of robbery and violation of the Sullivan law last night after detectives under Lieutenant Joseph Mullahey had raided an apartment at 557 West 149th Street. With them was captured a young woman who said she was a dance hall hostess. She was charged with being wayward.

In the apartment the police found three loaded revolvers and a supply of ammunition. J. Pietz, 20 years old, of 429 East 161st Street; John Ernst, 18, of 209 East 165th Street, and Joseph Early, 20, of 1,142 Franklin Avenue, all of the Bronx, were the names given by three men found in the apartment. The girl described herself as Betty Tierney, 18, of 536 West 136th Street and said that she came here recently from Holyoke, Mass. She is not suspected of complicity in the robberies. The fourth man, who said he was Clifford Moore, 20, of 973 Trinity Avenue, the Bronx, was arrested as he entered his home. According to the police an unloaded rifle was found in his room.

The men are said to have confessed to holding up two R. H. Macy trucks, obtaining $650 from the driver in each instance. A $350 hold-up of a Wanamaker truck is also attributed to them as well as robberies of trucks of Abraham & Straus and Arnold Constable & Co.

Three men who described themselves as Jerome Courtney, 18, no home; Joseph Dezito of 269 Audubon Avenue, and Raymond Suarez, a negro, of 219 West 145th Street, were arrested by Patrolman Thomas Phalen of the West 135th Street station last night as they dashed from the tailor shop of John Lazerides at 267 West 133d Street after an attempt was frustrated when the victim began to yell for help, according to the police. Courtney was charged with robbery and violation of the Sullivan law. His associates were charged with violation. Patrolman Phalen was commended for his courageous action in grappling with Courtney and disarming him.

SEIZED AS AUTO THIEVES.

Three Arrested in Newark After Row Among Crooks—12 Cars Found

Three men alleged to be members of a gang of automobile thieves were arrested in Newark yesterday as the result of information received by Captain Haller, head of the automobile squad, following a row among automobile thieves operating in Coney Island and Brooklyn, when one member withheld some of the spoils.

Twelve stolen automobiles have been recovered, and the three men have admitted operating in Newark since last November, according to the police. The men arrested are Antone Wiest, 39 years old, of 620 Ferry Street; Joseph Ragusi, 22, of 2,982 Sixteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, and Dominick Neill, 27, of 1,184 Fifty-ninth Street, Brooklyn. Their arrest was brought about through the seizure of a man in a garage at Coney Island by the New York police, who found Wiest's telephone number in his pocket.

The information was forwarded to the Newark police, who kept a watch on Wiest's home. Late Thursday Neill drove up to the door. Wiest came out to greet him and the police seized both men. Wiest, the police say, tried to drop a piece of paper with ten license numbers on it, but was caught in the act.

SECURITY LEAGUE ON RADIO.

Patriotic and Anti-Radical Talks Planned in Winter Series.

A new radio series devoted to the principles and teaching of the National Security League, which will present noted speakers throughout the Winter over WOR, beginning on Jan. 19, was announced yesterday by General Robert Lee Bullard, the league's president. The presentations are scheduled to be given weekly at 8:15 o'clock on Saturday nights. General Bullard will be the first speaker, his subject being "Looking Ahead."

"The scope of the league broadcasts," said General Bullard yesterday, "is to teach the principles of patriotism, promote the study of the Constitution, oppose extreme radicalism and to advocate an adequate national defense."

A meeting of the Radio Club of America is to be held Wednesday night in Room 309, Havemeyer Hall, Columbia University. Henry Hallberg, communications engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, will read a paper on "Seasonal Variations in Short-Wave Transmission."

MERGER IS APPROVED BY R. C. A. AND VICTOR

shares of new no-par common stock, subject to the approval of stockholders, of which 5,477,000 shares will be exchanged for present common stock at the rate of five new shares for each present share. In addition, an issue of about 813,000 shares of no-par $5 preferred stock, callable at $100, will be created, junior to the $19,780,000 of 7 per cent "A" preferred stock now outstanding.

The 813,000 Victor common shares under the merger plan will receive 813,000 new Radio common and 813,000 new Radio $5 preferred shares, together with about $4,065,000 in cash. Regular dividends at the annual rate of $4 a share are to be paid on Victor common shares up to the date from which dividends on the new Radio "B" preferred shares, at the rate of $5 annually, will accrue.

All Victor Preferred to Be Called.

Both classes of Victor preferred stock are to be retired. The outstanding $19,561,000 of 7 per cent. prior preference stock will be called for redemption at $115 a share. Substantially all of the $6 convertible preferred stock has already been retired through exchange into common stock, and such stocks as is not so converted prior to the operation of the plan will be redeemed at $110 a share.

The action taken yesterday by the directors of the two companies brought to successful conclusion negotiations of ten months, in which Speyer & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co. represented the Victor Company and David Sarnoff the Radio Corporation of America. Colonel Grayson M.-P. Murphy took an active part in the negotiations.

At yesterday's closing prices on the New York Stock Exchange the market values of the stocks of the two companies aggregated $626,540,000, as follows:

Stock.	Outstanding.	Market Value.
Radio, com.	1,153,400 sh.	$455,393,000
Do pf	$19,779,570	22,540,000
Victor, com.	813,000 sh.*	125,280,000
Do non-cum pf	$6,000	6,900
Do cum pf	$20,000,000	22,40,000

*Allowing for conversion of outstanding 6% no par cumulative preferred.

†Approximately, including stock purchased through sinking fund.

Neither company has any funded debt.

Steps to "Serve a Single Art."

David Sarnoff, executive vice president of the Radio Corporation, said that the agreement marked "the alliance of two industries to the greater service of a single art."

"It is clear that in the new era of electrical entertainment now expressed in broadcasting, in talking motion pictures and in theatre installations, radio and the phonograph play distinct but complementary parts," Mr. Sarnoff declared. "The permanent success of both industries is dependent upon the future development of electrical entertainment in the home and in the theatre. The technique of the electrical laboratory has been translated into new systems of sound recording and sound reproduction adopted by the phonograph industry. The acoustical achievements of the phonograph industry have already been incorporated in radio loud speakers.

"It was evident that in the reproduction of music and other forms of entertainment for the home the modern phonograph has contributed and will continue to contribute a wide range of programs of music and speech, made possible by its service of permanent recording. Radio, on the other hand, must remain a universal service, devoted primarily to current musical, educational and news events. The present unification will greatly improve both services by making the inventions and developments of both industries interchangeable."

Mr. Shumaker, president of the Victor company, said yesterday:

"The importance of the Camden plant will be all the greater in view of the wider program of manufacturing activities which it is planned to inaugurate.

At the time of the recapitalization of the Victor company, in January, 1927, the bankers acquired the holdings of E. R. Johnson, founder of the company and sold $16,500,000 of the 7 per cent prior preference stock at $98 a share and 95,000 shares of $6 convertible preferred stock at $90 a share. The 7 per cent issue is to be called at $115, while the $6 stock now is valued above $300 a share. Its redemption price is $110.

Transactions were large in Radio and the Victor stocks yesterday, as well as in Radio-Keith-Orpheum, in which the Radio Corporation has a substantial interest. Price ranges were as follows:

Stock.	Sales.	High.	Low.	Last.	Gain.
Radio	26,900	39¾	38¾	39¾	#3
Do pf	2,000	57	56¼	57	¾

Do 7% pf	1,000	112	111¾	112	¾
Radio-K-O	119,700	46¾	41	46	2¼

R. C. A. FORMS SUBSIDIARY.

Communications Concern Organized as Delaware Corporation.

R. C. A. Communications, Inc., has been incorporated in Delaware by the United States Corporation Company, with a capitalization of 250,000 no par shares of common stock, "for the transmission of messages by electro-magnetic waves." The United States Corporation Company acted on behalf of the Radio Corporation of America, directors of which decided at their last meeting in December to create a separate subsidiary company to handle all the communications business of the corporation.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Movement of Stock Exchange Prices—Call Money 6%, Time Unchanged.

In another day of large transactions, the stock market moved uncertainly yesterday; declining further at the start, then recovering most or all the early losses, then drifting into great irregularity. In the more active speculative shares the pressure of realizing sales continued heavy, and the majority of them closed at net declines, after falling 3 to 6 points in the early trading. But the market's course was entirely confused, and the mixture of net advances and net declines at the end gave no indication of a general trend. The bond market, though also showing much irregularity, moved upward again on the average, as it has done on every day since the new year began.

Call money declined to 6 per cent, having now been reduced on each of the three business days in January. A good deal of interest will be taken next week in the question whether it will get to a lower rate. It did so after the 10 per cent rate in the first week of last July, but 6 has been the lowest figure reached by it since the opening days of August. It has been rather usually the case in other years that call money reached its lowest in the first full week of January, often advancing gradually afterward. Time money rates showed no sign of relaxation yesterday.

The reaction in sterling seemed to have spent itself; it did not touch the low rate of the week again yesterday, and at one time had recovered ¼ cent from Thursday's $4.84⅝. This was in spite of a slightly lower discount rate at London. But the day's gold withdrawal from the Bank of England was negligible, and the weekly statement of the German Reichsbank showed that the buying of foreign gold for that institution had come at least temporarily to a halt.

No fresh light on the business situation was to be expected from the week-end mercantile trade reviews; for the "Christmas trade" is over, "inventory taking" has begun in the industries, and the dull midwinter season is upon us. Mostly the present surveys are highly cheerful, though remarking that "there is prudent disinclination to anticipate results very far ahead." On the whole, stress seems to be laid upon the fact that the steel industry seems to have acquired a pace of its own, which does not reflect or indicate the course of events in other industries.

Compilations of bank checks drawn in the United States during December and in the whole year 1928 present the expected picture. Both month and year run far beyond the highest previous record, December running 16¾ per cent above the same month in 1927 and 5⅝ per cent above the largest previous month, last May. The year's bank exchanges exceed 1927 by 14¼ per cent. But these remarkable comparisons are made possible only through the enormously increased payments involved in the Stock Exchange speculation of 1928. In December alone value of checks exchanged at New York City increased nearly 23 per cent over 1927, whereas in the rest of the country the gain was only 5½ per cent.

Rosoff Gives Order for New Equipment After Tour of Railroad He Purchased.

Samuel R. Rosoff, subway contractor and one of the purchasers of the Delaware & Northern Railroad, running between East Branch and Arkville, returned to New York yesterday from a tour of inspection of the line with the chief engineer, Arthur Diamant, and counsel, Bernard H. Sandler. The trip resulted in an order from Mr. Rosoff, Mr. Sandler said, for the immediate purchase of new engines and remodeling of stations at a cost of about $100,000. The road had been in receivership.

At Margaretsville, where Mr. Rosoff ten years ago laid a State road, he received an enthusiastic reception by residents, who appeared happy at the change in ownership and plans for improvement. The line recently has been operating only one train daily each way by gasoline engine, and Mr. Rosoff's order for new equipment, Mr. Sandler said, was taken to mean the line would make a bid for passenger traffic with a more satisfactory schedule and better accommodations.

The report that the new owners would seek to tap the Pennsylvania coal field trade appeared to have arisen from Mr. Rosoff's discussion of a plan to extend the fifty-mile line for twelve miles to Hancock, N. Y., to connect with the Erie, Mr. Sandler said. Mr. Rosoff said Thursday the price paid was "about $1,000,000," and he considered the purchase a "good speculation." He is not the sole buyer, as was at first reported, but has associated with him in ownership Bernard K. Marcus, president of the Bank of United States; C. Stanley Mitchell, chairman of the board of that institution; Jerry Maguire of the Maguire Rubber Company, and John O'Brien of the Biltmore Hotel Corporation.

Equipment Orders Few.

Locomotive orders in 1928 totaled 738, the fewest since 1901, compared with 846 in 1927, 1,542 in 1926 and 820 in 1921, according to Railway Age. Freight car orders totaled 62,631, against 74,785 in 1927 and 28,358 in 1921, the poorest year for freight car purchasing since 1901. Passenger cars ordered totaled 2,293, against 1,803 in 1927 and 2,162 in 1926.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

After a brief reaction at the opening, which Wall Street ascribed to the large increase in brokers' loans announced the afternoon before, the market resumed the advance for a time yesterday morning and gave a demonstration of strength that surprised the trading fraternity. Only part of the list on the Stock Exchange participated in the recovery, however, but interest seemed to be centered in those groups which found the path of least resistance upward. Some selling came into the market in the early afternoon, with the result that the advance was halted, although several of the "trading favorites" continued to move forward. Some stocks were pressed on the market in large blocks in the last hour. The declines in the late trading, however, were obscured to a large extent by a handful of violent advances.

The Speculative Attitude.

"Safe stocks," in which speculators are supposed to be least likely to be "hurt" in the event of a violent break, do not appeal to the average run of speculators at the present time, judging by one broker's experience. He had an idea that his customers would appreciate a selected list of stocks which, by their record, could be depended upon to resist any aggressive selling movement. The list went out, but there was little if any response. Traders seeking advice showed no interest when the list was exhibited. They were aroused only when the "fast steppers" were suggested. This broker has come to the conclusion that traders in their present mood will not touch a stock unless it "promises fireworks," and that is on the whole the general commission-house view.

Radio-Victor Merger.

The completion of negotiations for the merger of the Radio Corporation of America and the Victor Talking Machine Company, which awaits only the action of stockholders for its consummation, definitely marks the association of the Radio Corporation with the varied fields now generally known as the "amusement industry," which in the last few years has grown to represent one of the greatest industries in the United States, both from the standpoint of capital investment and that of yearly earnings. The major activity of the Radio Corporation at all times has been the distribution of radio equipment, and the incorporation of its new communications subsidiary, now in the forming, marks a further concentration of its principal activity.

Money Grows Easier.

Money has come to New York from outside sources much faster and in greater volume than the banks here have withdrawn funds from the market, and that was the chief explanation given yesterday for the ease in loan rates. At the year-end the New York banks lent exceptionally large amounts to offset the out-of-town withdrawals, this being reflected in the increase of more than $400,000,000 in brokers' loans made by the New York banks for their own account. It had been expected that immediately after the first of the year the banks here would begin to pull funds out of the market and that money would come here from out of town in large quantities. Apparently, however, the high rates proved to be too great an attraction for the banks here to resist. It was said, however, that the banks' indebtedness to the Reserve Bank was too large to permit continuation of the present situation for any great length of time.

Expectations.

Wall Street used to think in terms of 3 and 4 point advances, and a 10-point swing in any stock used to be considered a very good one; sufficient, in fact, to make the average market trader search about for a selling blank. That day appears to have passed. The talk which was heard in brokerage offices last week was of possible 100, 200 and 300 point advances. A trader with a neat 64 points profit on a volatile issue was advised yesterday by his broker to take his profit, on the broker's theory that the market will be here a long while and that the chances of getting the stock back cheaper outweighed the possibilities in letting the stock ride. His suggestion was greeted with a snort of disapproval by the customer. "Only 64 points profit!" he exclaimed. "Why, I expect to make at least 200 points on that stock before selling it."

The Public Coming In.

Wall Street yesterday found several evidences in addition to the rapidly expanding brokers' loans, that the public once more is taking a vital interest in the stock market. One was the attendance in brokerage offices. This fell to a minimum after the early December crash, but started to pick up again as soon as the market showed signs of recovery. Now a trip through the Wall Street district discloses that the brokerage houses are about as full of customers as they were during the long up-swing which developed just before and immediately after the election. Some of these brokerage-house customers are entirely new to the speculative field; a few of them were fortunate enough to buy stocks on the December break and they find themselves with very good profits on their hands. Most of the day-to-day attendants, however, are those who were strong enough financially to ride out the storm and who have seen their stocks snap back with an astonishing resiliency.

MONEY.

Friday, Jan. 4, 1929.

Money continued in good supply and much in excess of demand resulting in a Stock Exchange rate of 6 per cent, lowest since Dec. 18, while outside trade was reported at 5½. Renewals were arranged at 8, followed by two cuts of 1 per cent until minimum was reached in early afternoon. Time money remained quiet, but easy at 7⅛@7¼ per cent for the long and short dates. There was an advance of ¼ on all acceptances from 60 days to six months, new high levels for this accommodation.

STOCKS LAST MONTH LOST $303,489,928

CHIEF DEPRECIATION IN OILS

Most Groups Highly Irregular—Figures for Year Show Total Gain of $8,091,206,872.

The most active market in the history of the New York Stock Exchange closed after one of the sharpest drops on record when on Dec. 6, 7 and 8 values of stocks tumbled without interruption for three days. A good part of the loss was made up by the end of the month, and in the last day of the year the market was again one of rising prices. Twelve per cent for call loans was the signal for selling, but after the reaction substantial reductions in collateral loans were reported for two successive weeks.

Values of 216 representative stocks listed on the Exchange, as compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES, depreciated $303,489,928 for December, that being the first month since June to show a loss. In November a record gain of $3,744,335,178 was established. In December, 1927, an increase of $511,494,511 was made.

The greatest loss last month was in the oil group, which depreciated $255,310,696. The largest gain in values was in mining and smelting shares, which increased $116,415,129. Most of the groups were irregular, some issues showing sharp declines and others sharp advances.

Principal Changes.

Outstanding in the list for December were the changes in points for the following: Schulte Stores, off 14½ points; Texas & Pacific, 10; United States Steel, 6¼, and Ludlum Steel, 11½ points. Those with large gains included Abraham & Straus, up 30% points; National Bellas Hess, 40½; Greene-Cananea Copper, 12¼; Atlantic Refining new common, 15½; Chesapeake & Ohio, 13%; Goodyear Tire & Rubber, 32%; B. F. Goodrich, 17½, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, 16 points.

There were four months last year—January, February, June and December—when decreases in the market values of shares used in this compilation were recorded; in the other months increases were shown, and in the months following June gains were made until the setback in December. The leading groups of the year in market appreciation were public utilities, up 753¼ points for twenty-nine issues with a gain of $1,780,286,706; railroads, up 281½ points for 35 issues, $547,791,377; railroad equipment, up 2% points for eight issues, $2,510,465; rubber, up 66¼ points for ten issues, $20,812,240; steels, up 241¼ points for 13 issues, $238,019,770; sugars, up 15½ points for nine issues, $10,344,922, and tobaccos, up 33¾ points for 14 issues, $80,249,880. The combined increase was $8,091,206,872.

Chelsea Bank Plans Stock Split.

Directors of the Chelsea Exchange Bank have voted to recommend to stockholders at a special meeting to be held Jan. 8 that the stock of the bank be split four for one and the par value be decreased from $100 to $25. Approval was also given for a plan to place the stock on a $2.50 annual dividend basis after the split-up, equal to 10 per cent on the present stock, against 8 per cent heretofore paid.

JONASES ACQUIRE FOURTEENTH BANK

Manufacturers Trust Finishes Negotiations for Absorption of State Bank.

PLANS CAPITAL INCREASE

Directors of the Interstate Expected to Vote to Join Consolidation Next Week.

The Manufacturers Trust Company has completed negotiations for its fourteenth merger, the acquisition of the State Bank and Trust Company, resulting in an institution having deposits of approximately $375,000,000 and resources of more than $450,000,000. Announcement of the completion of the negotiations was made yesterday by Nathan S. Jonas, president of the Manufacturers, and Harold C. Richard, president of the State Bank and Trust. The consolidation will be put into effect as soon as the legal details can be carried out.

Before the merger becomes effective, the capital of the Manufacturers Trust will be increased by $5,000,000 through the issuance of 200,000 shares of new $25 par value stock, which will be offered to stockholders of record Jan. 14 at $150 a share in the ratio of one new share for each three and a half shares owned on that date. Thereafter, to consummate the merger, the capital of the Manufacturers will be further increased by $5,000,000 through the issuance of 200,000 shares of new $25 par stock, which will be exchanged for stock of the State Bank and Trust Company on the basis of four shares of Manufacturers $25 par value for one share of State Bank and Trust $100 par value stock.

The negotiations looking to a merger of the Manufacturers and the Interstate Trust Company, of which former Governor George S. Silzer is president, have been progressing satisfactorily, and it is expected that the directors of these two institutions will meet next week to complete the plans for this consolidation.

Under the plans agreed upon yesterday by the Manufacturers and the State Bank and Trust, the enlarged institution will be operated as the Manufacturers Trust Company, which will then rank as the eighth largest banking institution in the city. Mr. Jonas will continue as president and Harry C. Von Elm as chairman of the executive committee. Mr. Richard will become chairman of the finance committee and a director, and James H. Conroy will continue as executive vice president. The negotiations on the part of the Manufacturers were conducted by Ralph Jonas, chairman of the board of the Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation, and for the State Bank and Trust by Mr. Richard.

The new institution will operate forty-seven offices, located in various parts of Greater New York. No changes in personnel are contemplated at this time.

The Manufacturers has been a leader in unit banking and was developed largely through a long series of mergers. It was founded by Nathan Jonas, who has been its only president. The State Bank and Trust Company was organized in 1890 by Oscar L. Richard, the father of the present president; Jacob H. Schiff and several other financiers. Beginning with a capital of only $100,000, its latest statement shows capital, surplus and undivided profits of $12,500,000, and the bank built up more than $100,000,000 of deposits without the benefit of any mergers.

BROOKLYN MERGER APPROVED.

Boards of Brooklyn Trust and Mechanics Bank Adopt Plan.

Trustees of the Brooklyn Trust Company, of which George V. McLaughlin, former Police Commissioner of New York City, is president, and directors of the Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn approved yesterday attorneys' plan to merge the two institutions under the trust company's charter. The consolidation, which has been in process of negotiation for the last week, will bring together institutions having aggregate resources of approximately $155,000,000 and operating seventeen branch offices in Brooklyn.

A joint statement issued by Mr. McLaughlin and Harry M. De Mott, president of the Mechanics Bank, said the merger provides for increasing the Brooklyn Trust Company's capital from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000, new shares being offered to stockholders at $400 a share. When this is completed each institution will have $4,000,000 of outstanding stock. Two Mechanics Bank shares of $50 par value will be exchanged for one Brooklyn Trust Company share of $100 par value.

Mr. De Mott will become vice chairman of the board of the Brooklyn Trust Company, and business will be continued at the main offices and branches of both institutions with the same personnel as at present. The merged banks will have a combined capital and surplus of more than $30,000,000. The merger plans will be submitted to stockholders for ratification about Jan. 25.

Stocks of both the institutions have risen sharply as a result of the merger negotiations. Brooklyn Trust was quoted in the unlisted securities market yesterday at $1,450 bid and Mechanics at $590 bid.

REDFIELD TO HEAD NEW NATIONAL BANK

Former Secretary of Commerce to Be President, E. Celler, Chairman, of Brooklyn Institution.

William C. Redfield, who was Secretary of Commerce in the Wilson Cabinet, was reported yesterday to be slated for the presidency of the new Brooklyn National Bank of New York, which is now being organized under authority granted several weeks ago by the Controller of the Currency.

Directors of the new institution have not yet met for the purpose of selecting officers and completing organization, but it was said unofficially yesterday that Mr. Redfield probably would be chosen president and that Representative Emanuel Celler, who has been one of the leaders in the organization work, would be chairman of the board of directors.

The bank, which will be located in the Borough Hall section of Brooklyn, will start with capital of $1,000,000 and surplus of $1,000,000, the largest amount of initial capital funds of any bank ever organized in Brooklyn. It was said yesterday that stock in the new bank had already been oversubscribed, and that it was planned to open for business early this year.

Mr. Redfield has long been recognized as an authority on economic subjects, particularly on foreign trade. He was born in Albany in 1858 and was associated for many years with the J. H. Williams Company in Brooklyn. He was Commissioner of Public Works for Brooklyn in 1902-03, and served a term in Congress before becoming a Cabinet member in 1913. After leaving Washington in 1919 he became president of the American Manufacturers' Export Association. He has also had other commercial connections, and for the past two years he has been associated with the investment banking firm of Redmond & Co.

The tentative list of directors of the new bank includes, besides Mr. Redfield and Mr. Celler, the following: James Butler, operating manager, Furness-Bermuda Line and Trinidad Line; Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Byrne, Congressman William W. Cohen; George Dressler, president of the Wallabout Basin Storage and Terminal Company; Supreme Court Justice Alfred Frankenthaler, William F. Kenny, president of the William F Kenny Company, contractors; I. Jerome Riker, president of Riker & Co.; Elmer A. Sperry Jr., director and engineer, Sperry Gyroscope Company; Nathan Strauss, president of Nathan Strauss, Inc., chain meat store operators, and several others.

ACCEPTANCE RATES RAISED 1-4 OF 1 P. C.

Increase in Rediscounting Is Expected to Follow, With More Commercial Paper.

CALL LOANS AT 6 PER CENT

Money Easier as Funds Flow In From Out of Town and Corporations—Banks Here Withdraw Little.

A general advance of one-quarter of 1 per cent in the yield rates on bankers' acceptances was announced yesterday. The action had been foreshadowed by the announcement by the Federal Reserve Bank on Thursday that it was readjusting its buying rate for these bills.

Only the thirty-day acceptances were left undisturbed by yesterday's changes, these remaining at 4¾@4½ per cent. The new schedule of rates now is: Sixty and ninety days, 5@4¾ per cent; 120 days, 5⅛@4⅞ per cent; five and six months, 5⅛@5 per cent. It was announced also that the American Acceptance Council had abandoned, at least for the time being, the custom of quoting rates on call loans against acceptances. Confused conditions had developed in this connection as a result of the wide fluctuations in money rates. Although call loans against acceptances have been nominally quoted at 7 per cent, it was reported that dealers had been making individual arrangements with their banks at which rates ranging all the way from 5½ to 8 per cent were being paid.

One of the effects of the readjustment in the acceptance market is expected to be an increase in rediscounting, as it will swing business into commercial paper, which is directly rediscountable at the Federal Reserve Bank. With the Federal Reserve Bank less inclined to buy bills in the open market, the financial community is waiting with interest to see the extent to which the private banks will buy and hold acceptances. Larger purchases by the banks have been urged by leaders in the acceptance market for some time.

While the rates on acceptances were being moved up, a lower range of call and time loan rates was brought about yesterday by a heavy flow of funds from out-of-town sources and from corporations which place their liquid surpluses out on call. The demand loan rate declined to 6 per cent, with outside accommodation available at 5½ per cent. This was a continuation of the case that has been developing most of this week, and the closing rate compared with 12 per cent last Monday.

Bankers said that the decline in the call loan rate was somewhat more extensive than had been expected and was caused by New York banks withdrawing funds more slowly than had been forecast. At the turn of the year large amounts of money were called in by out-of-town banks, and the institutions here supplied the deficiency, an increase of more than $400,000,000 having been reported this week in brokers' loans made by New York banks for their own account. Funds now are being returned from out of town, while the New York banks have not yet withdrawn from the loan market on any great scale.

NATIONAL BANKS GET CALL.

Controller Asks for Statements of Condition as of Dec. 31.

The Controller of the Currency issued yesterday a call for the condition of national banks as of Dec. 31. The call had been expected around the last of the year. Since most of the large New York institutions always cast up their accounts as of Dec. 31 for annual reports, the call will not entail any extra effort. The last national bank call was early in October.

Most of the large national banks of New York will publish their statements of condition early next week. The State banks and trust companies, which received their call last week, have already published their statements and have shown large growth in resources in the last three months.

It was also announced yesterday that the Controller of the Currency had approved the organization of the Broadway National Bank of New York, with capital of $2,000,000.

Banks Get Christmas Gold Back.

The greater part of the gold coin withdrawn from the banks before Christmas has been redeposited, most of it by persons who received it in the form of gifts, John J. Pulleyn, president of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, said yesterday that gold apparently was little desired for spending purposes. About $30,000 in gold was withdrawn from that bank before Christmas and since then more than that amount has found its way back. There has been a similar rush to redeposit gold in other institutions.

BANK CLEARINGS RISE 9.7% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Week's Total of $13,832,645,000 Represents 5 Days, of Which 2 Were in New Year.

Bank clearings this week at all leading cities in the United States totaled $13,832,645,000, an increase of 9.7 per cent over those of the corresponding week a year ago. At New York City, clearings of $9,853,000,000 exceed those of a year ago by 14.2 per cent, while the total for leading centres outside of New York of $3,979,645,000 is 0.1 of 1 per cent larger than last year's.

Again the week in both years includes only five business days. Furthermore, in the week this year there are only two of the first business days of the new year, when settlements through the banks incident to accounts maturing at that time always swell bank clearings enormously, whereas a year ago the week included three such days. At New York City, bank clearings for the first business day of the new year established a new high record, the amount for the day exceeding by one-fifth the previous high record, which was for one of the early days last December.

Of the cities outside New York, fifteen of twenty-three reporting show larger bank clearings this year than a year ago, with substantial gains at Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Omaha, Atlanta, Los Angeles and Seattle.

Figures for this week, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., and average daily bank clearings for the past year, are compared herewith:

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

British Exchange Is Steady, With Strength in Leading Industrial Shares.

LONDON MONEY IS EASIER

Paris Remains Firm Despite Some Irregularity—Berlin Shows a Depressed Tendency.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The stock markets showed a firm tone today. The industrial market, under American influence, had a strong appearance. Sharp rises took place in Mond Nickel, General Electric and Ford shares. Courtaulds, Imperial Tobacco and Margarine shares were all strong.

General Electric shares opened at 50s but with the entry of New York into the bidding they were carried rapidly to 65s and afterwards changed hands at 67s 6d. Then there was a reaction to 57s 6d or less. Ford shares touched a £2 7-16 premium in the morning but renewed American bidding sent them to a £3 1-16 premium.

Courtauld shares showed a net rise of 5-32. Oil shares were quiet and there was but little business in rubber shares. French influences were again favorable to South African shares. De Beers advanced 1-16 and Rand Mines 1-32.

Easy monetary conditions prevailed on Lombard Street and fresh accommodation was available down to 2½ per cent. The discount market displayed a firm tendency. A satisfactory feature was the recovery of the New York Exchange to 4.85 7-32.

Paris Bourse Uneasy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Despite some irregularities the Bourse was fundamentally firm today. French domestic securities were affected to some extent by the uneasiness over the political situation in view of the general debate at the reopening of Parliament next week.

Trading was active, however, in international stocks and some closed at the day's highest quotations, including Suez, Credit Foncier, Mexican copper and gold mine shares. In the final hour there was a tendency to recovery even among domestic stocks.

Among rentes, 3s closed at 67.60; 1917 4s, 82.25; 1918 4s, 82.05; 1915 5s, 95.90; 1920 amortizable 5s, 110.90; 1928 5s, 92.40, and 6s, 101.55.

Berlin Closes Hesitant.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Depressed by reports of the proposed Prussian loans, the increase in the number of unemployed and the decrease in the Ruhr coal sales, the Boerse opened weak again today. The markets were further unfavorably influenced by the large American sales offers, by apprehension of an increase in the New York discount rate and by the pessimistic reports of the Prussian Chamber of Commerce published today.

Prices in the first hour generally dropped 2 to 3 points, with such favorites as electro values, dye trust and potash shares going down even 5 to 6 points.

Intervention by the large banks, which bought electros extensively, stabilized the situation somewhat, but the gains were only partly maintained and the tendency at the closing hour was not confident. Call money was plentiful at 5 to 7.

$11,093,318 SOUGHT BY MUNICIPALITIES

Forty-five Bond Issues Listed for Award Next Week—Chief One for Baltimore.

DISTRIBUTION PROCEEDING

New Securities Moving Out More Rapidly Than Old Ones—Little Change Made in Prices.

The total of new municipal bond issues to be placed on the market next week by forty-five communities in various parts of the country will reach $11,093,318, compared with this week's aggregate of $8,253,912, which also represented financing by forty-five municipalities. All of next week's issues, with a single exception, will be for less than $1,000,000 each.

The $3,955,000 City of Baltimore 4 per cent harbor bonds will be awarded on Thursday. Inasmuch as this issue, which will mature serially on Oct. 1, 1933 to 1967, can be sold at a discount, the low interest rate of 4 per cent is no bar to the sale. The next largest issue for next week is that of $652,303 Cuyahoga County (Ohio) bonds, which will be awarded on Saturday.

Considerable difference of opinion exists among municipal bond dealers concerning the immediate outlook for the market. While some houses are not bidding on new issues, others are taking advantage of the lack of interest to obtain new bonds at fairly attractive prices. One house this week headed syndicates which placed four municipal issues on the market in one day. It was said yesterday that a large percentage of these issues had been sold. Several large issues, hangovers from December, were reduced materially this week. The amount of new bonds coming into the market was not large enough to interfere with the sales of older bonds.

Prices Little Changed.

Prices have been changed little this week. The dropping of prices to the extent of five-one hundredths in yield during the last fortnight has not resulted in the expected increase in the demand and the practice seems to have been halted for the moment. A few issues which have been on the lists of certain dealers for nearly six months have been reduced little from week to week, as most of the current demand centres in the newer offerings.

Now that the recession of prices has left several issues voted at the November elections too high for current sale, it is possible that the market will be enabled to catch up before a flood of Spring financing is loosed. Usually an effort is made to get all of the major pieces of municipal financing out of the way before the dull period of Summer.

Almost all the issues offered this week were well received, but none was particularly large. Most of the issues awarded in the latter half of December have reached the market, so that the public offering of new issues will be in direct proportion to new financing decided on by municipalities. There is no evidence of offering of "distressed" bonds at this time, although a few issues put away in investment accounts early in 1928 have appeared in the market in the last few days in varying amounts.

Principal Sources of Buying.

Insurance companies and institutions continue to be the principal buyers of municipals, seeking to take advantage of the present relatively easy prices which may or may not continue through the balance of the Winter. Large investors are interested only occasionally, and out of town banks are not increasing their holdings of municipals to any extent. Many of the injuries received from such sources indicate tentative bids too far under the current market to be of interest here.

The average holdings of dealers are not considered large for this time of year, and on the whole lists are fairly well diversified. Certainly they are diversified geographically as to issues if not as to range of maturities. The extremely short and the extremely long maturities are less favored than the middle maturities at present.

Very few interdealer trading is manifest and bonds once purchased by a syndicate usually remain with that syndicate until disposed of at retail instead of being sold in small lots to other dealers with a better market for them or traded for other bonds.

Newark Prepares to Borrow $9,000,000 or More on Bonds

The city of Newark plans to announce the offering of a new issue of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 of general improvement bonds before the end of the month. This will be its first financing since Dec. 8, 1927, when an issue of $8,775,000 4½s was sold at a price of 104.27, or a 3.88 per cent basis.

Six syndicates competed for the last issue of bonds, and it is expected that at least four will submit tenders for the new issue. Ordinances are being completed by the city authorities relative to the sale. The exact amount of bonds to be offered will be determined by the amount taken prior to the public sale, by the various city sinking funds.

LOUISIANA IS EXPECTED TO OFFER BONDS SOON

Bankers in New Orleans Look for $10,000,000 Issue as Part of Highway Financing.

The first instalment of the issue of $30,000,000 State of Louisiana road bonds voted at the November election may be issued in the near future, according to private advices received here yesterday. Although the State officials are empowered to market up to $15,000,000 of the bonds immediately, it is planned to call a special session of the State Legislature to consider the matter. There are several details to be approved finally regarding the sale, notably whether the principal and interest shall be payable from general State funds or from gasoline and motor vehicle taxes.

Bankers in New Orleans expect the initial offering will comprise $10,000,000 of road bonds, with the balance of the issue sold piecemeal as funds are needed for road construction. It is expected that the bonds will mature serially and that the interest rate will be adjusted to suit the level of the municipal market at the time of issue. In this relation it is recalled that the State of Iowa voted an issue of $100,000,000 road bonds at the last election, but specified a 4 per cent coupon. Since a much higher interest rate is necessary at this time if the State requirement for bids of not less than par is to be met the State cannot market its bonds. Either it must vote an issue carrying a higher coupon, or wait for an easing in money rates to permit the sale of 4s.

The State of Louisiana was only in the market once last year, and then with an issue of only $500,000. This issue, comprising 5s, due in 1932, was marketed in October. The previous large issue was that of $3,000,000 Port Commission 4½s, due from 1937 to 1977, awarded late in 1927 to a New York-New Orleans banking syndicate. The bonds were reoffered by the bankers at prices to yield 4.25 per cent. The present market for Louisiana bonds is a 4.30 per cent, basis for an issue of Port Commission 5s.

Convertibles Move Nervously—Pressure Develops on Bulk of the Foreign List.

Activity in bonds traded in on the Stock Exchange increased sharply yesterday, with sales totaling more than $11,000,000, but prices moved irregularly. Convertible issues fluctuated somewhat nervously in response to movements in the stock market, while the better public utilities were firm and pressure developed against the bulk of the foreign list.

Heavy trading took place in Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, which advanced to a new high record of 103⅝, but ran into selling and closed with a net loss of ⅛ of a point on the day. Abraham & Straus 5½s sold off more than 2 points, but Anaconda Copper 7s rallied after early depression and closed with a net gain of 2 points. Several other convertibles followed similarly irregular movements.

The railroad bonds also were irregular, with fractional gains in several of the Baltimore & Ohio issues, an advance of more than a point in St. Louis Southwestern first 5s and sharp advances in Seaboard Air Line issues, with declines elsewhere in the rail list.

$833,046,587 Realty Bonds Sold.

Financing through real estate mortgage bonds, collateral trust notes, debentures and land trust certificates for the year 1928, according to figures announced yesterday by S. W. Straus & Co., totaled $833,046,587 for 923 issues, compared with $783,242,375 for 1,077 issues in 1927. The increase in par value was about 6½ per cent.

Investment Trust Reports.

Investment Managers' Trust Fund A reports earnings, after management charges for 1928, as $2,069,361, or 14.26 per cent on the average of investment trust certificates outstanding during the year. This compares with 12.18 per cent in 1927 and 9.21 in 1926. Unrealized profits on securities owned on Dec. 31, 1928, amounted to an additional $1,380,229. After providing for regular distributions at the rate of 5 per cent on certificates outstanding and extra distributions at an average rate of 0.65 per cent, the aggregate net value for each 100 shares in the fund was $1,398.09 on Dec. 31, compared with $1,244.53 on Dec. 31, 1927.

$16,668,500 BONDS MARKETED IN WEEK

Volume of New Offerings Is Smallest Since Midsummer Because of Holidays.

MUNICIPAL ISSUES IN LEAD

Only Other Financing Done for Industrial—Easier Money to Stimulate Business.

New bond offerings in the week ended yesterday, totaling $16,668,500, were the smallest in amount since the week of Aug. 31, last, when midsummer dullness held the aggregate down to $9,927,000. This week's issues compared with 20,914,000 last week and 34,681,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
State and municipal	$9,668,500	$5,414,000
Industrial	7,000,000	7,500,000
Public utility	.....	14,000,000
Total	$16,668,500	$20,914,000

A broadening of activity in municipal financing was about the only feature of this week's bond flotations. This was the result, however, of the fact that several issues that had been awarded in Christmas week were held over for offering after the holidays. The offerings in this group included issues of the City of New Orleans, La.; the State of Mississippi, St. Paul, Minn.; Greensboro, N. C., and Eastchester, N. Y. Prices remained just about where they had been in the municipal market, with a fair degree of investment activity.

The only industrial financing of the week was done by the Munson Steamship Line, which brought out two issues, one of 4,500,000 of 6s and one of $2,500,000 of 6½s, both to mature in 1937. While there was no representation of public utility, foreign or railroad financing, activity was somewhat greater than the figures indicate, as several large real estate mortgage issues, which are not included in these compilations, were brought out, and good-sized stock issues also reached the market. The New Year's holiday was one of the main influences holding down the total this week.

The easier range of money rates now in force and the general resumption of financial activity are expected to cause an expansion in the volume of offerings next week.

BOND SALE PROPOSED BY TENNESSEE COPPER

Stockholders Asked to Authorize Offering of $3,000,000 or More to Themselves.

The directors of the Tennessee Copper and Chemical Company plan to sell from $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 of new 6 per cent convertible bonds pro rata to shareholders and will ask ratification at a stockholders' meeting called for Feb. 4. The total of the bonds which stockholders will be asked to authorize will be $5,000,000.

Proceeds of the issue would be utilized in retiring the present issue of convertibles, of which more than $400,000 have been exchanged for stock. Additional capital would also be supplied for improvements and equipment for expanding lines not highly competitive. The bonds remaining in the treasury would be issuable at the discretion of the directors, with conversion privileges to be determined at that time. The portion of the issue now to be sold would be convertible at $20 a share during the first year, $22 the second year and $24 the third year. The bonds will be underwritten.

Estimated earnings of the company in 1928, according to Adolph Lewisohn, president, were $1,200,000 after depreciation and bond interest, equal to $1.50 a share on 795,000 shares, against average earnings of $754,000 for the three previous years.

NEW STOCK OFFERINGS.

Earnings for 1928 are estimated at approximately $12 a share, or 50 per cent in excess of the $8 dividend.

Automatic Re-ordering Machine.

Awards and Announcements of Bonds Issued for Public Undertakings.

The City of Cleveland will be in the market shortly with a new issue of $8,300,000 improvement bonds, according to word received here last night. On Dec. 12 last it marketed an issue of $1,726,000 bonds, at a price of 100.011, or a 4.315 per cent basis. Twelve syndicates entered bids. Due to consolidations, the bidders for the new issue may be reduced to four or five.

Territory of Porto Rico.

Award of a new issue of $320,000 Porto Rican 4½ per cent bonds, due on Jan. 1, 1954, and callable on Jan. 1, 1939, was made yesterday to a syndicate consisting of Barr Brothers, Inc.; the Old Colony Corporation of Boston and the Fletcher-American Company of Indianapolis, Ind., at a price of 101.099. The award was made through the Bureau of Insular Affairs in Washington. Proceeds of the loan will be used in the construction of harbor improvements at San Juan. The bankers plan to offer the bonds at a price to yield 4.20 per cent.

Cranston, R. I.

A new issue of $600,000 Cranston, R. I., short-term notes, maturing on July 10, 1929, has been awarded to S. N. Bond & Co. of Boston at their bid of a discount of 5.37 per cent.

$60,000,000 BUDGET FOR PHONES HERE

New York Company to Use Two-thirds of $90,000,000 Total in 1929 for City.

DIAL EXTENSION PLANNED

Conversion to Be Complete in Manhattan by End of 1933—$7,500,000 Toll Line Program.

Expenditures of more than $90,000,000 in 1929, calling for the largest plant construction program in the history of the New York Telephone Company, are indicated in the provisional estimates for the year, it was announced yesterday by J. S. McCulloh, president. The proposed expenditures compare with nearly $71,000,000 expended in 1928. About two-thirds of the total, or $60,000,000, is to be spent in New York City, where 7,760,000 of New York State's 11,600,000 daily telephone calles originate.

"These expenditures," Mr. McCulloh said, "are planned to provide adequately in advance for the continued growth in the telephone requirements in the State of New York and that part of Connecticut served by this company. The estimates cover the necessary gross outlays in 1929 for land, buildings, switchboards, cable, and various other equipment which make up a telephone plant. For a number of years we have made provisional estimates of construction needs both for one year and five years, basing these on careful forecasts throughout the territory."

The estimated expenditures for land, buildings and central office equipment alone are $38,000,000 for 1929 and nearly $190,000,000 in five years. For these purposes, more than $26,000,000 in 1929 and $140,000,000 in five years will be applied in New York City, where the plans include further replacement of manual switchboards by dial equipment. By the close of 1933 it is expected that this conversion will be practically complete in Manhattan, and that two-thirds of the phones in Brooklyn and more than one-third of those in the Bronx will be served from dial central offices.

In New York City suburban sections, comprising Westchester and Rockland Counties to the north and Nassau and Suffolk Counties in Long Island, it is estimated that about $4,500,000 in 1929 and $22,250,000 for the five-year period will be required. Besides providing for growth, the program over the longer period contemplates switchboard improvements in approximately forty-five communities.

An extensive toll line construction program, including several joint projects with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, involves expenditures by the New York Telephone Company of $7,500,000 in 1929 and $30,000,000 in the five-year period. By the end of 1933, more than 95 per cent of all the company's telephones, as compared with 90 per cent at present, will be connected with the toll cable system, which, with storm-proof cable and other improvements, is designed to provide increased dependability and speed in toll and long distance service.

GAS MERGER UNDER WAY.

New Company to Combine Inland and Kentucky Fuel.

Organization of the American Fuel and Power Corporation as a holding company to acquire a controlling interest in the Inland Gas Corporation and Kentucky Fuel Gas Corporation was announced yesterday. The two corporations to be acquired are among the largest natural gas producing companies east of the Mississippi River. Officers of the new corporation are H. C. Zwetsch, chairman; W. E. Lockhart, president; A. H. Grayburn, vice president and D. W. Collins, secretary.

Members of Stock Exchange To Wear Identification Badges

Each member of the New York Stock Exchange will wear hereafter, when on the floor, a badge of identification, upon which will be inscribed his name and the annunciator or call number and the name of the firm of clearing firm with which he has connections.

The committee of arrangements, it was announced, has approved such a badge and has requested that each member wear one to prevent confusion and errors. It also has requested specialists to wear buttons showing the names of the stocks in which they specialize, in addition to the identification badge.

Many errors, some of them costly, are traceable, it is said, to the lack of a special form of identification for members.

STOCK SPLIT-UP PROPOSED.

Columbia Gas and Electric Desires Wider Distribution of Shares.

The directors of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation yesterday recommended that the stockholders on April 4 ratify proposals to increase the common stock from 3,372,695 to 8,431,738 shares and to distribute the additional stock to shareholders on the basis of two and one-half shares for each present share. A statement from the company said it was believed such action would give the stock a wider distribution, as it would place the market value of the shares within reach of the small investor. The corporation's gross earnings now exceed $106,000,000 a year, while total assets are in excess of $613,000,000.

At the same meeting, the number of directors of the corporation was increased from fifteen to nineteen. Those elected to fill the new directorships were Harry J. Crawford, Emlenton, Pa.; Charles A. Munroe, Chicago; Thomas W. Phillips Jr., Butler, Pa., and William C. Potter, New York. The board also declared quarterly dividends on the preferred and common stocks.

PHILLIPS TAKES OVER TWO TRACTION LINES

New Boards Assume Control of United and Schenectady Companies, Bought From D. & H.

Headed by Ellis L. Phillips, public utility operator, new boards of directors assumed control yesterday of the United Traction Company and the Schenectady Railway Company, which properties were acquired by Mr. Phillips from the Delaware & Hudson Company. These holdings and those of the New York State Railways are too far apart to be merged physically, but it was considered likely that a new holding company would be formed to control the three traction properties. They will, however, continue to be operated as at present without changes in local managements.

Mr. Phillips acquired the New York State Railways and the Mohawk Valley Company from the New York Central last Summer. It was then said that he desired the electric and gas properties of the latter company and that to obtain them he also bought the railways. Having acquired the car lines, Mr. Phillips has made it clear that he intends to develop them. He is now the outstanding traction operator between New York and Buffalo.

When Mr. Phillips acquired the New York State Railways he thereby acquired a half-interest in the Schenectady Railway. In acquiring the other half-interest from the D. & H., Mr. Phillips took the step of acquiring all the D. & H. utilities in active operation. He also bought properties of the Northern Development Company, a D. & H. organization used by the utilities. The Hudson Valley Railroad, another D. & H. property, is in process of dismantling and liquidation and was not sold. This means that the D. & H. is completely finished with utility operation.

The disposal of properties foreign to railroad operation by the D. & H. will not involve its iron mines at the present time. These were opened at the beginning of the year after being closed since last Spring. However, the disposal of its Adirondack hotels would be in line with the company's present policies.

SEEKS MEXICAN UTILITY.

American and Foreign Power Offers to Buy British-Owned Concern.

The American and Foreign Power Company has made an offer of $125 a share for the 100,000 outstanding shares of $100 par value of the Northern Mexico Power and Development Company, Ltd., or an aggregate of $12,500,000. The offer is conditional upon the deposit of 65 per cent of the Northern Mexico stock for transfer by February, 1929.

Concessions have been granted by the Government of Mexico for the development and utilization of the water power of the Rio Conchos in the State of Chihuahua and to supply electric energy to cities, towns and mining districts in that State. The company also has a concession to construct and operate steam or electric railways in the district of Camargo, Chihuahua. A number of sites have been developed and put into operation. The Northern Mexico Power and Development Company, Ltd., is now owned by English and Canadian interests, with the head office in Toronto, Canada.

GROUP POLICY TOTAL PUT AT $8,000,000,000

Survey Shows 1928, With About $1,500,000,000 New Insurance, Was Biggest Year.

The greatest expansion in the volume of group insurance since its introduction in 1911 took place in the past year, according to William J. Graham, second vice president in charge of group insurance for the Equitable Life Assurance Society. More group insurance was placed in 1928, he said, than in any previous single year.

"It is estimated," Mr. Graham declared, "that approximately $1,500,000,000 of new group insurance has been purchased during the last twelve months for more than 1,000,000 American workers. This means that there is now in force in the United States approximately $8,000,000,000 of group protection, which is considerably more than was invested in all kinds of life insurance in the United States as recently as the close of 1901.

"The prospects for 1929 are for a new high record based not only on the growing popularity of group life insurance, but also of group disability insurance covering disability resulting in temporary loss of wages, and of group pension insurance covering superannuation and total permanent disability."

STORE CHAINS TO MERGE.

Safeway Negotiating Deal With Piggly Wiggly Western States.

The Piggly Wiggly Western States Company is negotiating with the Safeway Stores, Inc., for a consolidation involving the transfer of all the assets and business of the former company, subject to its liabilities, to the Safeway system, it was learned yesterday.

According to bankers identified with the transaction, Safeway Stores, Inc., will issue shares of its common stock to the Piggly Wiggly Western States Company in an amount sufficient to enable the Piggly Wiggly Western States Company to distribute to its stockholders 1-5 of a share of Safeway common stock for each share of Class A stock outstanding, and 3-100 of a share of Safeway common for each share of Class B stock issued.

The acquisition of Piggly Wiggly Western States will bring more than 200 additional stores into the Safeway organization, which now operates 1,970 grocery stores and meat markets and will entail the issuance of 21,666 Safeway shares for the 85,000 Class A and 300,000 Class B Piggly Wiggly Western States outstanding. At yesterday's market price of about 193 a share for Safeway stock the transaction represents about $4,181,540 less the liabilities of Piggly Wiggly Western at the time of the merger.

Application has been made to the New York Stock Exchange for the listing of $101,250,000 of common stock of the Prairie Pipe Line Company. The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company has sent formal notices to stockholders saying the directors have fixed Jan. 31 as the day on which outstanding stock certificates for the present shares of $25 par value will be exchanged for the new shares of $10 par value each. Announcement of the change in capitalization was made on Dec. 6. Application has been made to list the new shares on the stock exchange, and it is expected that trading will begin on Jan. 31. BEVERAGE MERGER PLANNED

New Corporation Formed to Take Over Schultz and Two Others.

Formation of the American Beverage Corporation to consolidate a number of concerns in the soft drink industry is announced by E. V. McCullough, president of the Carl H. Schultz Corporation of New York. The newly formed company is to acquire all of the common stock and a majority of the preferred stocks of the Carl H. Schultz Corporation, Schoneberger & Noble, Inon, and the Brownie Corporation.

The consolidation may lead ultimately to the formation of a nation-wide chain of companies bottling complete lines of soft drinks. The new corporation, Mr. McCullough indicates, is now negotiating for the acquisition of several other beverage companies, and announcement of the taking over of additional concerns is expected at an early date.

Financing of the merger has been underwritten by Samuel Ungerleider & Co. and Hambleton & Co., Inc. It is understood that the bankers have taken options on a considerable amount of stock which will be issued in case the negotiations for acquisition of other bottling concerns are successfully concluded.

Manufacturing operations of the merged companies are to be combined in a new plant, which is now nearly completed, located in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

PRICES OF COTTON SET BACK $1 A BALE

Previous Advance Brings Out Large Supply of Contracts and Market Reacts.

EXPORT DEMAND REDUCED

Shipments Much Greater Than a Year Ago—Western Houses Selling Here.

The recovery above 20 cents in the price of cotton on Thursday increased the supply of contracts offered on the Cotton Exchange yesterday and prices were set back $1 a bale, ending with a loss of 19 to 30 points on the day. Covering operations of the previous day were not repeated, and although several rallies occurred in the course of the session, an easier tone in New Orleans attracted selling on differences to an extent that supplied all cotton wanted. Pressure on the new crop weakened distant positions, while spot interests sold January 6 points under March.

Exports for the week were 45,000 bales larger than last year, bringing the total for the season 914,000 bales ahead of shipments to Jan. 4 last year. The Department of Agriculture reported 1,830,000 bales below contract requirements out of the 12,561,000 ginned to Dec. 1.

Fluctuations yesterday were extremely irregular over a 20-point range and under a reduced vlume of business which compared with Thursday's active trading. The decline around 19¾ cents had attracted mill orders through houses with both domestic and foreign trade connections, but above the 20-cent level the market quieted down materially. While taking advantage of price recessions to obtain contracts on scale limits, trade interests have failed to continue active price fixing on advances.

During Thursday's covering movement New Orleans strengthened and led the local market, but it became evident soon after the opening yesterday that spot interests were putting out hedges on the Southern Exchange against purchases at the low basis prevailing at many Western points. The selling in New Orleans brought contracts to New York and permitted local operators to cover cotton sold during the sharp rally. Houses with Western connections sold in the last hour, which established lowest quotations of the day in final trading. Contracts for December delivery were for sale to an extent that weakened that month within a few points of October, and December showed a net loss of 30 points at the close.

MAY WHEAT DROPS TO 1924 LOW MARK

Market Fails to Develop Power to Rally and Close Is at the Bottom.

STOP LOSS ORDERS APPEAR

Corn Holds Within Narrow Limits and the Close Is Slightly Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Persistent liquidation of long wheat through commission houses carried prices off 1¾ to 1¾ cents today to a new low on the crop for all months, with May selling down to $1.16½, the lowest at which that delivery has sold since May, 1924. The market failed to show any rallying power of consequence and closed within a fraction of the bottom at net losses of 1¾ cents. Stop-loss orders were uncovered and sellers of daily and weekly bids were forced to protect themselves on the way down.

Winnipeg lost 1¾ to 1¾ cents for the day, while Liverpool was off 1¾ to 1¼c, and Buenos Aires was ¼ cent lower.

The break in futures led to a little export business at the seaboard, but quantities were not given, and with Argentine offering freely it is expected that the demand may remain relatively light for some time, especially for domestic wheat and rye.

Primary arrivals today, 749,000 bushels; week ago, 846,000 bushels; last year, 724,000 bushels. Shipments, 594,000 bushels; week ago, 485,000 bushels; last year, 481,000 bushels.

Corn held within narrow limits and while declining around ¼ cent with wheat at one time, practically recovered the loss later and finished at a net loss of only ¼ cent. Buenos Aires closed ¼ to 1 cent higher, with May 81¼ cents, and Rosario 1 to 2 cents higher, with May 80⅝ cents.

Primary arrivals today, 1,673,000 bushels; week ago, 1,565,000 bushels; last year, 816,000 bushels. Shipments, 739,000 bushels; week ago, 911,000 bushels; last year, 761,000 bushels.

Oats finished ¼ to ¾ cent lower. Rye closed with a net loss of ⅞ to 1⅝ cents.

California Ruling on Wire Orders.

A ruling has been made by the Attorney General of California that wire houses for brokers are not subject to the jurisdiction of the California Corporation Commissioner when accepting and executing orders on exchanges outside the State, since they are merely the agents and the transactions are not actually consummated in California. It was ruled, however, that the wire houses must take out State licenses if they execute orders of California exchanges.

Bullard Machine and Tool Shareholders Approve Directors' Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 4.—A recommendation of the directors of the Bullard Machine and Tool Company for a split-up whereby three shares of New York stock are to be issued for every share of the original was unanimously accepted by the stockholders of the company at their annual meeting here today. It was also voted to change the name from the Bullard Machine and Tool Company to the Bullard Company.

The old stock earned a regular dividend of $1.50 a share and during the year four extra dividends were declared.

The plant is now running full time in all its departments and has enough orders to keep it busy for months to come.

RUBBER FUTURES STRONG.

Buying Support on Improved London Cables Raises Prices.

Crude rubber futures turned strong yesterday, improved London cables attracting some early buying support that lifted prices as much as 20 points. These gains were maintained all through the trading. Sales aggregated 137 contracts, in four deliveries.

Trading opened with offerings in March and October on the call at unchanged levels, while September rose 10 points. Support continued on the advance, with dealers taking January and commission houses manifesting interest in the March position. September added 10 points to its gain before midday and other deliveries remained steady. October and September closed with 20-point advances. The buying in these deliveries was ascribed to manufacturer sources.

London displayed a steady tone in early trading, with advances of 1-16d. to ⅛d., but turned quiet, with partial reductions in the near-bys. Spot and January closed at 8⅝d.; February, 8 11-16d.; March, 8¾d.; April-June, 8 15-16d.; July-September, 9 3-16d., all 1-16d. up. Singapore was quiet, with levels 1-16d. lower to as much higher.

GLOOMY ON CUBAN SUGAR.

Tarafa Tells Havana Future Looks Grave—Cane Grinding Under Way.

HAVANA, Jan. 4 (AP).—That the Cuban sugar industry is in the doldrums and that the future presents a grave aspect, despite the lifting of government restrictions, were beliefs expressed today by Colonel José M. Tarafa, father of the Tarafa sugar curtailment act, in his first interview since his return from Europe.

"There is no necessity to comment upon the bad situation of the sugar industry," Señor Tarafa said. "This is a well-known fact, and the more interesting because the island knows that its future well-being depends largely on sugar whose stability has not yet been established and whose future is uncertain. Low prices, high tariffs and prospects of still higher tariffs make sugar the unknown quantity in Cuban business circles."

The former czar of the Cuban sugar business suggested that the future could be established not through the marketing of refined sugar but through the utilization of by-products in the manufacture of commercial alcohol, syrups, cellulose and similar commodities.

Cane grinding operations are under way in all six Provinces, eighty-eight sugar centrals having started since the beginning of the year.

Many of the mills started cutting and hauling cane the last days of December, preparing to set the machinery in motion immediately after midnight last Monday, the official date for inaugurating the "zafra."

GIVES COMPANY'S VIEW OF ELK HILLS OIL CASE

Head of Standard of California Says Court Decision Has Not Affected Title to Land.

K. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Company of California, in a statement given out here yesterday, said the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court "with respect to Standard Oil Company Section 38 in the Elk Hills does not deprive the company of its right or title to the land." The decision, he said, "determines nothing with respect to the merits of the title."

"The decision," the statement continues, "concerns a part of a section of land in Naval Reserve No. 1, on which the company has a few small producing wells. The Naval Reserve was established in 1912. Standard Oil Company has held the land under patent from the State of California since 1906. In 1916, the land was still unproved and the company offered to donate it to the United States Navy, an offer which the navy declined on the advice of its geologists that the property was worthless for oil.

"Two years later the company drilled a wild-cat well on the land and, in January of 1919, discovered oil. The Secretary of the Interior in 1921 held that the company had good title to the land because it was not known mineral land in 1903, the date at which the State of California took the title, which subsequently passed to the company.

"A few years ago Congress directed a reinvestigation of the title on the theory that the land might have been known mineral land in 1903, notwithstanding the action of the navy in 1916. The company brought suit to enjoin such reinvestigation on the ground that the matter was closed by the decision of the Secretary in 1921. The lower courts sustained the company's right to the injunction. The Supreme Court has reversed this ruling and holds that the present Secretary of Interior may inquire into the title to the land.

"This leaves the company's title in the same situation in which it was at the time of the hearing before the Secretary of Interior in 1921."

PRICES RISE 25 CENTS ON PENNSYLVANIA OILS

Crudes at Highest Levels in 4½ Years, in Move to Increase Production.

An increase of 25 cents a barrel in the price of the principal grades of Pennsylvania crude oil was posted yesterday. This places the top grades at the highest price level of the last four and a half years and $1.30 a barrel above the posted price a year ago.

The new prices, which were put into effect by the leading purchasing agencies, are as follows: Pennsylvania grade in New York Transit lines and Bradford district oil in National Transit lines, $4.10 a barrel; Pennsylvania grade in National Transit lines and in Southwest Pennsylvania lines, $4 a barrel; Pennsylvania grade in Eureka Pipe lines, $3.90 a barrel, and Pennsylvania grade in Buckeye Pipe lines, $3.85. No change was made in the other grades.

Pennsylvania crude prices usually are influenced by conditions that do not affect other grades of oil, but changes in their price frequently foreshadow changes in Midcontinent crude. The present increase in Pennsylvania crude has been expected for some time and is the latest of a series of upward revisions in that territory.

Pennsylvania crude purchasers have increased the price in the hope of making a larger supply available. The supply is now inadequate. It is also believed that the purchasers wish to encourage new production.

Oklahoma Gas Well Is Burning.

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 4 (AP).—A spectacular fire fed by gas flowing at a rate of 75,000,000 cubic feet in twenty-four hours, was burning today at a Carter Oil Company well in the Little River section of the Greater Seminole producing area in Central Oklahoma. The well caught fire when it blew in unexpectedly while plugs were being drilled at a depth of 4,202 feet. Gas was breaking through the ground as well as escaping from the casing, and the mass of flames offered a serious handicap to fire fighters in their efforts to bring the gasser under control.

Cities Service Buys Oil Company.

The Cities Service Company has purchased the plants, business and real estate of the Republic Oil Company of Washington, D. C. It has taken over the operation of the Republic properties in Washington and Virginia, and plans are under way for immediate extensions.

BURMA MINING STOCK HERE.

Securities of Silver, Lead and Zinc Company on Local Market.

Securities of the Burma Corporation, Ltd., rated as one of the largest producers of lead, silver and zinc in world, were introduced on the New York market yesterday by Colvin & Co., who arranged for issuance of American deposit receipts of the Guaranty Trust Company on ordinary shares.

Shares of the Burma Corporation are traded on the London Stock Exchange. Capitalization consists entirely of common stock of 10 rupees ($3.65) par value, of which 19,541,680 shares are outstanding of an authorized issue of 20,000,000.

Mines owned by the company are in the interior of Burma. They were worked by the Chinese from about 1412 to the time of the Mohammedan rebellion, and were finally abandoned by them about 1868. In this period high-grade lead-silver ores were extracted from the upper portions of the ore body, the Chinese smelting it for silver alone and leaving large quantities of rich lead-bearing slags.

In the company's fiscal year ended June 30, 1928, metal sales were $16,165,749, and dividends paid out aggregated $3,831,090. Production consisted of 72,888 tons of lead, 6,954,665 ounces of silver, 1,066 tons of antimonial lead, 12,388 tons of copper matte and 58,222 tons of 50.5 per cent zinc concentrates. The company owns a fully equipped railway forty-six miles long, a hydroelectric power plant, a concentrating mill, smelter and refineries.

Heavy Buyer Influx Indicated.

Next week will see the largest influx of buyers into the market here since the active buying period of the Fall. Advices to the resident offices and advance hotel reservations indicate this. Next week's arrivals are considered the vanguard of a movement of buyers here that will continue until a peak period toward the latter part of the month or early in February is reached. The early date of Easter this year will have the effect of pushing the peak period ahead by some ten days or so.

Furniture Show Here Jan. 14.

About 4,800 buyers are expected to attend the midwinter furniture exposition of the New York Furniture Exchange, which begins on Jan. 14 and continues for two weeks. Factory plans for the displays at the exposition are being completed and indicate that modernistic art types will come in for considerable featuring. These styles will be shown in bedroom, dining room and living room furniture, as well as in novelty pieces. Walnut is expected to retain its position as the staple wood at the show, but mahogany has been coming back to favor.

Silk Deliveries Show Decline.

Deliveries, storage stocks and imports of raw silk during December were all lower than for the preceding month, according to figures issued yesterday by the Silk Association of America. Deliveries comprised 45,026 bales, compared with 47,709 in November. Imports were the lowest since July, being figured at 44,128 bales, as against 48,134 in November. In transit between New York and Japan at the end of the month, however, was the abnormal amount of 42,500 bales. Storage stocks on Jan. 1 were 48,908 bales, a reduction of 898 bales as compared with Dec. 1.

Burlap Exchange May Be Formed.

Although THE TIMES's informant would not say definitely that a burlap exchange is to be formed here, it was learned from a reliable source yesterday that backers of the project are "bending all efforts in that direction." The matter was first broached here several months ago, at which time members of the burlap trade went on record almost unanimously against the formation of an exchange. This action followed the report of a committee of eight, headed by F. M. Gallie of Epstein & Gallie, at a trade meeting at which most of the concerns in this country that handle burlaps were represented. This committee is still functioning and will meet at 1:30 P. M. on Monday at 285 Madison Avenue.

To Distribute "First Aid" Display.

A contract for the preparation of a First Aid Week window display for use by retail druggists during the third week of March has just been signed by R. B. Whittlesey, chairman of the Committee on Education and Research of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association. The display will be the second of its type prepared for distribution by wholesale druggists. It will consist of six pieces lithographed in six colors, and will be based on a centre panel representation of the Good Samaritan. Its chief purpose will be to promote the retail drug store as the proper place to buy bandages and other first-aid requisites. Samples of the display will be ready about Feb. 1.

Silk Overproduction Unchecked.

Overproduction of staple silks continues a depressing factor in the silk trade. With a demand equal to about 75 per cent of capacity, the current output is about 106 per cent of capacity, it was estimated by one authority here. The 6 per cent excess over 100 per cent capacity reflected the overtime schedules of some producers. The high rate accounts, according to this man, for the accumulation of distress merchandise and unstable prices prevailing for staple goods.

***

Curtailment Stiffens Coal Prices.

Mild weather over the holiday season slowed down the demand for anthracite domestic sizes to such an extent that the collieries have been working very irregularly, Saward's Journal will say today. One effect of the curtailment has been to put the steam sizes in a much better position. Many producers have needed their output of these sizes to take care of contracts, and some of the companies have had to buy independent coal to tide them over. The result is that a comparatively small tonnage has come on the market in the last two or three weeks. Everything considered, including the weather, 1929 is starting off fairly well in the bituminous trade.

***

Look for Active Buying Soon.

The new year has brought with it a fair volume of business in various textile lines, but real activity is not looked for here during the next couple of weeks. During the week beginning Jan. 20, however, definite improvement in business is anticipated, for then a large number of jobbers from all parts of the country will be here to attend the annual meeting of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute at the Hotel Pennsylvania. With stocks in most lines known to be light in the hands of secondary distributors, one of the most active buying periods in some time is anticipated. A firm cotton market and a rising tendency in finished goods at that time, it was said yesterday, would probably produce a small boom.

***

Glass Tariff Holds Interest.

Much interest was shown in the glass trade during the week in the report that the Tariff Commission will give final consideration to its report on window glass production some time this month, The American Glass Review will say today. It would appear, therefore, the publication adds, that happenings of major importance in the window glass tariff situation may be expected in the near future. The market for window and plate glass has continued quiet and is held likely to remain so until the middle of the month, when inventories will have been completed.

Gray Goods Very Quiet Here.

With both buyers and sellers marking time while the cotton market seesaws up and down from day to day, trading in gray goods here yesterday was very light. Business in 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths was reported at 7⅝ cents for nearby delivery, and sellers were firm in their demands for 8¼ cents for 39-inch 68-72s and 6¾ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s. For 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings 8¾ cents was the best that could be done, while 6¼ cents was asked for 36-inch 5-50s. Drills and sateens were featureless, and not much was done in broadcloths. Prices for the last named were based on 9 cents, asked, for 80-60s. Fine-yarn goods were bare of sales features.

AVERAGE PRICES SHOW DECREASE FOR 1928

Changes Slight for the Year—Movement of Commodities Downward in December.

Dun's index number of prices at the end of 1928, published yesterday, shows decrease of a little more than one-half of 1 per cent in the general average during December. The Jan. 1 average was the lowest since Feb. 1 of last year; it is very slightly under that of a year ago, 2¾ per cent above Jan. 1, 1927, and nearly 2½ per cent below 1926. Compared with the highest pre-war average, that of May, 1920, the present average shows a decline of 27 per cent. Compared with the average of Aug. 1, 1914, it is an increase of 59¾.

Changes in averages for the seven separate groups of commodities during December were slight; breadstuffs increased. Most of the others were little changed. Compared with a year ago, there was a slight increase in breadstuffs, meats and other foods, and a slight decrease in metals, clothing and textiles, dairy and garden products and miscellaneous.

The following table, giving a record of Dun's index number for a series of months and years, shows the course of the movement:

FAIRLY HIGH LEVEL OF TRADE REPORTED

Commercial Reviews Find Some Factors Unfavorable in Various Districts.

SPRING BUSINESS BEGINNING

Orders Larger Than a Year Ago—Seasonal Slackening in Industrial Enterprises.

Notwithstanding post-holiday quieting down in trade, business entered the new year at a fairly high level. Unseasonably mild weather exercised a retarding effect and the influenza epidemic also was an unfavorable factor in some centres, according to the weekly reviews of business. Distribution at retail was aided, however, by clearance "sales," which appeared to meet a better response than a year ago, while wholesalers booked a fair amount of filling-in orders. In some cities sales for Spring delivery, were larger than a year ago.

Irregularity in the weather conditions produced wide divergence in the trade reports. A sharp drop in temperatures aided the movement of heavy clothing, shoes and rubber footwear in some sections of the Middle West, while other parts of the country complained of the sluggishness of apparel lines and of the coal trade. Cotton goods buying was only fair. Raw cotton was very dull. Leather prices held firm, but there was little actual buying.

Bradstreet's review of the state of trade is, in part, as follows:

"Inventory taking and plant overhauling reduced industrial operations, but the shutdowns appear to have been shorter and less general than a year ago in many lines, notably the steel industry, which ended 1928 with operations close to 85 per cent of capacity and showed indications of an expansion in early January.

"In the non-ferrous metals, copper continued to occupy the leading position, with prices advancing for the third time in two weeks.

"The tire trade continued active for the time of year, and makers of automobile bodies, parts and accessories prepared for the expected increase in car and truck production. Machine tool makers reported a large amount of unfilled orders. Lumber mill shutdowns curtailed production over the holidays, but orders continued fairly good and prices were generally firm. Reports on buying of shoes and furniture were irregular, but total sales in both lines appear to have been slightly better than a year ago."

Dun's survey of business says, in part:

"As had been clearly foreshadowed, the change from the old year to the new was accompanied by numerous definitely favorable phases in business. There was sound reason to believe that 1929 would begin auspiciously, and commercial movements, if still somewhat under the influence of holiday conditions, displayed sustained vigor.

"Annual summaries, while engaging much attention, have not obscured the current week's forward trend in various lines, and the main sentiment is distinctly cheerful.

"Where there is a lull now, due to normal factors, a renewed advance conceivably may occur, but most of the present expectations are confined to the first quarter of the year."

FIGHTS $129,366 LIEN IN INCOME TAX CASE

Partner in Defunct Minute Trading Corp. Denies Responsibility for Any but Personal Levy.

Harry Cohen of 1,540 Broadway, formerly connected with the Minute Trading Corporation, a finance company, which, he said, was dissolved in 1922, denied yesterday responsibility for payment of $129,366 charged against him in an income tax lien which was filed yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Charles W. Anderson in Federal court in Brooklyn.

Cohen said his partners in the now defunct company were Benjamin Sherman, Leopold Frieman and Harry Gier. Sherman, he said, owned a two-thirds interest in the company and settled with the government for $2,000 the claim for income tax of about $150,000 which was brought against him some time ago.

The company was organized with a capital of $40,000, Cohen said, and his share amounted to about $2,500, or about one-twelfth of the stock. Cohen declared that he received a salary from the company and also held a position with an insurance company at the same time and had paid all his personal tax, which, he insisted, was all he was responsible for, during the period from 1917 to 1921 as mentioned in the lien.

Income Tax Forms Are Ready.

Frank K. Bowers, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District, New York, announced yesterday that he had received instructions from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue directing him to release for distribution income tax forms on Jan. 7. These forms are to be made out for the calendar year of 1928 and must be filed on or before March 15. The Collector suggests that those desiring forms write or send for them.

This lease, which is for a term of twenty-one years, with three renewal privileges, is for an aggregate rental of nearly $500,000. Spear & Co. were the brokers.

TWO LINERS START HAVANA RACE TODAY

President Roosevelt of United States Lines to Open Fight on Cunarder Caronia.

BETS ARE LAID ON SPEED

American Vessel, Which Will Go Out Two Hours After Rival, Is Favorite in Wagers.

The contest sponsored by the United States Shipping Board for retention of control of the New York-Havana Winter trade for American ships will be actively under way this morning when the Cunard liner Caronia sails at 11 o'clock, followed two hours later by the Shipping Board liner President Roosevelt.

Thousands of dollars have been wagered on the speed of the ships, with the Roosevelt the favorite. The Caronia docked here yesterday after her first trip to Havana, on which she made a pier-to-pier speed of 16.7 knots south and 17.8 knots north. The Roosevelt has maintained a sea speed of 18 knots for a period of six months and it is expected that she will improve this figure in the Havana run.

The Caronia made the trip to Havana, a distance of 1,175 miles, in seventy hours and made the return trip in sixty-six hours when the handicap of fighting the Gulf Stream was removed. On her best day she covered 403 miles, maintaining a speed of 18.87 knots. The bar receipts were $5,000 on the round trip.

The President Roosevelt will carry a full list of 204 passengers when she sails today, according to Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the Shipping Board. Bookings for succeeding sailings are being filled rapidly, he said. The Caronia will carry about 240. She carried 457 persons on her first trip and 317 on her return trip. All outside rooms have been taken, it was said.

Statements by representatives of both lines indicated that the fight thus far has not upset them.

"The response of the American people to the placing of the Roosevelt in the Havana service," said Chairman O'Connor, "is a clear indication that they stand by their government in assisting the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Line in protecting its business which it has built up during half a century of service."

John Gammie, assistant to Sir Ashley Sparks, American director of the Cunard Line, said the sailings were greater than the line had expected for this time of the year.

"The fact that all the better accommodations have been taken," he said, "seems to prove the point we made when we entered the service, that there is a demand for a higher class ship to Cuba by persons able to pay than has been provided thus far by the lines serving Cuba."

The Cunard Line announced yesterday that it would not cut its rates to conform to the rates quoted by the Shipping Board through the Ward Line, which is operating the Roosevelt.

NAVAL INQUIRIES ORDERED.

De Steiguer Responds to Complaints of Attacks on Negroes.

Following an order from Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Rear Admiral Louis R. de Steiguer, Commandant of the Navy Yard in Brooklyn, ordered yesterday an investigation into allegations of two attacks by sailors on negroes in the subway in the last two weeks. Mr. Wilbur's order was the result of a complaint received from Charles Weldon Johnson, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in which it was charged that on Dec. 21 ten men from the U. S. S. Arkansas and the U. S. S. Richmond attacked a negro man and woman in a Brooklyn subway station, and on the night of Dec. 31 fifteen sailors from the U. S. S. Texas attacked a negro man and woman in the Times Square station.

Admiral de Steiguer was said to have sent a radio message to the Commanders of the Arkansas and the Richmond, which are on their way to Hampton Roads, Va., to begin an investigation. Admiral H. A. Wiley, Commander of the Atlantic Fleet, is in charge of the investigation on the Texas.

In a communication sent to Secretary Wilbur on Wednesday, Mr. Johnson urged that the head of the navy issue a general order commanding the men in the navy to have "proper respect for the rights of members of the negro race."

REPORT CELTIC IS DOOMED.

Experts Say Wind and Swell of Sea Will Ruin Stranded Ship.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBH, Irish Free State, Jan. 4.—Although the White Star liner Celtic still looks much as she did when she went ashore near here on Dec. 10, experts say there is no doubt that the vessel is doomed. The ship is still firmly fixed on the rocks and it is only a matter of time, they say, until the combined action of wind and sea break her up.

In the opinion of the experts this will not happen until the keel is affected. Once the keel is broken, it will not be long before the ship falls to pieces. A large number of her plates are so firmly impaled on the rocks that no serious effort can be made to get her off. The sharp rocks will probably tear larger rents until the keel begins to suffer. Under water the slow destruction of the hull of the vessel is continuing unobtrusively, for where the Celtic lies there is a heavy swell from the Atlantic even in the calmest weather.

That part of the cargo which is stored on the decks below the water line is now beginning to decay, but that which remains above water is in an excellent state of preservation. It includes large shipments of apples and pears and these are being removed slowly and laboriously. Valuable machinery is also being saved in good condition.

WILL SELL 9 FREIGHTERS.

Shipping Board Will Open Bids on Jan. 14.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Bids for nine of its laid-up steel cargo steamers will be opened by the Shipping Board on Jan. 14.

The vessels are in two groups, the first including two large cargo steamers, the James Otis and the John Jay, each 12,300 tons, and the Terre Haute, 8,750 tons. These vessels are oil burners designed to steam at 10½ knots. The John Jay is at Norfolk, Va., and the other two are at Philadelphia.

In the second group are six sister ships of about 5,200 tons each, equipped with reciprocating engines and oil-burning boilers and designed to steam at 10 knots. These are the Oklahoma City, Houston, Atlanta of Texas and Minooka, all laid up at Norfolk; the Hutchinson at New Orleans and the Capitol of Nebraska at New York.

RATE SCHEDULES APPROVED

Shipping Board Permits Agreements on Porto Rico and Other Freight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A rate agreement of the Bull Insular Line, Inc., with Lamport & Holt, Ltd., Lines Sud-Americana, Inc., Munson Steamship Line and Prince Line, Ltd., was approvepd by the Shipping Board today on through shipments of canned corned beef and jerked beef from Montevideo and Beunos Aires to Porto Rico, apportioned 60 per cent to the originating carrier and 40 per cent to the delivering line.

The board also approved agreements by the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company with the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company on through billings of coffee from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to Pacific Coast orts, and by the New York and Porto Rico Steamship Company with Commercial Steamship Lines (American Scantic Service) on shipments from Poto Rico to Copenhagen and Helsingfors via New York.

Kobe, Repaired at Sea, Proceeds.

BOSTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—A radio message received here today said that the Italian steamer Kobe, reported in distress last night while bound from Philadelphia to Venice, had made repairs and was continuing on her voyage. The message was from the motorship Chinese Prince, bound for Boston from the Far East, which yesterday picked up a radiogram from the Kobe reporting that her stern was smashed and rudder damaged.

Make River Depots of Idle Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Three idle ships were transferred today by the Shipping Board to the Inland Waterways Corporation for use as terminal warehouse vessels by the Mississippi River barge line. They are the Daueprata and Tollard, tied up at Norfolk, and the Oscoda, at New York, each of 8,300 tons. One will be used at Cairo and the others probably at Memphis and East St. Louis.

SHIPS OF THE FLEET SLIP AWAY TO SOUTH

Only a Few Gray Craft Remain at Navy Yard After the Exodus for Maneuvers.

Only a few slim gray craft floated in the Wallabout Basin yesterday afternoon after twenty-three ships of the Atlantic fleet, carrying 6,000 men had left the Brooklyn Navy Yard for southern waters and their Winter manoeuvres. The cruisers Cincinnati and Richmond left early in the morning and were followed by the battleships Arkansas and the Wyoming a few hours later. Two divisions of destroyers with the tender Dobbin left Thursday to relieve congestion in the Wallabout Basin so that the large ships could nose out into the East River safely.

The Texas, the flagship of the fleet, will not leave the navy yard until Jan. 7 and the Bridge is scheduled to stay until Jan. 15. The destroyers Bainbridge, Barry and Brooks are to remain in the yard for some time.

Among the craft left in the navy yard is the submarine V-4, the latest type of submarine. The S-3 also remained behind.

UTAH SMASHES WAY THROUGH BIG SEAS

Rough Weather Keeps the Hoovers Below Decks Most of Squally Day.

BUT SPEED IS MAINTAINED

Battleship, 500 Miles Southeast of Virginia Capes, Is Four Hours Ahead of Schedule.

By L. C. SPEERS,

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.
Navy Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 4.—President-elect Hoover's last day but one at sea has been marked by overcast skies, cold winds out of the north and squalls. The sun has been hidden for practically the entire day. While the wind at no time assumed the proportions of a gale, heavy seas were running and crashing to port forward, especially late in the afternoon when the dreadnaught plunged head on into the heaviest squall of the day.

Last night the skies were bright and the seas smooth but between midnight and dawn they gave way to black clouds and a heavy swell. The first squall, which sent all below about 8 o'clock this morning was followed by several hours of calm during which Mr. Hoover managed to get in his usual exercise of walking the decks.

Utah Maintains Speed.

This afternoon's rough weather began about 2:30 o'clock. Darkness found the Utah still plunging through the heavy seas, with the wind blowing out of the north at a velocity of thirty-six miles an hour. On the bridge were Captain Train and Lieut. Commander O'Brien, the navigator, clad in their oilskins. A magnificent picture was presented as the giant battleship plowed her way through one giant sea after another.

For the first time the cold temperature of the mainland was evident this afternoon and the officers and crew of the Utah have been ordered to don Winter blue tomorrow morning. Despite the weather, the Utah is living up to her reputation as one of the best weather boats in the navy.

She has not reduced her speed at any time and is four hours ahead of her schedule. She may anchor in Hampton Roads as early as 5 o'clock Sunday morning. She is due to enter the Gulf Stream tomorrow and will require about five hours to cross the eighty-mile stretch.

At 8 o'clock tonight the battleship is 250 miles west of Bermuda, 630 due east from Savannah, Ga., 400 southeast of Cape Hatteras and 500 southeast of the Virginia Capes.

Mr. Hoover is happy at the prospect of landing on his home shores and returns stronger and in better health than in years.

Hoping for West Indies Tour.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 4 (AP).—A tour of the West Indies before his inauguration on March 4 is looked forward to by Herbert Hoover if he can complete his conferences in Washington in short order.

The President-elect will begin conferences on his Cabinet and other subjects facing his administration in the national capital on Monday and when they are over plans to go to Florida for a week or ten days' rest.

Afterward, if time permits, he hopes to undertake the voyage to the West Indies, visiting Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico and possibly the Virgin Islands. The West Indies tour probably would require less than three weeks and the President-elect would expect to return to Florida in ample time to write his inaugural address.

Mr. Hoover particularly desires to visit Cuba. He also is anxious to get first hand observation of what the American marines are doing in Haiti and to ascertain how Santo Domingo has progressed since the termination of the American occupation several years ago.

Under his present plans, Mr. Hoover would stop at Havana, Port Au Prince, Santo Domingo City, San Juan and, if the Virgin Islands are included in the tour, at St. Thomas.

71,778 Words for Press.

Newspaper correspondents on board the battleship have been agreeably surprised by the speed and facility with which press dispatches have been handled by navy radio operators using a special high frequency radio set installed on board the Utah before she went South to pick up the Hoover party at Montevideo.

Since Dec. 18 the Utah radio operators have handled a total of 71,778 words of outgoing press messages. This amount has proved to be only approximately one-third of the sending capacity of the vessel, and the new system used, details of which are regarded as a naval secret, worked out even better than was expected.

Between Montevideo and Rio de Janeiro, there was some difficulty encountered in sending to the Arlington Station at Washington during the day, but dispatches went through fast at night in spite of the fact that the air line distance to the Washington station was 5,540 miles. When the Utah left Rio de Janeiro, even better results were obtained, although the distance was still 4,110 miles.

The peak load of outgoing copy was sent on the day after Christmas when 8,060 words were moved to the United States from the battleship in addition to the sending of a heavy file of official messages and the receiving of all incoming press dispatches and messages. An average of 4,480 words a day has been sent from the Utah during the northward journey.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Australia, familiar to President-elect Hoover as the scene of his first engineering work abroad, will be represented at his inauguration by a group of 150 youthful cadets who are touring the United States.

The British Embassy has notified officials that the cadets will arrive in San Francisco Jan. 18 and after visiting various sections of this country and Canada will come to Washington about March 1. They will be quartered during part of their visit at the Navy Yard.

THREE JEWELERS HELD IN $75,000 ROBBERY

Indictments Follow Inquiry by Police of Story of Hold-Up in Office.

Three jewelers were arrested last night on warrants charging grand larceny issued yesterday following a grand jury investigation of a $75,000 jewel robbery, that two of the three reported had occurred in their office at 41 John Street on Nov. 21.

The jewelers who reported the hold-up are Jack Edlin of 517 West 161st Street and Max Hoffman of 920 Avenue L, Brooklyn. With them was arrested Abner E. Blumfield of 948 Fox Street, the Bronx, an appraising diamond jeweler, who shares the top-floor loft leased by Hoffman and Edlin. Blumfield reported to the police that on Oct. 30 he was held up in the hallway of his home and robbed of $17,000 worth of jewelry which he had on consignment and the Bronx police are again investigating the circumstances surrounding that robbery.

Of the $75,000 worth of jewelry missing as a result of what the police believe was a fake hold-up in the John Street office, $40,000 worth had been received on consignment. The grand jury indicted Edlin on three counts and the other two on two counts. Edlin and Hoffman said they were bound, gagged with adhesive tape and handcuffed to a work bench, but had not seen the faces of the hold-up men for more than a fleeting instant. The bandits turned out the lights when they entered, the partners told the police.

Detectives from the Maiden Lane squad were called in to aid the Old Slip detectives. Daily they visited the jewelers, attempting to get an amplification of the hold-up story. The two partners could not remember the details, they told the police. The detectives presented their case to the Grand Jury and the indictments followed.

EDGE ALSO URGES DRY LAW INQUIRY

Offers Resolution for an Investigation by an Impartial Committee of Citizens.

TEST PLANED IN CAPITAL

Enforcement Committee Proposes a Ten-Weeks' Campaign to Give Example.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—An anti-prohibition move to counter the proposal of Senator Jones for an investigation of prohibition by friends was made today when Senator Edge of New Jersey offered a resolution to have the inquiry made by an impartial citizens' committee.

The Edge resolution would authorize the President to appoint a commission of nine to make "a searching investigation of the system and methods of the enforcement" of the Eighteenth Amendment and the prohibition laws "and of the facts relating to and the causes responsible for the admitted general violations of such laws; to determine the best means and methods for correcting the situation with respect to prohibition," and "report to the President not later than Jan. 1, 1930." The commission would not be appointed until after April 1, which would leave the selection of its personnel to Mr. Hoover. An appropriation of $50,000 is called for.

Mr. Edge was critical of the action of Senator Jones in trying to provide for a prohibition investigation prior to the inauguration of Mr. Hoover.

"I believe the move for an investigation of prohibition conditions could, with propriety, have been withheld until after the inauguration," Mr. Edge said, "so that direct word as to the methods preferred could have been available.

"However, as the matter has now been officially presented, it is my judgment it should be handled in quite a different manner from the proposal as made.

"I am very strong for a complete and thorough investigation. However, it will not be effective or in any way satisfactory to the country unless it is removed from politics. In my judgment an investigation conducted either by extreme 'drys' or extreme 'wets' or solely by politicians would be futile if the country is to be impressed with the final recommendations from such an inquiry."

Jones Plan Backed by Cherrington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The proposal by Senator Jones of Washington for an investigation of prohibition enforcement by friends of the dry cause was endorsed in a statement tnight by Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, who declared the suggestion had "tremendous possibilities for good."

The National United Committee for Law Enforcement announced today plans to initiate a ten weeks' campaign to "make Washington an example and encouragement to the cities of the nation" in regard to prohibition enforcement. This group is composed of the executive heads of fourteen national organizations.

Husband Gets Letter 26 Years Late.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Twenty-six years ago Mrs. E. Burkloder wrote a letter to her husband. Yesterday it was delivered to him here. The letter was mailed at Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 23, 1903. When it arrived at its destination it showed plainly the effects of its long journey but bore no marks except the Harrisonburg postmark, the receipt mark of the Washington postoffice the next day and a stamp which declared "Unknown at that address. Try 153 V Street Northwest."

STUDENT NURSES INCREASE.

Members of United Hospital Fund Report Growth in Schools.

The United Hospital Fund of 151 Fifth Avenue announced yesterday that hospitals included in the fund report a large increase in the enrollment of student nurses. Montefiore has 91 student nurses, 26 of whom are expected to be graduated in the Spring. Four nurses from other countries are studying dietetics, two from the American Hospitalia Paris, one from London and another from Frankfort, Germany.

St. John's, Brooklyn, reports 22 probationers, the largest class in its history, and in the Methodist Hospital in that borough a class of 66 has entered. The hospital is planning to built a $700,000 home for its nurses. St. Mark's, at Second Avenue and Eleventh Street, also plans a new home. The Neurological Institute, on the opening of its new quarters in the Medical Centre, will offer a post-graduate course in psychiatric and neurological nursing.

Prospect Heights Hospital, Brooklyn, has 28 nurses in training as it begins its fifty-sixth year. There are 116 in training at Fifth Avenue Hospital and 20 have enrolled at the Post-Graduate. The French Hospital has 59 enrolled, and the school will soon enter its new quarters.

$10,250,000 FOR COLLEGES.

Near East Fund Must Raise $4,750,000 More Before July 1.

The endowment fund for the Six American Colleges in the Near East has reached $10,250,000, according to Albert W. Staub, American director of the drive for $15,000,000 for this purpose. Before July 1 the whole must be raised or several large contingent gifts will be lost, Mr. Staub said.

He announced that since New Year's an anonymous gift of $80,000 has been received to establish a Chair of Arabic at the American University of Beirut. He also said that Dr. Charles F. Thwing, chairman of the Cleveland committee, had agreed to raise $80,000 to endow the presidency of Athens College. William G. Mather, a trustee, has already contributed $10,000 to this institution.
